NAZI BOMBS RAIN ON WARSAW; CAUSE LITTLE LOSS; BATTLE FOR DANZIG FORT

Flyers Fail to Hit Bridges; 16 Planes Downed, Poles Say.

WARSAW, Sept. 1 (AP) [Via Budapest].—German warplanes brought their undeclared war to Warsaw late today after Nazi land forces had launched a swift, three-way invasion of Poland.

Huge, high flying bombers dropped large cargoes of explosives in the Warsaw area close on the heels of similar raids on numerous smaller cities. The land attacks, official advices said, were in these main sectors:

First, from East Prussia against Dzialdowo and Mlawa; second, from Pomerania against Chojnice at the narrowest part of the disputed Polish corridor, and third, from Breslau against Katowice.

Balked Four Times.

The Nazi air raiders succeeded in getting over Warsaw after they had been balked in four earlier attempts. The first communique from the Polish general staff asserted that sixteen German airplanes were shot down during the various air raids throughout the scene of operations and that two Polish planes were lost in air battles.

The communique stated that Polish troops gained possession of two German armored trains, one of them at Chojnice. It said that Polish soldiers still were defending the Westerplatte, Polish munitions base in the harbor of Danzig.

[Reuters, British news agency, said yesterday in London that Poles were reported barricaded in the Danzig postoffice, holding out against Germans, but that Nazis expected to occupy the building soon.]

Direct Attack on Bridges.

Apparently directing their attack on bridges across the Vistula river, Poland's outlet to the sea, the air raiders started an hour and ten minute attack at 4:30 p. m. [10:35 a. m. Chicago time].

An hour later they came back and headed toward government buildings in the center of the city. A visit to the highway and railroad bridges across the Vistula immediately after the all clear signals were given disclosed there was no visible damage.

The bridges were intact and trafic was proceeding normally. There was no sign of damage to buildings in the vicinity, although bomb fragments were picked up on the bridges and on the shore nearby. Some observers expressed the belief the bombs had landed either in the river or in open spaces on the shore opposite the city.

Population Remains Calm.

A walk through the streets showed the population had taken the bombing without panic, although many admitted they had undergone terrific strain.

Fascinated residents stood on roof tops and watched the attacks. There was no panic. The wail of power diving pursuit ships which took off against the big droning bombers could be heard. The puffs of antiaircraft guns could be seen.

[Patrick Maitland, correspondent of the London Times, who spoke from Warsaw over the Mutual Broadcasting system, said there were many casualties when bombs struck a Jewish children's hospital on the outskirts of Warsaw.]

Tremendous explosions shook the city. Some of the projectiles fell only two blocks from the American embassy, for which emergency headquarters have been established at Conscaucin, twelve miles from Warsaw. The bombers were unaccompanied, as they usually are, by their own pursuit planes.

City Given Little Warning.

Warsaw had little warning. Antiaircraft guns could be heard before the air raid alarm sirens.

Destruction of the railroad bridge across the Vistula would be a serious blow to Poland's trafic from here to the coast and to the west. Reports reaching the capital told of Nazi air raids in other parts of the nation.

A government communique said a large number of women and children were killed in the bombardment of a refugee train from Poznan at the "Suicide Troops" in Free City Harbor Fight Warship.

BY ANDREAS BACKER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

OSLO, Norway, Sept. 1.—"The commander in chief greets the gallant garrison at Westerplatte and expects every man to stick to his sanguinary post."

This announcement from Polish radio stations crackled out every five minutes over northern Europe tonight.

The call for sacrifice was directed at the "suicide battalion" which mans the Polish munitions dump of Westerplatte off Danzig harbor. But whether the message was ever received was not known here.

Berlin Reports Victory.

Germany claimed that the cruiser Schleswig-Holstein, with its guns finding the depot an easy mark, had bombarded the battalion into submission.

The claims of German victory came in a brief communique from Berlin. The communique said that only a short bombardment was needed to reduce the garrison to a point where further resistance became impossible. The Schleswig-Holstein had been in the harbor on a formal visit for several days, but its guns were primed and ready for action.

Poland Says Defense Continues.

Poland denied the German claim of victory. An official announcement from Warsaw boasted that the "suicide battalion" still was in control and defending its position bravely. It is said to be equipped with sufficient food and ammunition to withstand a six month siege.

Westerplatte, at the mouth of the Vistula river, is a wooded island near the Danzig harbor. Poland holds it under league of nations authority.

The entire system of fortifications is beneath the ground, with subterranean quarters for the garrison. There is a series of underground trenches beneath a wall along the edge of the island.

Remote Control of Guns.

These connect with a dozen points where emplacements of heavy guns are concealed. Each of the guns can be operated by remote control from the office of the commandant.

Anti-aircraft batteries are mounted on all roofs in turrets constructed, like the rest of the fortress, with material similar to that in the French Maginot line. A narrow canal leading through the outer wall of the fortress can be cut off by an under water steel barrier, operated by an electric switch. The only other approach to the island is a heavily mined bridge.

Britain's Censorship Now Includes Postal Service

Last Minute Bulletins

WARSAW, Sept. 2 (Saturday) (A. P.).—President Ignace Moscicki declared Poland under a "state of war" today as official reports said Polish forces were resisting German invasion on three fronts. The "state of war" supersedes the "state of national emergency" decreed yesterday. The German charge d'affaires was handed his passports with a request that he leave Poland.

WARSAW, Sept. 1 (A. P.) (Via Budapest).—Battles between German and Polish troops raged unabated tonight in Polish border areas, a general staff communique said. The most violent fighting was reported from Silesia, one of the three main sectors in which Germany launched its invasion of Poland early today to begin her undeclared war.

BERLIN, Sept. 2 (Saturday) (A.P.).—In a long attack on Great Britain, German political circles through the official news agency declared today that "Germany is ready to fight even a ten-year war for its rights and the final peace of Europe."

BERLIN, Sept. 1 (A. P.).—The official German news agency, DNB, reported tonight that the glare of burning Polish villages, inhabited by Germans and set afire by Polish "insurgents," could be seen from Schneidemuehl, a border town.

BUDAPEST, Sept. 1 (A. P.).—Count Paul Teleky, premier of Hungary, tonight announced he would ask for extraordinary powers to preserve his country's neutrality. Count Teleky will ask parliament to give him the power of censorhip, to order internment, and to restrict the rights of assembly and association—all of which, it is interpreted, is deemed necessary to curb increasingly turbulent Hungarian Nazis.

TOKIO, Sept. 2 (Saturday).—The Japanese cabinet has been notified to be ready for an urgent meeting to discuss Japan's policy in view of Germany's attack on Poland.

PARIS, Sept. 2 (Saturday) (A. P.).—Authoritative French sources said today that parliament would decide unanimously to support Poland by making war on Germany. A French-British ultimatum delivered in Germany and demanding the immediate withdrawal of German troops now invading Poland went unanswered.

America Acts to Preserve Its Neutrality

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 1.—Acting on the belief that Great Britain and France would declare war on Germany tomorrow, government officials said here tonight a series of proclamations and orders designed to preserve the neutrality of the United States had been drafted.

[Acme Photo.]

It was announced that the government would issue the proclamations immediately should the war declarations be made. President Roosevelt at a press conference earlier pledged that his administration will do all in its power to keep America out of the European war.

The President will broadcast to the nation Sunday night at 9 o'clock, Chicago time, his proposals for the position which the United States should take with reference to the European war. Mr. Roosevelt may announce his plans for proclaiming America's neutrality under existing law and also reveal when he will summon a special session of congress at which he again will urge repeal of the arms embargo in the neutrality law.

Busy Day for President.

Secretary Stephen T. Early described the President's broadcast as designed to allay anxiety and relieve suspense caused by the conflict in Europe.

In a day of crowded activity, after a night in which he had but three hours' sleep, the chief executive:

1. Met with his cabinet for two hours for a general discussion of the situation abroad.
2. Conferred for an hour with the highest ranking army and navy officials on the state of the national defense.
3. Accepted the resignation of Hugh R. Wilson, ambassador to Ger-

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Sept. 1.—Dr. Paul Joseph Goebbels, German propaganda minister, sought to dissuade Adolf Hitler from striking at Poland, it was learned here on good authority tonight.

After a meeting of the council for defense, which decided on the attack, Goebbels is said to have asked the fuehrer for an audience. He warned Hitler, it is said, that his plans were not possible to execute at the moment and that if he would accept a short delay over Danzig he could achieve his hegemony over Europe in six months. Otherwise, he said, the whole world would be against Hitler.

Goebbels also was said to have told the fuehrer that Dictator Stalin of soviet Russia would betray him and that this would mean the end of the third reich.

Hitler, it was said, did not reply.

FRANCE TAKES ART TREASURES TO SAFE PLACES

PARIS, Sept. 1.—French art treasures to a great extent have been removed to safety. A note by the ministry of national education said that a large part of the Louvre collections and the treasures of the national library and national archives now are safe. The last stained glass in Sainte Chapelle was removed today, and measures for the protection of art works were taken in the churches of Saint Severin, Saint Etienne du Mont, Saint Gervais and others. The stained glass has been entirely removed from Bourges cathedral, and the removal of stained glass from Chartres, Lyon, Metz, and Rouen cathedrals has been speeded.

AMERICAN ARMY ACTS TO PROTECT PANAMA CANAL

CRISTOBAL, Canal Zone, Sept. 1 (AP). — The American army moved today to protect the Panama canal against possible results of war.

Steamship agents notified ships carrying explosives that such cargo must be unloaded at the canal terminal for transportation by rail or canal carriers.

Fifty men of the 14th infantry regiment formed a guard at the Mount Hope filtration plant to protect the Cristobal and Colon water supply.

GERMANY TOLD IT MUST HALT INVASION OF POLAND OR FACE ALLIED ARMIES

Berlin Expected to Shun Warning of London and Paris.

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Sept. 2 [Saturday].—Europe will be at war some time today. With all their armed forces completely mobilized, the British and French yesterday sent an ultimatum to Germany warning that unless German troops were withdrawn from Poland and military action suspended the two western powers immediately would carry out their obligations to Poland under the mutual aid pact signed here last Friday.

Prime Minister Chamberlain told the house of commons in a dramatic session last night that he had no hope of favorable action from Germany and that the country must expect that hostilities will ensue immediately. The ultimatum has no time limit.

"We shall enter the struggle with a clear conscience and with the support of the dominions and the British empire and the moral approval of the greater part of the world," the prime minister told the cheering house. "The situation is far more favorable and reassuring than in 1914."

London Hides All Lights.

Londoners read news of the ultimatum with tight lips. The city was blacked out completely in preparation for air raids—a grim, businesslike blackout quite different from the rehearsal of three weeks ago.

In his twenty-five minute address, the prime minister said the country was well prepared for the impending struggle, but asserted that legislation to call up every ablebodied man between the ages of 18 and 41 would be passed immediately He attacked Fuehrer Hitler as the man who is plunging the "world into misery to serve his own senseless ambitions."

"We shall stand at the bar of history," Chamberlain said, "knowing that the responsibility for this terrible catastrophe rests on the shoulders of one man—the German chancellor.

"No Quarrel with People."

"We have no quarrel with the German people, except that they allowed themselves to be governed by the Nazi government. As long as that government pursues the method which it has so persistently followed during the last two years, there will be no peace in Europe. We should merely pass from one crisis to another, and see one country attacked by another with methods now become familiar to us with sickening technique. We are resolved that these methods must come to an end."

He praised Premier Mussolini for "doing his best to reach a peaceful solution during the crisis."

War Atmosphere in House.

War shadows were visible in the historic house of commons not only in the grim faces of the members, but also in the actual furnishings of the chamber. For the first time, heavy black blinds shrouded the windows and a sprinkling of army khaki and air force blue uniforms was visible among the packed benches.

Many members of parliament were crowded out of their usual places, and either sat in double rows along the galleries, swarmed around the speaker's chair or milled at the back of the chamber. Every available space was taken up.

David Lloyd George, war time premier, and Conservative Leader Churchill faced each other from opposite corners. Theirs were poignant memories of the only session comparable to this one—that of Aug. 3, 1914.

From places above the clock reserved for royalty, the duke of Gloucester and the duke of Kent listened to the speeches. In the diplomats' gallery were the ambassadors of Russia, China and Belgium, but no German representative could be seen.

In the house of lords, Foreign Secretary Viscount Halifax made a speech almost identical to Chamberlain's.

Parliament will meet again today at 1:45 p. m. [8:45 a. m. Chicago

LAST CHANCE FOR PEACE HINGES ON THIS EDICT

LONDON, Sept. 1 (AP).—The text of the ultimatum which the British ambassador today handed to the Berlin government is as follows:

"Early this morning the German chancellor issued a proclamation to the German army which indicated clearly that he was about to attack Poland. Information which has reached his majesty's government in the United Kingdom and the French government indicates that German troops have crossed the Polish frontier and attacks on Polish towns are proceeding.

"In these circumstances, it appears to the governments of the United Kingdom and France that, by their action, the German government have created conditions, namely an aggressive act of force against Poland, threatening the independence of Poland, which call for the immediate implementation by the government of the United Kingdom and France of the undertaking to Poland to come to her assistance.

"I am accordingly to inform your excellency that unless the German government is prepared to give his majesty's government an assurance that the German government have suspended all aggressive action against Poland, and are prepared promptly to withdraw their forces from Polish territory, his majesty's government in the United Kingdom will, without hesitation, fulfill their obligation to Poland."

[The French ambassador presented a similar note to Germany.]

Reveal Secret Diplomacy of Days of Crisis

The Tribune prints on pages 8 and 9 the salient sections of the British White Paper covering the diplomatic exchanges which led up to the hostilities in Europe. Following is a summary of the document, which was published yesterday by the British government:

Aug. 22—Letter from Chamberlain to Hitler. States Britain's pledge to Poland is not altered by Nazi-soviet agreement. Suggests truce and negotiations to avert calamitous war.

Aug. 23—Hitler's statement to Britain. Cites eight points why Germany insists on having Danzig and solution of corridor problems. Charges Poland with atrocities. Says Britain's pledge to help Poland does not change Germany's determination to end persecution of Germans. Declares Germany, if attacked by England, is prepared.

Troops of Fuehrer Drive Over Border at Four Points.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Sept. 1.—Germany's council of defense met for three hours this afternoon. Fuehrer Adolf Hitler's standard was removed from the chancellery and the population believed he had joined his army at the headquarters prepared for him. Semi-official circles, however, believed he had not left yet because, they claimed, "negotiations are continuing with the English."

Sir Nevile Henderson, the British ambassador, and later Robert Coulondre, the French ambassador, called on Foreign Minister Joachim Von Ribbentrop this evening. Details of the conversations were not revealed.

Germans calmly accepted the announcement that Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain hac demanded the withdrawal of German troops from Poland and his threat to recall the British ambassador. They asserted that by tomorrow they expect to have occupied Danzig and Pomorze [the Polish corridor].

"Deep in Polish Territory."

"Then military action will cease automatically and we will be ready to negotiate," they said.

The negotiations would be carried on in a five power meeting suggested by Premier Mussolini of Italy.

The army high command issued a communique at 5:45 p. m. [11:45 a. m. Chicago time] which said the German army which advanced on Poland from East Prussia is "deep in Polish territory" and that the air force has acquired supremacy of the air over Poland.

The communique said advances of German troops and planes which started from Pomerania, Silesia, and East Prussia this morning were well under way toward their objectives.

Cross Osla River.

German troops were reported advancing toward Neumark and Sucha from Maerisch-Ostrau. They crossed the Osla river near Teschen, the communique said, heading for Katowice and Czenstochowa in Upper Silesia.

The communique said the troops reached the Netze river near Nakel in the Polish corridor and that a battle was raging near Grudziacz.

The army high command said many successful air raids were reported on various Polish military objectives in the Polish corridor, Polish Upper Silesia, and the military harbor at the Polish port of Gdynia.

"German airplanes attacked with great enthusiasm and destroyed military establishments of the airdrome at Rahmel, Putzig, Grauden, Posen, Plock, Lodz, Tomaszow, Radom, Ruda, Katowice, Lemberg, Cracow, Brest, and Terespol," the communique said.

Bomb Munitions Dump.

It was also officially announced that the German cadet training cruiser Schleswig-Holstein, anchored in Danzig harbor, opened fire on the Polish munitions dump at Westerplatte.

Col. Gen. Walther von Brauchitsch, commander of the German army, declared the former Free City of Danzig to be a region of military operations. The East Prussian army was moving in to occupy the region. Danzig's new administration, under Nazi District Leader Albert Forster, took possession of the areas and railways formerly operated by Poland and wharves in the harbor, railway and dock properties.

The Russian military mission which had been expected in Berlin today to negotiate a military alliance with Germany now is expected to arrive tomorrow.

At 7 o'clock tonight sirens were sounded, warning the population of Berlin of a possible air raid. Within a few minutes the streets were cleared of all trafic. The alarm lasted for seventeen minutes. Then it was announced that it was only a test.

Americans Test Gas Masks.

All German cities were pitch black tonight. It was difficult to navigate through the streets of Berlin. Many persons lost their way in the darkness.

Automobiles were driven with only parking lights lit. Buses lumbered through the darkness with dimmed sidelights. Pale blue lights inside gave a ghostlike appearance to the vehicles.

Gasoline stations were each marked by a small pale blue light, as were fire alarm boxes, increasing the spooky appearance of the capital.

Polish Envoy to Leave.

Josef Lipski, Polish ambassador, received visits from numerous diplomatic colleagues. They had to show their credentials to a German detective on guard when entering and leaving the embassy.

Poland asked Sweden to handle its interests in Berlin after Lipski departs. The Polish ambassador, who wants to leave Berlin by automobile, asked the German foreign office for a permit and an escort to a neutral border.

A member of the British embassy and an English consular representative called at the American embassy and consulate today. It is not known whether they called to ask the Americans to take charge of their interests in case Ambassador Henderson leaves. France has asked Belgium to take care of its interests in event of war.

German People Stunned.

BERLIN, Sept. 1 (AP).—With the German army declaring its columns were deep in Polish territory tonight, the German nation stood somewhat stunned and dazed at the sweep of events on the first day of the undeclared war with Poland.

The people were grimly determined, however, that each man and woman would do his duty to achieve those objectives which Fuehrer Hitler, in an impassioned reichstag speech, declared to be the purpose of the resort to arms.

Those objectives were reunion of Danzig with the reich, restitution of the Polish corridor region to Germany, and a cessation of conditions along the German-Polish border which Hitler earlier described as Macedonian or terroristic.

From the viewpoint of military tactics Germany went beyond the Danzig corridor during the first day of the war. German troops were attacking all along the Polish-German frontier and were reported to have pushed into several sections of Poland.

Say No War Exists.

The official interpretation on the status of relations between Poland and Germany was that no state of war exists. The embassies of both nations are still functioning. In fact, Josef Lipski, the Polish ambassador, is understood to have protested at the foreign office against the German military operations in Poland.

In Warsaw, too, the German embassy remains staffed.

German officialdom insists that all that happened was that Germany struck back after Poland attacked at Gleiwitz last night and consistently violated the border in recent weeks.

Informed quarters frankly admitted, however, that if, for instance, Katowice in Polish Silesia should be "liberated," it might be retained permanently by Germany, although Hitler's 16 points submitted last night to the world said nothing of Silesia. In other words, it was indicated the 16 points no longer stand as Germany's offer in the crisis.

Russia May Aid Nazis.

As further argument that a state of war does not exist, officials pointed to the fact that the German-Italian military alliance has not become operative in the sense that Italy must give Germany military assistance.

Tonight, in fact, it appeared more as if soviet Russia was likely soon to aid Germany. A military mission of high Russian officers was expected momentarily in Berlin and there was a general expectation that a military alliance would be quickly concluded with soviet Russia.

This possibility received nourishment when Hitler, in his reichstag speech, spoke of soviet Russia with a warmth which six months ago would have been thought impossible.

In general, Germany was trying to organize life on a martial basis.

Economy measures were put into effect immediately. Bills of fare at restaurants were reduced to a minimum. Display of electric advertising signs was forbidden, shops and stores were ordered to cease window lighting after 9 p. m., and the schools were closed until further notice.

The management of the state theaters announced that the state operas and theaters would not resume presentations for the present.

EXPECT FRANCE TO DECLARE WAR ON HITLER TODAY

Government Places Issue Before Parliament.

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Sept. 1.—The European war is in full progress, but a bewildering unbelief, like the aftermath of a nightmare, still lingers on here.

War has not yet been declared. The staff of the Germany embassy—the ambassador, Count Johannes von Welczeck, is away—has not yet received its passports and the French ambassador, Robert Coulondre, is still in Berlin.

But Poland has officially invoked the military alliance binding her with France, and France has replied to the Poles that she will honor her promise to come to their aid with her whole strength.

Paris Fearful of Air Raid.

Consequently, since 12:25 p. m. today, general mobilization and a state of siege have been in force throughout the land. Consequently, as the light faded out of the evening sky and Parisians tacked up blue curtains over windows in compliance with blackout orders, they wondered whether the night would bring death and destruction from Hitler's bombing planes.

If this nightmare does not crystalize, the probable development of the scenario tomorrow will be as follows:

In the afternoon, probably about 3 o'clock, Premier Edouard Daladier will face the chamber of deputies and make a declaration in the name of the government.

It is reported—and the government refuses officially to confirm or deny it—that France and England already have delivered a formal ultimatum to Hitler telling him to cease bombing Polish cities and that Hitler either has refused or not replied at all.

Expect War Declaration.

Daladier in his declaration is expected to draw the conclusion from this that it is better to die running forward than backward and the chamber will vote confidence in the government and credits to carry on the war. There also will be a declaration of war.

A lot of people here cannot understand why the government has to go through all this rigamarole and why it is not sending bombers at once to help the Poles.

The government's viewpoint is that this is to be an old fashioned war according to the elaborate old fashioned protocol for such old fashioned ideas as life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness and the still more old fashioned idea of honor.

There even are some here who still believe a general war may still be averted. But the man in the street, who has been ordered to report to his mobilization center tomorrow or shortly thereafter, does not share this optimism. He thinks the fat is in the fire and must now be fought to the finish.

Jews Rush to Join Army.

Thousands of Germans and Jews in France flocked to recruiting stations today demanding to be accepted as army volunteers. At the same time the German Social Democratic party, which includes probably most of the politically active refugees here, issued an appeal to the German people to overthrow Hitler and announced that it was ranging itself on the side of the empires against the Nazi régime.

The manifesto, which was broadcast in German over the French radio, declared:

"The whole crushing weight of responsibility for the abominable crime against peace and humanity falls on Hitler and his régime. To destroy Hitler is the goal for which we will fight in common with all the democratic forces in Europe.

"Hitler and the new German militarism are one. The definite defeat of this militarism is the prior condition for peace and the reconstruction of Europe. We cry to the German people, 'Reconquer your liberty!' 'Destroy Hitler'!"

Promise Not to Bomb Cities.

A guarantee that the French forces will not bombard open cities or civilian populations so long as enemy forces do not do so was given tonight in response to President Roosevelt's appeal. Orders to this effect already have been given to the commanders of all French forces, it was said.

"These orders," a government statement said, "in particular exclude the bombardment of civilian populations and limit air bombardment to strictly military objectives.

"It goes without saying that the French government reserves the right to take recourse to any action it may consider appropriate if the enemy should not observe the restrictions to which the French government itself subjects the operation of its air forces."

Hurl Lie at Germany.

A communique flatly giving the lie to the German version of events leading up to the invasion of Poland and pinning the guilt for the present hostilities on Hitler was issued by Premier Daladier's office tonight. It said:

"This morning, without declaration of war, Germany attacked Poland at 6 o'clock and without prior warning Cracow was bombed. These facts give their true significance to the communique read in the night over the German radio and indicating a German-Polish peace plan.

"This can only be regarded as a gross eleventh hour mockery designed to cast on Poland the responsibility for an aggression methodically prepared by Germany, when the latter was on the point of committing the aggression.

"The German propositions never were officially or validly presented to Poland. The German government made them public as having been practically rejected even before Poland had knowledge of them."

POLISH CONSUL FLIES TO WASHINGTON FOR PARLEY WITH ENVOY

Dr. Waclaw Gawronski, Polish consul general, yesterday flew to Washington, D. C., for a conference with Count Jerzy Potocki, the Polish ambassador, and the consuls from New York and Pittsburgh. Dr. Gawronski was summoned to Washington while reports of the German invasion of his country were being received.

E. L. Baer, the German consul, said he had received no official word of the war from either Berlin or Washington. In response to questioning, Mr. Baer said there was a large number of German nationals in this country who were subject to Hitler's mobilization order, but that they had not received instructions to return to Germany for service.

Lewis Bernays, the British consul, could not be reached. At the consulate it was said no word on the Polish invasion had come from London. Other consulates, the Italian, Swedish, and Norwegian among them, said they also had received no official information from their governments.

POLAND TO FIGHT TO END, ASSERTS ITS AMBASSADOR

Washington, D. C., Sept. 1 (AP).—Count Jerzy Potocki, the Polish ambassador, said in a statement today that his nation "has been ruthlessly attacked by the armed forces of Germany," adding: "Poland stands firm. We shall fight back."

Count Jerzy Potocki.

Potocki said his country had lost military benefits by refraining from striking first against Germany, but explained "we desire to stand clean before history."

"We shall fight this war for Poland," the ambassador said, "for the sanctity of our homes, for the right to maintain our faith and our treaties. But we shall also fight to remove from Europe the spectre of force and intimidation; to assure to the free nations of the world the right to enjoy freedom and independence, the right to pursue their happiness in such a way as they themselves think fit."

Potocki declared that the first allegiance of all Americans of Polish extraction is to the United States.

Denmark Vows Neutrality; Bolsters Defense Forces

COPENHAGEN, Sept. 1 (AP).—Denmark tonight officially announced its intention of maintaining strict neutrality. The official statement explained it was based on a declaration signed in May, 1938, by Denmark, Finland, Iceland, Norway, and Sweden. The war ministry announced that five classes have been called to the colors, three of which will be sent home with their uniforms after a ten day period.

GERMAN PLANES POUR BOMBS ON POLISH CAPITAL

Fail to Destroy Bridges Over Vistula River.

Kutno station, seventy miles west of Warsaw.

The first aerial attack on Poland was reported at Puck, near Danzig, at 5:40 a. m. [11:40 p. m. Chicago time, Thursday night].

An official statement said three of the sixteen German planes shot down fell near Krakow and four others near Gdynia, Polish port on the same harbor as Danzig.

[In Helsingfors, Finland, yesterday unconfirmed reports were received that the German fleet had bombarded Gdynia.]

Awaits Word from Allies.

While the Polish communique declared the manner of the German invasion constituted "undoubted aggression," Poland awaited eagerly news from Britain and France, with whom she has mutual assistance agreements.

[Both Britain and France have sent ultimatums to Germany that unless the "aggressive action" ceased and German troops were withdrawn they would carry out their pledges to Poland.]

The impression prevailed here that Germany was making an effort to localize the war, but Poles were confident the western powers would come to their assistance.

President Ignace Moscicki summoned parliament for an extraordinary session beginning tomorrow. Parliament will pass emergency financial, economic, and military measures to run the nation during the undeclared war. President Moscicki also issued a statement to citizens of the republic reading:

"During the night the eternal enemy began aggressive activity against the Polish republic before God and history.

Fight Until Final Victory.

"At this momentous time I address all citizens, deeply convinced the entire nation will defend its freedom and independence.

"The entire Polish nation, blessed by God, will fight for the nation's righteous cause shoulder to shoulder with its army on the battlefield until final victory."

It was emphasized here that Poland so far was fighting only defensively to establish beyond all doubt that Germany is the aggressor. Foreign circles speculated that Germany might be seeking only a partial conquest, while driving to keep the western powers neutral.

Gas Attacks Feared.

Warsaw's radio was turned over completely to announcements about the war and instructions to civilians. Gas attacks were feared, but a majority of the citizens were without gas masks.

The American embassy and consulate were working at top speed to evacuate hundreds of Americans, most of whom are of Polish descent. All Americans had gas masks.

Radio appeals were made during the day for blood donors. Feverish, last minute air raid precautions were under way, with every house darkened tonight. Black paper covered windows and sandbags were piled against basement doors. These preparations indicated Warsaw anticipated a lengthy air siege.

An unidentified American woman and her son had a hair raising experience. Bombed at Katowice in the morning, they started by automobile for Warsaw, only to be bombed again at Radomskon and to arrive here just in time for the big afternoon raid.

In a special decree, Marshal Edward Smigly-Rydz was appointed commander in chief of all Poland's armed forces, and also was named as successor to President Moscicki in the event the presidency should become vacant before the war ends.

WAR WOULD BE LONG HOOVER SAYS; URGES KEEPING CLEAR OF IT

San Francisco, Cal., Sept. 1 (AP).—If a general European conflict develops it will be a long war, and Americans should support President Roosevelt in trying to keep us out of it, former President Herbert Hoover said tonight. In a broadcast address Hoover said:

"This is one of the saddest days that has come to humanity in 100 years. A senseless war seems inevitably forced upon hundreds of millions of people. It means the killing of millions of the best and most courageous of men who might contribute to human progress. It means the killing and starvation of millions of women and children. It means another quarter of a century of impoverishment to the whole world.

"It is likely to be a war of slow attrition. It is likely to be the most barbarous war that we have ever known. Whatever our sympathies. America must keep out. The President and congress should be supported in their every effort to keep us out."

WIREPHOTO FIRST TO GIVE PICTURES FROM WARFRONT

New York, Sept. 1 (AP).—Associated Press pictures sent from Berlin by radio today brought the first pictorial record of hostilities on the Polish front.

Even before complete word on the first day's developments had been received, Associated Press wirephoto papers had the first action picture from the front to reach America—a scene near Westerplatte showing German soldiers in an area where Polish sources reported Nazi troops were repulsed.

Shortly thereafter wirephoto transmitted the second action picture to reach this country—showing the scene as the German training cruiser Schleswig-Holstein bombarded Westerplatte. Berlin later reported capture of the Polish munitions depot there.

Simultaneously with the story of evacuation of 1,000,000 children from London early today, three cabled pictures moved over the wirephoto network showing the evacuation.

POPE SORRY HIS PLEA FOR PEACE WENT UNHEEDED

[Copyright: 1939: By the New York Times.]

VATICAN CITY, Sept. 1.—The outbreak of hostilities between Germany and Poland has caused intense sorrow at the Vatican, and it was indicated that Pope Pius XII. feels he has exhausted all his possibilities for intervention. Barring new developments, no further pronouncements are expected.

When the pontiff made his plea "in the name of God," and it went unheeded, there was nothing more to be done, Vatican quarters declared.

Today again was a busy day in which the pope saw many foreign diplomats as well as his secretary of state, Cardinal Luigi Maglione. He also had a forty minute talk with Msgr. Amlito Cicognani, nuncio to America, who will leave tomorrow for Washington, D. C.

'IT HAS TO BE,' IS BRITISH REACTION TO WAR PROSPECT

Women Resigned as Men Leave for Duty.

LONDON, Sept. 1 (AP) [Passed by British Censor].—With more than a million children already evacuated from the city and while the big men of Whitehall weighed the sword of war, the little men of London kissed their wives and sweethearts good-by today and prepared for war.

They packed their grips and turned from factory and office to battleship and dugout. The man in the street was ready to march, apparently fully conscious of what loomed ahead. There were crowds but they didn't cheer; there were soldiers but they didn't preen; slow, crowded trains, jammed army trucks in the streets, flags on nearly every building—all the machinery of the nation looking toward war, grimly.

"We know what it's like, all right," said a young lieutenant in the uniform of the royal air force. "We've heard all about it but we have to go. This is our fight now. He [Hitler] is bombing Warsaw. Think we want that to happen here?"

Home Life Disrupted.

The same feeling of resolution could be felt in the crowds ringing parliament to see the nation's leaders arrive. They didn't do much cheering, although Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain drew a few cries of "Keep at it, Nev."

The commonest sight in London was man and wife, he in uniform, she clinging to his arm as they threaded their way along the streets. With the departure of the children and men, many homes were left with only a mother.

But even the women in the squalid sectors of London showed the same resolution as the officers.

"Ah, they took my Liz and Alf this morning," said one old woman outside of parliament. "They'll take their dad tomorrer, but what odds? We got to have it. There's no peace with that fellow Hitler abaht."

Piles of sandbags grew and gangs of half-naked laborers were as common a sight as air raid precaution signs. Banks, public buildings, monuments and other structures were reënforced; work continued on air raid shelters in the parks.

Crowds Pour Out of Paris.

PARIS, Sept. 1 (AP).—An ever growing stream of perspiring humanity was pouring out of Paris this sweltering September night—possible eve of another general war.

It was the first time the public had taken seriously the government's repeated admonitions for all who could do so to leave.

Thousands of school children have been cleared out in the last couple of days, but their parents had held back, refusing to abandon hope. A few hours ago, however, they read their afternoon papers—and went home to pack. They didn't need the extra prodding of the sixth evacuation request that was printed today.

Most of them were leaving by railway, for many of those having automobiles were forbidden by requisition order to take them out of the city. The streets in front of the railway stations were clogged with hooting taxis. The sidewalks were piled high with luggage.

Most of them came by subway, however, for they were unable to get cabs and many would have been unable to pay for them even if they could have got them. They carried battered suitcases, knapsacks, and blankets into which they hastily had tossed a few belongings. Long, green cylinders containing gas masks dangled from the shoulders of many of them.

The dramatic scenes in the stations themselves were enough to make even unemotional persons wince. Young lovers had a long kiss of farewell. Girls sat alone in corners, trying hard to keep back their tears. Tired mothers slumped on cheap valises, too exhausted to pursue their offspring, scrampering merrily about.

One middle aged woman clung tightly and affectionately to the arm of her gray haired officer-husband. Neither of them spoke as they paced slowly up and down until train time. Suddenly she saw a speck on his khaki tunic and whisked at it vigorously.

In the city that the crowds were leaving behind, class lines virtually had been obliterated under the common danger. Grand ladies and charwomen conversed animatedly as equals.

The debut of what is probably the most tragic week-end since the start of the world war found a number of men, however, doing nothing but fishing. There was a reason. They will be mobilized tomorrow. So they thronged the quais along the Seine for one last fling of the rod.

ITALY TO REMAIN NEUTRAL UNLESS IT IS ATTACKED

Germany to Fight Alone, Cabinet Decides.

ROME, Sept. 1.—Italy will remain neutral unless attacked, it was decided by the council of ministers today. The council declared that the country's present military measures "are adequate."

No military initiative will be taken nor will any step be made that is not "simply precautionary." Germany fights alone.

The independent character of this move is shown by the fact that the official communique announcing it contained no mention of the Rome-Berlin axis nor of Fuehrer Hitler's declaration to the reichstag that he wanted no help.

Hitler repeated that statement in a cordial message to Premier Mussolini, thanking him for his political support and adding that there was no need now for Italy's military aid. The text of the letter was given out separately from the ministerial statement.

Text of Communique.

The council of ministers met at the Palazzio Viminale at 3 o'clock this afternoon and after less than an hour announced their decision. The communique reads:

"The council, having examined the situation brought about in Europe as a consequence of the German-Polish conflict, whose origin lies in the Versailles treaty, took note of all the documents presented by the foreign minister [Count Galeazzo Ciano], in which was shown the work done by Il Duce to assure Europe of peace based on justice,

"Gave its full approval to the military measures adapted to date, which have and will retain a purely precautionary character and are adequate for that purpose;

"Approved the dispositions of an economic and social character made necessary by the grave disturbances into which European life has entered;

"Declares and announces to the people that Italy will take no initiative whatever toward military operations;

"Paid the highest praise to the Italian people for the example of discipline and calm which it has as always given."

Hitler's Message to Duce.

Technically speaking Italy is acting strictly in accordance with Germany's wishes and along the axis line. Hitler formally recognizes that in his message to Mussolini.

"I thank you most cordially for the diplomatic and political aid which you have lately accorded to Germany and to her rights," his message said.

"I am sure of the ability to accomplish the task assigned us with the military forces of Germany. I therefore do not believe there will be need in the circumstances of Italian military aid. I thank you, Duce, also for all that you will do in the future for the common cause of Fascism and National Socialism."

According to diplomatic experts, Italy can serve Germany as much by remaining neutral as by joining the conflict. They say that now England and France must attack the apparently impregnable west wall.

TURK CHARGES ITALY BENEFITS GERMANY BY STAYING NEUTRAL

[Copyright: 1939: By the New York Times.]

ISTANBUL, Turkey, Sept. 1.—In today's edition of the newspaper Yenisabah, the informative Jahid Yalchin discussed the prospects of Italy's remaining neutral. He arrived at the conclusion that Italy's neutrality could be only a trick to assist her axis partner, Germany, by depriving England and France of an essential front against Germany. Some concrete proof would be needed of the good faith of a neutral Italy, he said, and this could be supplied by evacuation of Albania, which would show that Italy intended no mischief in the Balkans.

NEUTRALITY ACT BARS ARM SALES TO BELLIGERENTS

Washington, D. C., Sept. 1 (AP).—If President Roosevelt should put the neutrality law into effect, these provisions would become operative:

1. Sale of arms to any belligerent would be illegal.
2. American travel on ships of belligerents would be prohibited.
3. Belligerents would not be permitted to float loans in this country, although normal business credits could go on. [Most of the nations likely to be involved in a European war could not borrow in this country anyway because of the Johnson act prohibiting loans to defaulting debtors.]

TEAMWORK GIVES TRIBUNE READERS FIRST WAR NEWS

11 Editions Keep Up with History as It's Made.

Chicagoland had its first printed reports of the actual outbreak of the European war in yesterday's CHICAGO TRIBUNE. In eleven regular and special editions Tribune readers received up to the minute bulletins and news stories narrating the feverish activity in foreign countries. More than 1,200,000 copies, a new record in Tribune daily circulation, were sold.

This is an attempt to tell how the shifting news currents were charted and how the carefully coördinated news, mechanical, and circulation departments produced and distributed this accurate record of history as it was being made thousands of miles away.

A Story of Coöperation.

It is a story of coöperation, of enthusiastic work by many hundreds of employés. It is a story of organization, of facilities, of tools worthy of their men, and of men worthy of their tools.

Tribune correspondents had indicated during the day that tension was getting too severe for the armed peace of Poland and Germany to endure much longer. The appeasement efforts reported the day before had failed. Something sensational, the correspondents forecast, would happen before another dawn came to Chicago.

Department heads were asked to be ready for any emergency and to have ample forces waiting to handle extra editions and a heavy run of papers.

In regular routine the Metropolitan and two Home editions went to press during the evening. The news from Europe was gradually stepping up, and each edition carried news stories and the latest bulletins.

Hitler Order Is Beginning.

Midnight came, and with it the information that Hitler had issued a proclamation to his army. This was almost but not quite war, and the page 1 streamer that went in the first final edition was, "Hitler Order! Fight!" More bulletins. At 2:03 a. m. a new edition proclaimed, "War! Hitler Strikes!"

The headlines that followed were: "Hitler Takes Danzig," "War! Bomb Warsaw," and "Europe's War Is On." Each was in 144 point type, reserved for great news events. Eleven times THE TRIBUNE was made over, not merely one or two page changes, but in clusters of seven to forty pages. Special editions were rushed to press at 3:32, at 4:17, at 5:58 a. m. There was a complete new display of news at 7:18. There were additional changes at 8:10 and at 9:01 a. m.

Four times from midnight to 8 o'clock the front page was completely made over, with new stories, new headlines, and varied makeup.

Each edition went to press smoothly. There was no delay in the composing room, where a triple staff was on duty throughout the night. Stereotypers cast 3,286 plates during the night. This was 50 per cent above normal.

For the day the press capacity was lifted 33 per cent above normal. The work of stereotypers and pressmen was heavier because the paper was forty pages and had an advertising page in color. But the facilities were there and the man power was on hand, with the result that what editors, artists, engravers, and printers had prepared was handled with dispatch and enthusiasm. [As a sidelight, the white paper consumption was 832,000 pounds [416 tons] and ink consumption 13,150 pounds.]

Other Cities Get Late Editions.

Then came the work of the circulation department. Six times after midnight the city was covered with new editions. Even cities as far as 200 miles away received TRIBUNES printed after 8 a. m. The city had full developments up to 9 a. m.

Other departments not directly connected with printing and distribution had their part in passing on the news. It was estimated that between 2:30 a. m. and 5 p. m. yesterday the telephone bulletin service handled more than 50,000 calls through the new turret switchboard on Superior 0200. Some telephone operators were summoned to their stations before 3 a. m.; others reported voluntarily several hours early. It was all in keeping with the general spirit of doing a Tribune emergency job thoroughly. With the turret system one girl can read a bulletin simultaneously to fifteen to thirty persons.

NAZI ARMY ORDER

BERLIN, Sept. 1 (Friday) (A.P.)—Adolf Hitler today ordered the German army to meet force with force. His order of the day to the army read:

"The Polish state has rejected my efforts to establish neighborly relations, and instead has appealed to weapons. Germans in Poland are victims of a bloody terror, driven from house and home. A series of border violations unbearable for a great power show that the Poles no longer are willing to respect the German border.

"To put an end to these insane incitations, nothing remains but for me to meet force with force from now on. The German army will conduct a fight for honor and the right to the life of the resurrected German people with firm determination. I expect that every soldier, mindful of the great traditions of the eternal German military, will do his duty to the last.

"Remember always that you are representatives of the National Socialist great Germany. Long live our people and our reich!"

HITLER TO LEAD ARMY

BERLIN, Sept. 1 (AP).—Adolf Hitler declared today his intention to lead his forces at the front. A radio announcement today from army headquarters said that the German air force was in action over Polish territory. The announcement added that the army was counter-attacking all along the German-Polish frontier. It said the navy would take over protection of the Baltic sea.

BOMBING OF WARSAW

LONDON, Sept. 1 (AP).—It was officially reiterated today that Great Britain and France were determined to fulfill their obligations to Poland despite Adolf Hitler's reichstag speech. Reuters (British news agency) said it learned from Polish sources that Warsaw was bombed today. A semi-official statement issued in London called Germany's treatment of Poland uncivilized.

STATE OF SIEGE

PARIS, Sept. 1 (AP).—The cabinet decreed general mobilization and a state of siege today and called parliament for tomorrow. Experts estimated the call of troops would put eight million men under arms for France. It was reported that the German offensive is developing in three directions—from East Prussia, toward Silesia, and northward from Slovakia.

WASHINGTON MESSAGE

Washington, D. C., Sept. 1 (AP).—President Roosevelt today asked all potential participants in a European war to pledge themselves against bombarding civilian populations or unfortified cities from the air. The appeal was sent at 4:30 a. m. (Chicago time) to the governments of Great Britain, France, Italy, Germany, and Poland. Mr. Roosevelt requested an immediate reply.

NEWS FROM THE FRONT

War on Poland Begun, Hitler

GERMANY TAKES DANZIG;

WE'LL BE IN IT IF WE SELL GUNS, DECLARES BORAH

Poland Springs, Me., Sept. 1 (AP).—Senator William E. Borah of Idaho, ranking minority member of the senate foreign relations committee, tonight foresaw United States entry into the European conflict if the arms embargo provisions of the neutrality act should be repealed.

Declaring "we cannot enter the struggle in part and stay out in part," the 74 year old elder statesman said:

"Our boys would follow our guns into the treenches. We cannot safely be neutral and not neutral at the same time. We cannot hope to furnish arms and munitions for one side and, if the tide of battle turns against that side, escape the pressure of eventualities."

Americans Seek to Flee Germany; All Trains Filled

BERLIN, Sept. 1 (AP).—Americans remaining in Germany hurriedly sought any means today to leave. The American consulate, taking charge of evacuation measures, sought transporation first for wives and children of consular officials. Compartments were reserved for Sept. 6 on trains to Copenhagen. All trains until then were filled and connections for the Danish border were uncertain.

BRITAIN WARNS NAZIS: GET OFF POLAND'S SOIL

Nation Is Ready for War, Commons Told.

time], and may be called again on Sunday. The premier is expected to state to the house of commons whether any answer to the British ultimatum has been received. It was asserted here today that the ultimatum is expected to die, and that the British parliament and the French chamber of deputies then will issue simultaneous statements that both countries are at war in defense of Poland.

It was not clear whether this would mean retaliatory action, in the form of an attack on the German Siegfried line in the west.

A British war cabinet was expected to be sworn in tomorrow morning at a special meeting of the privy council. It is expected to include Winston Churchill, former first lord of the admiralty, minister of munitions, war and air, and chancellor of the exchequer, and probably two opposition leaders, Arthur Greenwood and Sir Archibald Sinclair, respectively, of the Labor and Liberal parties.

Appointment of the new ministers was provided for in an act passed by both houses of parliament last night. It was not disclosed whether Anthony Eden, former foreign secretary, would be in the new cabinet.

Parliament's approval last night of a special credit of 500,000,000 pounds [about 2 billion dollars] to finance hostilities marked the first important step in transferring Britain's financial machinery from a state of emergency to a full wartime basis.

Chancellor of the Exchequer Sir John Simon indicated that the government is preparing to introduce without delay a new budget imposing a further increase in taxation.

Other war preparations went steadily forward. After Count Edward Raczynski, Polish ambassador, invoked Britain's aid, King George VI. signed an order in council for general mobilization of the army, navy and air forces.

To expedite the mobilization, the government announced, all railways would be taken over by an executive committee set up to function under the ministry of transport. Orders that food prices be kept at their present levels also were issued.

Volunteers Fill Sandbags.

Local authorities were instructed to put warning systems into full operation.

Volunteers to fill sandbags were called for this afternoon, and thousands of girls rushed to help.

The first stage of London's four day evacuation seemed to have been accomplished without a hitch. By Monday more than 3,000,000 children and others will have been taken from congested cities of England and Scotland.

American embassy officials announced that there were about 7,500 Americans still in the British Isles, and that 5,000 of them want to get home. Cancelation of the French liner Ile de France and others has complicated the evacuation problem.

For the first time in history, an English king went to Downing street to call on the prime minister. King George VI. took this step, it was said, to hear chamberlain's report without requiring that the premier take the time to call at Buckingham palace.

A wisp of smoke was visible all afternoon above the chimneys of the German embassy, indicating that officials were burning important papers.

CANADA RUSHES ACTION TO JOIN ENGLAND IN WAR

Parliament Called; May Send Troops.

OTTAWA, Ont., Sept. 1 [Special].—Canada's parliament today was summoned to meet in special session next Thursday to authorize the dominion's entry into war on the side of Great Britain.

Canada's militia, naval and air forces were put on an active basis under proclamation of the war measures act of 1914. The government, under the act, also is given sweeping powers over trade, shipping, transportation, censorship, and the expropriation of private property for war purposes.

Five months ago Mackenzie King told the Canadian parliament:

"The idea that every twenty years this country should automatically take part in a war overseas for democracy—that a country which has all it can do to run itself should feel called upon to save periodically a continent that cannot run itself—seems to many a nightmare and sheer madness."

But things seem to have changed. Among other developments since that speech was made, there has been a visit to Canada by King George VI. and Queen Elizabeth of Great Britain.

What measures of "effective cooperation" with Britain the government will recommend to parliament are a secret, but many believe there will be provision for at least the nucleus of a volunteer expeditionary force.

Immediately available for Canadian defense are some 50,000 members of the militia and regular army. Offers of enlistment also are pouring in from Polish citizens of Canada and the United States and from European refugees in both countries.

Would Furnish Supplies.

The first task of Canada, however, is believed to be the maintenance of a steady flow across the Atlantic of food and essentials of war. The dovetailing of Canadian resources with British needs in such things as wheat and minerals already has largely been arranged.

Not discussed openly, but considered important, is Canada's possible function as a back door for the transmission to Britain of supplies from the United States of America. Five Lockheed bombers have come across the Canadian border in the last two days from California and more are expected.

Canadian ex-service men are seeking to convince their former American comrades that coöperation between the United States and Canada should be extended. Five groups, including the Canadian Legion and the Canadian Corps association, which between them represent all the organized veterans of the dominion, today declared that "the United States is charged with the responsibility of leadership in the defence of democracy."

NEW RUSSIAN ENVOY WISHES SUCCESS FOR CHINESE IN JAP WAR

[Copyright: 1939: By the New York Times.]

CHUNGKING, China, Sept. 1.—Presenting his credentials to President Lin Shen, Alexander Seminovitch Reanaouchkine, new soviet ambassador, today offered on behalf of his government "hearty wishes for complete victory of the Chinese nation in its struggle for national independence."

The new envoy said the "people of Russia are firmly convinced the struggle of the great Chinese nation against Japan will be crowned with success." He also commented on the close political, economic, and cultural coöperation of China and Russia, and said the recent conclusion of a commercial treaty between the soviet and China will contribute to still closer and more fruitful coöperation.

FATALLY STABBED IN FIGHT.

Edward Erving, 49 years old, colored, of 2970 Dearborn street, was stabbed to death yesterday in a fight in his room. Police said his assailant was James Howard, 56, also colored, of 2962 Wabash avenue.

TEXT OF SPEECH BY CHAMBERLAIN TO PARLIAMENT

Neville Chamberlain.

LONDON, Sept. 1 (AP) [via radio].—The remarks of Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain before parliament today are as follows:

"I do not propose to say many words tonight. The time has come when action rather than speech is required. Eighteen months ago I prayed that the responsibility might not fall on me to ask this country to accept the awful arbitrament of war. I fear that I am not able to avoid that responsibility.

"At any rate, I could not wish that conditions in which such a burden should fall upon me were clearer than they are today.

Declares Stand Is Clear.

"No man can say that the government could have done more to try and keep open the way for an honorable and equitable settlement of the dispute between Germany and Poland, nor have we neglected any means of making it crystal clear to the German government that if they insisted on using force again in the manner in which they have used it in the past, we were resolved to oppose them by force.

"Now that all the relevant documents are being made public, we shall stand at the bar of history knowing that the responsibility of this terrible catastrophe lies on the shoulders of one man. The German chancellor has not hesitated to plunge the world into misery in order to serve his own senseless ambitions.

Refers to White Paper.

"I would like to thank the house for the forbearance they have shown me on two recent occasions, in not demanding from me information which they recognize I could not give while these negotiations were still in progress.

"All the correspondence with the German government is being published in the form of a white paper which will be available to members while the house is sitting.

"I do not think it necessary for me to refer in detail now to these documents, which are already past history. They make it perfectly clear that our object has been to try to bring about discussions about the Polish-German dispute between the two countries themselves, on terms of equality, the settlement to be one which safeguarded the independence of Poland and which secured its due observance by international guarantees.

"There is just one passage from a recent communication of ours, dated Aug. 30, which I would like to quote, for it shows how easily the final clash might have been avoided if there had been the least desire on the part of the German government to arrive at a peaceful settlement.

Message to Hitler Given.

"In this document we state this:

"'This government fully recognizes the need for speed in the initiation of discussions. They share the apprehensions of the chancellor arising from the proximity of two mobilized armies standing face to face. They accordingly most strongly urge that both governments should undertake that during the negotiations no aggressive military movement will take place. His majesty's government feels confident that they can obtain such an undertaking from the Polish government if the German government would give similar assurances.'

"That telegram, which was repeated to Poland, brought an instantaneous reply from the Polish government, dated Aug. 31, in which they say that the Polish government is also prepared, on a reciprocal basis, to give a formal guarantee in the event of negotiations taking place, that Polish troops will not violate the frontier of the German reich, provided that a corresponding guarantee is given that there would be no violation of Poland by German troops.

No Reply From Hitler.

"We never had any reply from the German government to that suggestion. It was one which, if it had been followed, might have saved the catastrophe which took place this morning.

"In the German broadcast last night, which recited the sixteen points of the proposals which they had put forward, there occurred this sentence, 'In these circumstances, the reich government considered its proposals rejected.' I must examine that statement. I must tell the house what are the circumstances.

"To begin with, let me say that these proposals have never been communicated by Germany to Poland.

"On Aug. 29, in replying to a note we had sent to them, the German government said, among other things, that they would immediately draw up proposals for a solution, acceptable to themselves, and would, if possible, place these at the disposal of the British government before arrival of the Polish negotiators.

Britain Awaits Proposals.

"It will be seen by examination of the white paper that the German government have stated that they counted upon the arrival of a plenipotentiary from Poland to Berlin on Aug. 30, the following day.

"In the meantime, of course, we [Britain] were awaiting these proposals, but the next thing was that when our ambassador saw Herr von Ribbentrop, the German foreign secretary, he urged upon him that when these proposals were ready—for we had heard no more about them—he should hand them to the Polish ambassador for transmission to his government.

"Thereupon, reports our ambassador, in the most violent terms Herr Von Ribbentrop said he would never ask the ambassador to visit him. If, he added, the Polish ambassador asked him for an interview it might be different.

"The house will see this was on Wednesday night, which, according to the German statement of last night, is now claimed to be the final date after which no negotiation with Poland would be possible.

Britain Gets No Copy.

"It is plain, therefore, that Germany claims that Poland was in the wrong because she had not on Wednesday entered into negotiation with Germany on proposals of which she had never heard. Now, what of ourselves? On that Wednesday night, at the interview to which I have just referred, Herr von Ribbentrop produced a lengthy document which he read aloud in German at a rapid speed. Naturally, on this meeting, our ambassador asked him for a copy of the document.

"He replied that it was now too late, as the Polish representative had not arrived in Berlin at midnight, and so we never got a copy of those proposals. The first time we heard them was on the broadcast last night. These were the circumstances in which the German government said they considered their proposals were rejected.

"It is clear that their conception of negotiations was that on almost instantaneous demand, the Polish plenipotentiary should go to Berlin, where others had been before him, and should then be confronted with a statement of the demands to be accepted in their entirety or refused.

Premier Withholds Opinion.

"I am not pronouncing an opinion on the terms themselves, for I do not feel called upon to do so. The proper course in my view was that these proposals should have been put before the Poles, who should have been given time to consider them and to say whether in their opinion they did or did not infringe those vital interests of Poland which Germany had assured us she intended to respect.

"Only last night the Polish ambassador did see the German foreign secretary, Herr von Ribbentrop. Once again he expressed to him what indeed the Polish government had already said publicly, that they were willing to negotiate with Germany on an equal basis.

"What was the reply of the German government? The reply was that without another word German troops crossed the Polish frontier this morning at dawn and are since reported to be bombing open towns. In these circumstances there is only one course open to us."

[Here Chamberlain gave the text of the ultimatum handed to the Berlin government by the British and French ambassadors. See page 1.]

"We Are Ready."

"If the reply to this last warning is unfavorable, and I do not suggest it is likely to be otherwise, his majesty's ambassador is instructed to ask for his passport. In that case we are ready.

"Yesterday we took further steps toward the completion of our defense preparations. This morning we ordered complete mobilization of the whole of the navy, army and air force. We have also taken a number of measures which the house perhaps would not expect me to specify in detail.

"Briefly, they represent the final steps in accordance with a prearranged plan. These last will be put into force rapidly, and are of such a nature that they are deferred until war seems inevitable.

Refers to 1914.

"Steps have also been taken under powers conferred by the house last week to safeguard the position in regard to stocks and commodities of various kinds. The thoughts of many of us must inevitably at this moment be turning back to 1914.

"In comparison with our position then, how do we stand at this time? The answer is that all three services are ready and that the situation in all directions is far more favorable and reassuring than in 1914.

"For behind the fighting services we have built up a vast organization of civil defense under the scheme of air raid precautions.

Press to Issue Calls.

"There are, however, certain categories of service in which men are required immediately both for military and civil defenses. These will be announced in detail through the press and the British Broadcasting corporation. It is most satisfactory to observe that there is today no need to appeal in a general way for recruits, such as was issued by Lord Kitchener twenty-five years ago. That appeal has been anticipated by many months and men are already available.

"Now we must look for the future. It is essential, in face of the tremendous task which confronts us, more especially in view of our past experience in this matter, to organize our man power this time upon as methodical, equitable, and economical a basis as possible. We therefore propose immediately to introduce legislation directed to that end, and a bill will be laid before you which will amount to an expansion of the military training act.

To Call Men of 18 to 41.

"Under its operation all fit men between 18 and 41 will be rendered liable to military service if and when called upon. It is not intended at the outset that any considerable number of men, other than those already liable, will be called up, and steps will be taken to insure that men essentially required by industry will not be taken away.

"One other allusion before the close of my speech, and that is to record my satisfaction and the satisfaction of his majesty's government throughout these days of crisis to Signor Mussolini, who has been doing his best to reach a peaceful solution. It only remains to enter upon this struggle, which we so earnestly endeavored to avoid, with a determination to see it through to the end.

"We shall enter it with a clear conscience and with the support of the dominions and the British empire and the moral approval of the greater part of the world. We have no quarrel with the German people, except that they allowed themselves to be governed by a Nazi government. As long as that government pursues the method which it has so persistently followed during the last two years, there will be no peace in Europe.

"We should merely pass from one crisis to another and see one country attacked by another by methods which have now become familiar to us with their sickening technique. We are resolved that these methods must come to an end and if, after the struggle, we can reëstablish in the world the rules of good faith and the renunciation of force, then even the sacrifices entailed upon us will find their fullest justification."

WILLIAM H. BUSHEY DIES.

Dixon, Ill., Sept. 1 [Special].—William H. Bushey, 85 years old, resident of Dixon for the last twenty-eight years, died yesterday at the home of a relative in Wyoming, Ia., while on a visit. Funeral services will be held here Monday.

WAR IN EUROPE—HOW AMERICANS FEEL ABOUT IT

Great Majority Wants to Stay Out.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.

For three days this reporter has been going about the city interviewing people about the war situation. As in a sub-zero wave they are all thinking about the weather, so now they are thinking about war.

There was no selection of subjects for this opinion gathering, except to get a wide variety of occupations and to have the city well represented. The men who express themselves here are chiefly the "man in the street," the "forgotten man" of political oratory, who evidently prefers to remain forgotten by governments and war makers. He is the physical man whose emotions and labor carry on war, not the intellectual, the professional leader, or the dignitary.

Want to Stay Out of War.

A reading of these opinions indicates that a decided majority are determined to stay out of any war while maintaining a sturdy willingness to defend this country always. There is no fear abroad here, either as to expression of opinion or as to any results of war. In fact there is a bit of braggadocio in the attitude of the rough and ready fellows who would have to carry the guns.

War does not seem close to them. It is still in the stage of academic discussion, heard around every street corner, tavern, and barber shop.

There was no attempt to make this a scientific poll or to get a decision on one sharp question, but a feeling out of opinion on a wide scale. Those interviewed were chiefly small business men and workers. The places visited were Howard street on the north, 63d on the south, and Madison and Kedzie on the west.

What the People Say.

PLUMBER—They stole a lot of stuff off Hitler and he ought to get some of it back. "Get out and get it" is the way things are today. It is a kind of sickness. England stole a lot and got the natives to fight for her. You can't hold the Germans down. I notice that they use sewage to make gas to burn in big motors. They take a boiler you can wrap your arms around and heat a flat building with it. You have got to know how and they do.

TAILOR—This uncertainty was bad for business. People are not buying. I am not buying as I would. We must play safe and keep out.

PHOTOGRAPHER—I was in the world war and would not want to go to another. War is worse on nerves than on the body. Airplanes will be the deciding factor in another war. France and Great Britain are better prepared with supplies and war material. I do not see that we should do anything about it at this time.

PROFESSOR—I feel that the real issue is whether Europe and the world is to be ruled by force and bullying methods or by reason and democratic methods. It is plain that Hitler's promises are not worth the paper they are written upon. I am in favor of this country helping England and France with munitions and supplies. We take a chance and may get into the war that way but we should support them. The youth of this generation do not realize the terrible catastrophe of general war. We may lose our democracy but not irretrievably. Bertrand Russell argued that we should stay out even if England and France go under and remain the democratic hope of the world, but I think we should take a stand now.

MEDICAL STUDENT—We cannot remain isolated when 100 million people are at war. I do not know what we should do. We might have prevented this if the President's ideas on neutrality had been adopted. The isolationists are short-sighted.

VALET—I hope we do not go to war but if we do it will be just too bad for Hitler.

CCC BOY—I have been around in 23 states with CCC boys and I say that they would rather go to prison than go to war. What would we get out of it? We are hardly subsisting now and are not going to war to fight for the other fellow.

CONTRACTOR—I was in the last war and I am ready to go again. I think we have got to stop Hitler. War was a lot of fun after all. Men can adapt themselves to anything. A lot of men in the legion post say they will never go again, but I am different. I am ready and willing.

RETIRED BUSINESS MAN — All men have a right to peace and work and to be free of violence and being bullied around by others. Most people try to pass on something worth while as they live, but some never get beyond a certain low and brutal stage. Hitler has gone too far, but England and France can now stop him. We should sell to those that have money to pay and not mix up in it any farther. Wilson showed us the fallacy of that.

BUS DRIVER—No war if possible, but if they keep messing around with us we will get in. I hope the Poles stick tight and tell this fellow to go jump in the lake. If we go in again we will tear that place to pieces. We should have done it before and shown them what war is at home.

CAB DRIVER—We might as well stop him now or he will be over here. He might try to come up through South America, send a lot of Germans over here to vote his way. I don't like the idea of war but we might have to get in.

MOTORMAN—Let it come. He has got to be stopped sometime. The President has been doing his best to get us into it with his neutrality laws. War will mean prosperity for us but that kind is no good. Germany and Italy are no larger than Texas and Illinois. I guess we can take care of them.

GARAGE OWNER—We should sit tight and stay out. I am for real neutrality, but our government apparently is not. We could sell a lot of things in the event of war but we should not make our money by helping to kill others. I would bet money that Mussolini will not send out his men to be slaughtered for the Germans. Italy will switch as she did before. I do not regard the English as our friends, as they have not paid us even the interest on war debts while building new armaments.

CIGAR CLERK—Not worried a bit.

DECORATOR—Young folks today are just as scrappy as we were in 1914. I heard eight boys last night say they were ready to go to war for England. The Poles here are ready to go. Hitler would never have gotten this far if the neutrality ideas of the President had been carried out.

HOTEL CLERK — Interest in the war is high, but it is detached, not personal as yet. We will not become involved if we keep our heads and keep our boats off the seas. I was in the last war and am not for another.

WATCHMAKER — Whatever happens, we should stay out.

STRIKE PICKET—We got plenty of war over here.

BARTENDER—The people around here are afraid we will get into it, but they do not want to go.

GARAGE ATTENDANT — Believe me, brother, these American Legion and V. F. W. fellows are not going to let those fellows in Washington pull any funny stuff—they will get together and go down there. They know what it is all about and they don't want another war. I am German but we made a big mistake in the last war. We should have gone in and divided Germany up and let Great Britain and France rule it. That is what the German people wanted then.

BUSINESS EXECUTIVE — I have sent copies of yesterday's [Wednesday's] editorial page of THE TRIBUNE to the President and Secretary Hull. If every one could read that it might prevent war. What will happen here in the event of war is that we will lose our liberties, and accomplish nothing. What Hitler is seeking is German territory.

REAL ESTATE MAN—We ought to keep our nose out of it.

DOCTOR—I think we should help the democracies indirectly if there is war. If Germany controls England, France and this country, too, will go Fascist. Russia now holds the balance of power. I think we should have supported the President's neutrality plan.

CLERK—This situation will never be cleared up without a war and one in which we are likely to become involved. I am of age but ready to go against Hitler.

CLERK—I don't care if they blow their heads off—over there.

CLERK—I got a war to make a living.

DENTIST—I think we should keep out. Roosevelt is so egotistical that he might point us into it in order to get a third term. We can't do any more for democracy over there now than we did before. Some of my patients think Roosevelt is the greatest man in the world and should be dictator, others think as I do, that he is putting us into war. I have been in war and don't want another. I think that is the sentiment at my Legion post.

TELEGRAPH OPERATOR—I rather favor the idea that the Rhine is our first line of defense. It might mean a good deal to the United States if Hitler imposes the same terms on Great Britain that they imposed on him. Canada is close. It might even mean consolidation of the United States and Canada.

ELEVATOR OPERATOR — I feel sorry for those poor people over there. They will be mowed down. I give the United States six months to get in. I fight for the country I am in.

COSTUME DESIGNER — I can't bear the thought of it. I had three brothers in the last war. One was lost and never heard of, mother is still waiting for him to come home. Another lived for years with his lungs about gone. A third survived. Still I think the men must do their duty if this country is involved.

BARTENDER—I have a good hideout in the hills with a still. Let's listen to the baseball game.

LAUNDRESS—Men do a lot of dumb things. If they go into this war they deserve to be beaten. There should be no more wars. Women would run the world better.

LAWYER — There is no condition without a cause and Hitler is the result of a condition of mind of the German people. They would not stay conquered and fought their way back. But that will pass with another generation and they will come back to their Bibles and democracy.

SANITY JUDGE TUNES IN ON 'THE GREATEST MADMAN IN WORLD'

Los Angeles, Cal., Sept. 1 (AP).—Halting a psychopathic hearing today, Superior Judge Ben Lindsey told the crowded courtroom: "This court will now listen to the greatest madman in the world." Whereupon he turned his radio to a rebroadcast of Adolf Hitler's speech. Thirty minutes later he turned off the radio and resumed consideration of a score of psychopathic cases.

LACK OF MODERN FIELD ARTILLERY TROUBLES ARMY

Serious Weakness Shown in Recent Tests.

BY CAPT. M. M. CORPENING.

One of the many disturbing revelations of the inadequacy of the national defense which resulted from the recent Plattsburg maneuvers of the First army was the lack of modern field artillery. Lieut. Gen. Hugh A. Drum, commander of the First army, in his critique following the two week field test of National Guard and regular army divisions, emphasized this serious condition.

Artillery units of the first army went into the maneuvers woefully short of field pieces. Of 75 mm. guns they had only 300 when they should have had 480. They had only 84 of the 155 howitzers, when tables call for 432.

Three Armies Contemplated.

National defense plans call for the immediate organization of three field armies totaling about a million men in the event of a major emergency. These three armies would require 1,440 of the 75 mm. guns and 1,296 of the 155s. The war department says it has that number and it probably has. But the weapons are mainly those manufactured on world war orders and have not been modernized. Only a few are adapted to modern warfare.

The army's light field piece, the 75, was developed by the French in 1897 and still was considered the best of its kind in the world war. It was designed as the heaviest artillery piece which could be drawn by horses at a gallop. Ammunition also could be hauled by animal transport.

Artillery Tactics Changed.

When it was developed, artillery tactics called for firing at infantry troops with open sights and the ammunition used was largely shrapnel. The arc of fire was flat. But hardly had the gun come into use before the tactics of field artillery fire changed. Indirect fire was perfected. This enables a gun to be fired at an unseen target by direction of an observer and with the use of an auxiliary aiming point. Setting of the sights is computed mathematically and any error in laying the gun can be corrected by the observer who ordinarily is in communication with the battery commander by telephone.

But the flat trajectory of the 75 limited its usefulness. It was difficult to fire from concealment and to range upon targets located on reverse slopes. In the world war the solution was the use of 155 howitzers, which, though much heavier and difficult to transport in the field, had the necessary high trajectory and plunging fire.

Mounting Modernized.

Since the war the problem has been solved by modernization of the gun mounting. The trail, that portion of the gun which attaches it to the limber or tractor for movement, has been split. When the trail is grounded for firing, this split permits the gun to be elevated to give high trajectory fire. Previously the trail was in the way. The split trail also permits the gun to be swung farther from side to side without danger of its being tipped by recoil.

In addition, field artillery units are being mechanized. Tractors and trucks replace horses. Inflated rubber tires replace steel tires on the lighter pieces.

But only a few of the army's stock of world war relics have been so improved. Gen. George Marshall, chief of staff of the army, told the senate military affairs committee last February that only 140 of the army's 3,000 75s have been modernized. He also emphasized the considerable time necessary to effect the change.

Light Howitzer Needed.

A new weapon which modern warfare demands is a light howitzer which can be moved easily by truck, tractor, or horse. The American army has developed such a weapon but only a few test pieces have been built. It is of 105 mm. caliber and fires a 35 pound high explosive shell.

High explosive has proved more demoralizing than shrapnel. Indirect fire also has discouraged the use of shrapnel because of the difficulty of timing the burst, which must come at a precise elevation over the heads of troops to be effective. This would be especially difficult to untrained cannoneers.

The 155 howitzers also have been modernized by equipping them with pneumatic tires for higher road speeds and redesigning the mount to increase the range from 15,000 yards to about 25,000 yards. But they are not being turned out. Other developments are a 240 mm. howitzer and a 75 mm. howitzer. The new streamlined experimental division has a few of these, but there is no production under way.

Six wheel drive tractors are another step in modernization, but these too are lacking in any appreciable amount.

GERMANS MINE BALTIC AGAINST BRITAIN'S FLEET

Polish Radio Warns Subs of Danger Zones.

BY DONALD DAY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

RIGA, Latvia, Sept. 1.—Extensive mine fields appeared in the southern Baltic sea today, having been laid overnight by German mine layers. During Polish broadcasts code call numbers were used to warn British submarines in the Baltic of the danger areas.

Flanked by the friendly neutral coasts of Denmark, Norway, and Sweden in the waters of the Skagerrak, a powerful British fleet was reported ready tonight to make a dash into the Baltic sea, where an effort will be made, it was said, to help Poland retain control of its harbor at Gdynia and recover Danzig. Koenigsberg, on the East Prussian coast, also is threatened.

Latvia Calls Reservists.

Latvia today called up four year reservists into the army, together with a large number of noncommissioned officers and specialists. There was great excitement in the Baltic states when Germany's actions against Poland became known. All trains were crowded with returning vacationists. Although food is plentiful, housewives crowded stores buying provisions. A run started on savings banks.

Anti-German sentiment increased. Special protective measures were taken for German minorities.

Reports from Poland indicated heavy fighting was going on in the region around Mlawa, where a column of Germans was attempting to make a lightning dash toward Warsaw, which is only eighty miles from the East Prussian town of Willenberg.

Casualties Heavy.

Heavy fighting was reported, with large casualties on both sides. This region, through which I have traveled many times en route to Warsaw from Riga, has extremely poor roads. Poland considers these roads her first line of defense against the German army. The terrain is especially adaptable for maneuvering by the Polish cavalry.

One of Poland's most interesting weapons is a heavy machine gun mounted on a light buckboard drawn by two horses. It can easily traverse the sandy side roads, where heavy German machines may bog down.

There is a five mile stretch of swamp which is greatly assisting Polish resistance, it was reported. Further obstructing the German advance, it was said, were the old Russian fortresses at Pultusk and, twelve miles farther, the even stronger Serock batteries on the Bug river.

Lithuania tonight welcomed Poland's assurances that she intended to respect Lithuania's neutrality. Five Polish divisions which have awaited a German attack upon Vilna via Lithuania were moved farther south, to the vicinity of Grodno. Germany also has guaranteed Lithuanian neutrality.

DATA AND ERRATA

By CALEB

WHEN Napoleon cynically defined history as "A fable previously agreed upon"—or referred to Fame as "Falling in the front lines, and having your name misspelled in the despatches"—he depicted the inevitable error-penalty that accompanies all human manipulation of facts.

Historians, however earnestly motivated by impartiality, color their narratives with personal bias. Other historians, attempting to correct this bias of contemporaries or predecessors, impart to the interpretation their own coloration . . . and so, while extreme, the "Little Corsican's" pronouncement realistically reflects experience.

Errata, in a word, condition all our association with data. The true and the false are so subtly intermingled that no statement in any field remains "chemically free" of some falsity. The greatest biography never transmits an utterly true portrait of its subject. The greatest work of science cannot hope for final veracity; while it is yet on the press, fresh facts may swim into ken, or some old fact be controverted. The latest paragraph from any newsfront stales, even in its swiftest plane or wireless transit. Events are never final.

This self-evident presence of incompleteness and distortion in whatever communications pass, the wide world over, cautions us—if only for the sake of our own mental and spiritual integrity—to stay open-minded, unprejudiced, tolerant, receptive, friendly to all facts that correct, or restate, other facts.

Fortunately not only does the democratic principle of living, working and governing encourage this attitude; it emphasizes its preservative influence on private careers and public institutions. The moment an individual or a business imagines possession of "the whole truth" . . . in creeds, functions, policies, practices . . . downright danger is as imminent as tomorrow's dawn.

As in life, so in the realm of retailing, there can never be an hour's cessation from the process of keeping errata out of data. Constant laboratory tests and inspection checks control quality. Constant inventorying assures adequate stocks. Constant review of operations maintains right service. Constant study of personnel protects morale. Constant planning preserves teamwork. Constant awareness, in short, of where we can fail spotlights how we can succeed. . . For the truest truth in a whole world of error is that humanity means fallibility; and the best that any organization can hope is to hold this fallibility factor to a minimum.

TEXTS OF EXCHANGES

LONDON, Sept. 1 (AP) [via radio].—The White Paper setting forth the correspondence between Great Britain and the German government, as broadcast from London today, follows:

The letter of Aug. 22, 1939, from the prime minister [Neville Chamberlain] to the German chancellor [Adolf Hitler]:

"Ten Downing street, London, 22d of August, 1939:

"Your excellency: Your excellency will have already heard of certain measures taken by his majesty's government and announced in the press and on the wireless this evening.

"These steps have, in the opinion of his majesty's government, been rendered necessary by the military movements which have been reported from Germany, and by the fact that apparently the announcement of a German-soviet agreement is taken in some quarters in Berlin to indicate that intervention by Great Britain on behalf of Poland is no longer a contingency that need be reckoned with.

Stands by Pledge to Poles.

"No greater mistake could be made. Whatever may prove to be the nature of the German-soviet agreement, it cannot alter Great Britain's obligations to Poland which his majesty's government have stated in public repeatedly, and plainly said they are determined to fulfill.

"It has been alleged that if his majesty's government had made their position more clear in 1914 a great catastrophe would have been avoided. Whether or not there is any truth in that allegation, has majesty's government are resolved that on this occasion there shall be no such tragic misunderstanding.

"If the case should arise, they are resolved and prepared to employ without delay all forces at their command, and it is impossible to foresee the end of hostilities, once engaged.

"It would be a dangerous illusion to think that if war once starts it will come to an early end, even if the success on any one of the several fronts on which it will be engaged should have been secured.

Says People Don't Want War.

"Having thus made our position perfectly clear, I wish to repeat my conviction that war between our two peoples would be the greatest calamity that could occur. I am certain that it is desired neither by our people nor by yours, and I cannot see that there is anything in the questions arising between Germany and Poland which could not and should not be resolved without the use of force, if only a situation of confidence could be restored to enable discussions to be carried in an atmosphere different from that which prevails today.

"We have been and at all times will be ready to assist in creating conditions in which such negotiations could take place and in which it might be possible concurrently to discuss the wider problems affecting the future of international relations, including matters of interest to us and to you.

"The difficulties in the way of any peaceful discussion in the present state of tension are, however, obvious, and the longer that tension is maintained the harder will it be for reason to prevail.

"These difficulties, however, might be mitigated, if not removed, provided that there could, for an initial period, be a truce on both sides, and indeed on all sides.

Suggests Neutral Intermediary.

"If such a truce could be arranged, then at the end of that period, during which steps could be taken to examine and deal with complaints made by either side as to treatment of minorities, it is reasonable to hope that suitable conditions might have been established for direct negotiations between Germany and Poland upon issues between them [with the aid of a neutral intermediary if both sides should think that would be helpful].

"But I am bound to say that there would be slender hope of bringing such negotiations to a successful issue unless it were understood beforehand that any settlement reached would, when concluded, be guaranteed by other powers.

"His majesty's government would be ready if desired to make such contribution as they could to the effective operation of such guarantees.

"At this moment I confess I can see no other way to avoid a catastrophe that will involve Europe in war. In view of the grave consequences to humanity which may follow from the action of their rulers, I trust that your excellency will weigh with the utmost deliberation the considerations which I have put before you.

"Yours sincerely,
[Signed] "NEVILLE CHAMBERLAIN."

HITLER'S STATEMENT

The second document follows:

The communication from Herr Hitler to the prime minister, handed to his majesty's ambassador [Sir Nevile Henderson] on the 23d of August, 1939:

"Your excellency:

"The British ambassador has just handed to me a communication in which your excellency draws attention in the name of the British government to a number of points which in your estimation are of the greatest importance.

"1. I may be permitted to answer your letter as follows: Germany has never sought conflict with England and has never interfered in England's interests. On the contrary, she has for years endeavored, although unfortunately in vain, to win England's friendship. On this account we recently assumed in a wide area of Europe the limitations of her own interest which from a national military point of view it would have been otherwise very difficult to tolerate.

Points to "Certain Interests."

"2. The German reich, however, like every other state, posseses certain definite interests which it is impossible to renounce. These do not extend beyond the limits of the necessities laid down by former German history and deriving from vital economic prerequisites. Some of the questions held and still hold a significance both of a national political and psychological character, which no German government would be able to ignore. To these questions belong the questions of Danzig and the connected problem of the corridor. . . .

"3. Germany was prepared to settle the questions of Danzig and of the corridor by the method of negotiation on the basis of a proposal of truly unparalleled magnanimity. The allegations disseminated by England regarding a German mobilization against Poland, the assertion of aggressive ambitions toward Rumania, Hungary, etc., as well as the so-called guaranteed declaration which was subsequently given, had, however, dispelled Polish inclination to negotiate on the basis of this kind which would have been reasonable for Germany, also.

Terrorism Charged.

"4. The unconditional assurance given by England to Poland that they would render assistance to that country in all circumstances regardless of the causes from which a conflict might spring, could only be interpreted in that country as an encouragement henceforth to unloosen, under cover of such a charter, a wave of appalling terrorism against the one and a half million German inhabitants living in Poland.

"The atrocities which since then have been taking place in that country are terrible for the victims, but intolerable for a great power such as the German reich. . . .

"Poland has been guilty of numerous breaches of her obligations towards the Free City. . . .

"5. The government of the German reich, therefore, recently caused the Polish government to be informed that it was now prepared, possibly, to accept this development of affairs; that it will not tolerate further the addressing notes in the character of ultimata to Danzig; that it will not tolerate a continuance of the persecution of the German minority; that it will equally not tolerate the extermination of the Free City of Danzig by economic measures — in other words, the destruction of the population of Danzig by a kind of customs blockade, and that it will not tolerate any longer the occurrence of further acts of provocation between it and the reich.

"Apart from this, the questions of the corridor and Danzig must and shall be solved.

"6. Your excellency informs me in the name of the British government that you will be obliged to render assistance to Poland in any such case of intervention on the part of Germany. I take note of this statement of yours and assure you that it can make no change in the determination of the reich government to safeguard the interests of the reich as stated in paragraph 5 above. Your assurance to the effect that in such an event you anticipate a long war is shared by myself. Germany, if attacked by England, will be found prepared and determined.

"7. The German reich government has received information to the effect that the British government has the intention to carry out measures of mobilization which, according to the statement in your own letter, are clearly directed against Germany alone. This is said to be true of France as well. Since Germany has never had the intention of taking military measures other than those of a defensive character against England or France, and as has already been emphasized, has never intended and does not in the future intend to attack England or France, it follows that this announcement as confirmed by you, Mr. Prime Minister, in your own letter, can only refer to a complicated act of menace directed against the reich. I, therefore, inform your excellency that in the event of the military announcements being carried into effect, I shall order immediate mobilization of the German forces.

"8. The question of the treatment of European problems on a peaceful basis is not a decision which rests on Germany, but primarily on those who, since the crime committed by the Versailles dictate, have steadily and consistently opposed any peaceful revision. Only after a change of spirit on the part of the responsible powers can there be any real change in the relationship between England and Germany.

"I have all my life fought for Anglo-German friendship. The attitude adopted by British diplomacy, at any rate up to the present has, however, convinced me of the futility of such an attempt. Should there be any change in this respect in the future, nobody could be happier than I.

[Signed] "ADOLF HITLER."

HITLER'S ORAL STATEMENTS

The third document was a translation of a text of a verbal communication made to Sir Nevile Henderson by Hitler in his interview on Aug. 25:

"'Assertions that Germany expects to conquer the world are ridiculous,' Hitler said. 'The British empire embraces forty million square kilometers; Russia nineteen million kilometers; America nine and a half million square kilometers, whereas Germany embraces less than eight hundred thousand kilometers. It is quite clear who desires to conquer the world.'

Calls "Provocations Intolerable."

"The Fuehrer makes the following communication to the British ambassador:

"'1. Poland's actual provocations have become intolerable. It makes no difference who is responsible. . . .

"'In the preceding night there have been further twenty-one new frontier incidents. On the German side the greatest discipline has been maintained. All incidents have been provoked from the Polish side. Furthermore, commercial aircraft have been shot at. If the Polish government stated it was not responsible, it showed it was no longer capable of controling its own people.

"'2. Germany was in all the circumstances determined to abolish these Macedonian conditions on her own frontier, and what is more, to do so in the interest of quiet and order, but also in the interest of European peace.

"'3. The problem of Danzig and the corridor must be solved. The British prime minister had made a speech which was not in the least calculated to induce any change in the German attitude. At the most, results of this speech could be a bloody and incalculable war between Germany and England. Such a war would be bloodier than that of 1914 to 1918. In contrast to the last war, Germany would no longer have to fight on two fronts. Agreement with Russia was unconditional and suggested a change in foreign policy with the reich which would last a very long time. Russia and Germany would never again take up arms against each other. Apart from this, the agreements reached with Russia would also render German security for the long possible period of war.'

"The Fuehrer said he had always wanted Anglo-German understanding. War between England and Germany could at best bring some profit to Germany but none at all to England.

"The Fuehrer declared that the German-Polish problem must be solved and will be solved. He is, however, prepared and determined after the solution of this problem to approach England once more with a large and comprehensive offer. He is a man of great decisions and in this case also he will be capable of being great in his action.

Offers Pledge to Britain.

"He said he accepts for the British empire and is ready to pledge himself personally for its continued existence, and to place power of the German reich at its disposal if:

"[1] His colonial demands, which are limited and can be negotiated by peaceful methods, are fulfilled and in this case he is prepared to fix the longest time limit.

"[2] His obligations toward Italy are not touched; in other words, he does not demand that England give up her obligations toward France and similarly for his own part, he cannot withdraw from his obligations towards Italy.

"[3] He also desires to stress the irrevocable determination of Germany never again to enter into conflict with Russia. The Fuehrer is ready to conclude agreements with England, which, as has already been emphasized, would not only guarantee the existence of British empire in all circumstances as far as Germany is concerned, but also, if necessary, an assurance to the British empire of German assistance regardless of where such assistance should be necessary.

"Not Interested in West."

"The Fuehrer would then also be ready to accept a reasonable limitation of armaments which corresponds to the new political situation and which is economically tolerable. Finally the Fuehrer renewed his assurances that he was not interested in western problems and that frontier modification in the west does not enter into consideration. The western fortifications which have been constructed at the cost of billions

NAZIS INSIST BRITAIN WAS GIVEN A COPY OF 16 POINT PEACE PLAN

BERLIN, Sept. 1 (AP).—German officials tonight heatedly denied Polish and British charges that Warsaw had had inadequate or no notice of Fuehrer Hitler's 16 point offer of adjustment of the dispute with Poland.

Official quarters were particularly angered by English radio reports that Britain did not receive Hitler's program for transmission to Poland.

It was emphatically stated that it was given to Sir Nevile Henderson, the British ambassador, and that the German foreign office waited two days for a Polish representative to come and get his copy.

BRITAIN REVEALS CORRESPONDENCE WITH GERMANY

Diplomatic Notes Told in White Paper.

were the final reich frontier on the west.

"If the British government would consider these ideas, a blessing for Germany and also for the British empire might result.

"If it rejects these ideas, there will be war. In no case would Great Britain emerge stronger. The last war proved this."

CHAMBERLAIN'S REPLY

The reply of his majesty's government, dated Aug. 28, 1939, to the German chancellor's communications of Aug. 23 and 25, 1939:

"1. His majesty's government have received the message conveyed to them from the German chancellor by his majesty's ambassador in Berlin and have considered it with the care which it demands. . . .

"2. The chancellor's message deals with two groups of questions: Those which are matters now in dispute between Germany and Poland and those affecting the ultimate relations of Germany and Great Britain. In connection with these last, his majesty's government observe that the German chancellor has indicated certain proposals which are subject to the one condition he will be prepared to make to the British government for a general understanding. These proposals are, of course, stated in very general form and would require a closer definition, but his majesty's government is fully prepared to take them, with some additions, as subjects for discussion and they would be ready, if differences between Germany and Poland are peacefully composed, to proceed so soon as practicable to such discussion with a sincere desire to reach an agreement.

Speaks of Britain's Pledge.

"3. The condition which the German chancellor lays down is that there first must be a settlement of differences between Germany and Poland. As to that, his majesty's government entirely agree. Everything, however, turns upon the nature of settlement and method by which it is to be reached. On these points, the importance of which cannot be absent from the chancellor's mind, his message is silent and his majesty's government feel compelled to point out that an understanding upon both of these is essential to achieving further progress. The German government will be aware that his majesty's government have obligations to Poland by which they are bound and which they intend to honor. . . .

"In the opinion of his majesty's government, a reasonable solution of the differences between Germany and Poland could and should be effected by an agreement between the two countries on lines which would include the safeguarding of Poland's essential interests, and they recall that in the speech of 28th April last, the German chancellor recognized the importance of these interests to Poland. But, as was stated by the prime minister in a letter to the German chancellor of 22d August, his majesty's government consider it essential for the success of the discussions which would precede agreement that it should be understood beforehand that any settlement arrived at would be guaranteed by the other powers. His majesty's government would be ready if desired to make their contribution to the effective operation of such a guarantee.

Urges Direct Discussions.

"In the view of his majesty's government it follows that the next step should be an initiation of direct discussions between the German and Polish governments on a basis which would include the principles stated above, namely, safeguarding of Poland's essential interests and securing of a settlement by an international guarantee. They have already received definite assurance from the Polish government that they are prepared to enter into discussions on this basis and his majesty's government hope the German government would for her part also be willing to agree to this course. . . .

"5. His majesty's government agree with the German chancellor that one of the principal dangers in the German-Polish situation arises from reports concerning the treatment of minorities. The present state of tension with its concomitant frontier incidents, reports of maltreatment, and inflammatory propaganda is a constant danger to peace. It is manifestly a matter of the utmost urgency that all incidents of the kind should be promptly and rigidly suppressed and that unverified reports should not be allowed to circulate in order that time may be afforded without provocation on either side for a full examination of the possibilities of settlement. His majesty's government are confident that both governments concerned are fully alive to these considerations.

Offers to Aid Solution.

"6. His majesty's government have said enough to make their own attitude plain in the particular matters at issue between Germany and Poland. They trust that the German chancellor will not think that because his majesty's government are scrupulous concerning their obligations to Poland that they are not anxious to use all their influence to assist achievement of a solution which may commend itself both to Germany and to Poland. That such a settlement should be achieved seems to his majesty's government essential not only for reasons directly arising in regard to a settlement itself, but also because of wider considerations of which the German chancellor has spoken with such conviction.

"7. It is unnecessary in the present reply to stress the advantage of a peaceful settlement over a decision to settle the questions at issue by force of arms.

"On the other hand, his majesty's government, noting with interest the German chancellor's reference in the message now under consideration to the limitation of armaments, believe that if a peaceful settlement can be obtained the assistance of the world could confidently be anticipated for practical measures to enable the transition from preparation for war to the normal activities of peaceful trade to be safely and smoothly effected.

"8. A just settlement of these questions between Germany and Poland may open the way to world peace. Failure to reach it would ruin hopes of better understanding between Germany and Great Britain and would bring the two countries into conflict and might well plunge the whole world into war. Such an outcome would be a calamity without parallel in history.

Speaks of Will to Friendship.

The reply of the German chancellor to the communication of Aug. 28 from the British government. The reply was handed Henderson by Hitler during the evening of Aug. 29:

"The British ambassador in Berlin has submitted to the British government suggestions which I felt bound to make in order—

"1. To give expression once more to the will of the reich government for sincere Anglo-German understanding, coöperation and friendship.

"2. To leave no room for doubt as to the fact that such understanding could not be bought at the price of renunciation of vital German interests, let alone abandonment of demands which are based as much upon common human justice as upon national dignity and honor of our people. . . .

"Since autumn of the past year and on the occasion in March, 1939, there were submitted to Polish government proposals both oral and written which, having regard to friendship then existing between Germany and Poland, offered the possibility of solution of questions in dispute acceptable by both parties. The British government are aware that the Polish government saw fit last March finally to reject these proposals. At the same time they used this rejection as a pretext or an occasion for taking military measures which since have been continuously intensified.

Charges Threats by Poles.

"In the middle of last month Poland was in effect in a state of mobilization. This was accompanied by numerous encroachments in Danzig due to the instigation of Polish authorities; threatening demands in the nature of ultimata, varying only in degree, were addressed to that city. A closing of frontiers, at first in the form of a measure of customs policy but extended later in a military sense affecting also trafic and communications, was imposed with the object of bringing about political exhaustion and economic destruction to this German community.

"To this were added barbaric actions of maltreatment which cry to heaven and other kinds of persecution of the large German national group in Poland and which extended even to the killing of many resident Germans or to their forcible removal under the most cruel conditions. This state of affairs was unbearable for a great power. It now forced Germany, after remaining a passive onlooker for many months, in her turn to take necessary steps for safeguarding of justified German interests. . . .

Demands Treaty Revision.

"Demands of the German government are in conformity with the revision of the Versailles treaty in regard to this territory, which always has been recognized as being necessary: viz. the return of Danzig and the corridor to Germany and the safeguarding of the existence of German national group in territories remaining to Poland.

"The German government note with satisfaction that the British government also are in principle convinced that some solution must be found for the new situation which has arisen. . . .

"While the British government may still believe that these grave differences can be resolved by way of direct negotiations, the German government unfortunately can no longer share this view as a matter of course. For they have made an attempt to embark on such peaceful negotiations, but instead of receiving no report from the Polish government they were rebuffed by the sudden introduction of measures of military character. . . .

"The German government have never had any intention touching Poland's vital interests or questioning existence of an independent Polish state. The German government, accordingly in these circumstances, agree to accept the British government's offer of their good offices in securing the despatch to Berlin of a Polish emissary with full powers. They count on arrival of this emissary on Wednesday, Aug. 30, 1939.

"The German government will immediately draw up proposals for a solution acceptable to themselves and will, if possible, place these at the disposal of the British government before the arrival of the Polish negotiator."

TELEGRAM TO HENDERSON

A telegram from the British government to Sir Nevile Henderson was sent at 2 a. m. Aug. 30, 1939:

"We shall give careful consideration to the German government's reply, but it is, of course, unreasonable to expect that we can produce a Polish representative in Berlin today, and the German government must not expect this.

"It might be well for you at once to let this be known in the proper quarters through appropriate channels. We hope you may receive our reply this afternoon."

A message was sent through Henderson from Chamberlain to Hitler at 2:45 p. m. Aug. 30, 1939:

"We are considering the German note with all urgency and shall send an official reply later in the afternoon.

"We are representing at Warsaw how vital it is to reinforce all instructions for avoidance of frontier incidents and I would beg you to confirm similar instructions on the German side. . . ."

A telegram from the British government to Henderson was sent at 5:30 p. m., Aug. 30.

"In informing the German government of renewed representations which have been made in Warsaw, please make it clear that the Polish government can only be expected to maintain an attitude of complete restraint if the German government reciprocate on their side of the frontier, and if no provocation is offered by members of the German minority in Poland. Reports are current that the Germans have committed acts of sabotage which would justify sternest measures."

Urges Normal Procedure.

A telegram from the British government to Henderson was sent at 6:50 p. m., Aug. 30.

"We understand that the German government is insisting that a Polish representative with full powers must come to Berlin to receive German proposals.

"We cannot advise the Polish government to comply with this procedure, which is wholly unreasonable.

"Could you not suggest to the German government that they adopt the normal procedure, when their proposals are ready, of inviting the Polish ambassador to call and of handing proposals to him for transmission to Warsaw and of inviting suggestions as to the conduct of negotiations. . . ."

Awaits Hitler's Proposals.

The British government's reply to Hitler's communication of Aug. 29 was handed to Joachim von Ribbentrop, German foreign minister, at midnight, Aug. 30. It said it was awaiting Germany's proposals for a solution. The British government also suggested a temporary modus vivendi might be arranged to prevent occurrence of incidents tending to render German-Polish relations more difficult.

Following is the translation of a message which was communicated to Henderson by the state secretary:

"His majesty's government informed the German government in a note dated Aug. 28, 1939, of their readiness to offer their mediation towards direct negotiations between Germany and Poland over problems in dispute.

"In a reply dated Aug. 29 the German government declared themselves ready to receive a personage appointed by the Polish government up to the evening of Aug. 30 with the proviso that the latter was in fact empowered not only to discuss but to conduct and conclude negotiations. . . .

"Instead of a statement regarding arrival of an authorized Polish personage, the first answer the government of reich received to their readiness for an understanding was news of the Polish mobilization. . . .

"The Fuehrer and the German government have . . . waited two days in vain for the arrival of a Polish negotiator with plenary powers.

"In these circumstances the German government regard their proposals as having this time, too, been to all intents and purposes, rejected. . . ."

At this point the German government presented its sixteen-point, proposing the return of Danzig to the ment presented its sixteen points, proreich and the disposition of the Polish corridor and other disputed areas through plebiscites or negotiation.

Telegram Made Public.

A telegram from the British government to Henderson dispatched at 11 p. m., Aug. 31, said:

"Please inform the German government that we understand that the Polish government are taking steps to establish contact with them through the Polish ambassador in Berlin.

"Please also ask them whether they agree to the necessity for securing an immediate provisional modus vivendi as regards Danzig. [We have already put this point to the German government.] Would they agree that M. Burckhardt [League of Nations commissioner to Danzig] might be employed for this purpose if it were possible to secure his services?"

The reply to the above telegram, received in the early hours of Sept. 1, 1939:

"Written communication was made to the ministry of foreign affairs early this morning in the sense of paragraph two of your telegram."

The white paper explained that during the afternoon of Aug. 31 the Polish government would authorize their ambassador to inform the German government that Poland had accepted British proposals for negotiations.

The Polish ambassador in Berlin [Josef Lipski] was not received by Von Ribbentrop until the evening of Aug. 31. After this interview, the German government broadcast their proposals. Lipski tried to establish contact with Warsaw but was unable to do so because all means of communication between Poland and Germany had been closed by the German government.

GERMANY SEEKS PACT BETWEEN RUSSIA AND JAPAN

Immense Difficulty Seen Ahead for Hitler.

MOSCOW, Sept. 1 (AP).—Germany was reported unofficially tonight to be making feverish diplomatic efforts to arrange a nonaggression pact between soviet Russia and Japan — which are engaged in an unofficial war on the Manchukuo-Outer Mongolia frontier.

Immense difficulties obviously lie in the way of such an agreement, but German diplomats were said, nevertheless, to be trying desperately to engineer such a pact.

On another diplomatic front informed sources said they were skeptical of rumors from abroad that Russia and Germany would enter a military alliance as sequel to their own nonaggression pact.

Reports Defeat of Japs.

The suggestion of a nonaggression pact between Japan and Russia seemed a bit distant in view of a Tass [soviet telegraphic agency] report that Russian forces had "liquidated" masses of Japanese troops fighting on the eastern border.

The Tass communique asserted soviet and Outer Mongolian troops had annihilated Japanese and Manchukuan army commands, compelling the remainder of those forces to "adopt defensive operations."

The report said that between Aug. 8 and 27 the Japanese had lost 164 planes compared with 16 lost by the soviet-Mongolian forces.

Tass said 31 Japanese planes were shot down Aug. 30 and that the Japaness-Manchukuans were moving up heavy reinforcements, indicating that severe fighting still was continuing.

Soviet Parliament Adjourns.

The formation of the new moderate Japanese cabinet also, it was suggested, would present more complications for German diplomats seeking nonaggression ties between Russia and Japan.

The extraordinary session of the soviet parliament, which last night ratified the nonaggression pact with Germany, concluded its work tonight.

GERMANY BARS CORRESPONDENTS FROM WAR FRONT

BERLIN, Sept. 1 (AP).—There will be no regular foreign war correspondents at the front in Germany's undeclared war on Poland, the army command announced today.

It was announced that groups of newsmen would be taken from Berlin from time to time to such points as Danzig, Gleiwitz, Schneidemuehl or wherever activities are interesting.

The correspondents will be equipped with gas masks and steel helmets and conducted to the front for short periods.

THE WAR THE WORLD FEARED.

The morning headlines told the story the world has dreaded to read. Europe's war is on. Hitler answered the question whether he would take the one step which would be fatal. Would he go over the brink? He has and Europe now is confronted with the event which many of its wise men said it could not survive.

Europe will survive. Its germ of life has resisted its history and its history has been a record of great wars growing in intensity of passion, employing increasing millions of men and weapons of increasing destructiveness. Physically the survivors will be alive. Culturally and intellectually they will have preserved their heritages. But that will not tell the story.

When this misery has run its course there will be new battle mementos on old battlefields long familiar to European armies. There will be new hospitals filled with new victims permanently maimed. The earthly scars will slowly be smoothed out. The grass will be planted, much of it on new graves. Masons and carpenters will repair buildings and a new generation will be started. This much we are vouchsafed by experience and history.

From the memories of the world war we can derive certain other anticipations and previews. Some of the peoples, whether victorious or defeated, will be reduced to despair. Politically they may be exposed to savage revolutions following a destructive peace. Their economy will be broken down, their productive institutions ruined. They will be the prey of melancholy and want. Their wounds will not heal quickly and they will recover but slowly under the depressing influences of skepticism regarding human sanity and doubt of an ultimate good.

What will emerge as dominant we cannot know. Hitler has released more than the forces which prevail in war. He has released also forces which must be reckoned with when the better armies have imposed the will of some nations upon others and have determined who is master and who is servant. Hitler may have pronounced the death of the totalitarian states. He may have pronounced the death of two great empires and the subjugation of Europe to the rule of the Nazis. He may have ushered in the Red revolution. He may have pronounced the extinction of European bourgeois society and the death of a social order.

The survivors will be prostrated with debts which cannot be paid. Their available wealth will be destroyed. Some peoples may go under the yoke. Their masters may themselves be brutalized by the conditions they impose upon the people they defeat. We cannot refuse any of these thoughts. Their ferocious brutalities are sustained by the picture of Russia from 1918 until now, by the post-war experiences of starving Germany and its civil wars, of Italy succumbing to Fascism, and of the smaller nations struggling between Red and black dictatorship. Europe has every reason to fear the peace as much as it fears the war.

Could it have been avoided? One answer was contained in the prophetic cartoon published by the London Herald twenty years ago, when the Versailles treaty was signed, in which Clemenceau, leaving the council room, stopped to remark: "Strange, but I thought I heard a child crying." Hidden from the peacemaker's view by a pillar was the class of 1940. It is useless at this time to review the intents and the consequences of that peace. The time to revert to this subject will come when other peacemakers seek to impose another peace upon countries they have brought to submission. If there are admonitions, that will be the time to call them back to life.

Hitler's statement of the immediate cause might have seemed reasonable and convincing, but the world has a poor opinion of his good faith. His voice has echoes in Austria and in Czecho-Slovakia. It has an echo in Russia. The echo accuses him of perfidy which he justifies as a means to an end. Perfidy is not a strange element in international relations. Hitler, however, has too much rejoiced in it. "Munich" is a word new within the last year in diplomatic language. Hitler has given it the significance and meaning it has. It spells betrayal.

Another Germany, governed by less brutal men, might have presented a good cause to world opinion and have had the weight of that opinion on its side. But the Germany which made the demands is the Germany which persecuted the Jews, oppressed people because of race and religion, denied them the free exercise of their beliefs in their cathedrals, churches, and synagogues, imprisoned their priests, ministers, and rabbis, denied freedom of opinion and expression, made the purge and the concentration camp instruments of domestic policy, glorified force and might, and ridiculed liberty. These vices obscure the faults and errors of the opposition. They give Germany's enemies the glamor of a crusade against evil, against oppression, and tyranny.

The American people have sympathy for all the other peoples who must suffer if this war spreads as it seems inevitably destined to do. The sympathy may be involved in a great deal of emotionalism against which a caution should be uttered. Twenty-five years ago in August a terrible war was raging because imperialistic programs had clashed in a corner of Europe. As that war progressed its hideousness produced a hope, nowhere stronger than in the United States, that it might be a war to end war, to make people free, and to give them hope. With that illusion America entered the conflict. How can we have the illusion again?

NOT OUR WAR.

This is not our war. We did not create the Danzig situation. We did not sign the treaty of Versailles. The peace America made with Germany did not contain another war. The United States did not take spoils. It did not divide up colonies. It had nothing to do with the remaking of Europe which sowed war on nearly every frontier of the new map.

This is not our war because we refrained from doing the things which would cause it. France and Great Britain are not weak nations. They are great empires. Their pooled resources are enormous. They have allies which joined them in self-interest. They can draw on the man power of Africa and Asia. Their combined fleets control the seas. They are not amateurs in war. They attained their world position by fighting.

They have adopted policies which brought them into conflict with Germany, Italy, and Japan. Their statesmen are intelligent. They could count the costs and weigh the risks. It would not be a new experience for these empires to fight for what they have. Their histories are full of this.

America could not influence their decisions or control their policies. America is not responsible for the consequences. The duty of the United States government is to the people of the United States. Europe has had crises before and will have them again. This is not our war. We should not make it ours. We should keep out of it.

We may think their side is the better side. But it is their war. They are competent to fight it. Great pressure will be brought to bear on the United States. Americans will be told that this is their fight. That is not true. The frontiers of American democracy are not in Europe, Asia or Africa.

FINANCIAL IMPACT OF THE WAR.

From time to time in the last three weeks it has been given out at Washington that the government was making preparations to prevent a collapse in stock prices when war broke out. The impression has been given that Washington believed that with the firing of the first gun there would be a general rush to sell securities and that the government would have to intervene to keep the liquidation orderly.

When the market opened yesterday Germany had taken Danzig, invaded Poland, and bombed the Polish capital. There was nothing, however, which remotely resembled panic in the trading on the security exchange. Prices of stocks in New York were off 5 points in the morning, but later a rally got under way which carried the averages to the best levels since Wednesday. A 5 point drop in stock prices in a day is not an unfamiliar experience. The average fell more than 5 points eleven times in 1937, four times in 1938, and once this year. On Oct. 18, 1937, the average drop was 10.57 points. On the worst day of the panic in 1929 there was a decline of 38.31 points.

Thus the well advertised official fears about the stock market in the event of war have proved to be unfounded. If there had been any basis for them, the coming events would have cast their shadow in recent weeks. But the bourse gave no sign of impending collapse either in the course of prices or the volume of trade. In days of panic trade on the stock exchange has exceeded 16 million shares. Yesterday fewer than 2 million shares were traded.

Owners of American stocks have shown that they will not be scared by war into selling out, what with domestic business continuing the expansion which began after congress declared its independence toward the end of the last session. And since little bank credit is being used to carry stocks, there is no likelihood of sales being forced by calling of loans. Why, then, all this talk about a war panic?

There is a vulnerable spot in our financial structure, but it is not the stock market. The potential weakness is the government bond market. Thoughtful men have long perceived that disaster would come if any incident should suddenly make it necessary or desirable for banks to liquidate their low rate government bonds. War may be just such an eventuality. Interest rates have always risen in time of war. Due to the continuous issue of federal bonds in financing the wasteful expenditures of the government in recent years, and the lack of demand for funds for business uses, bonds of the government bought to yield only a little over 2 per cent constitute the principal asset of the banks. These bonds at par are a sufficient guaranty of the banks' deposits. Will they continue to be worth par? If a government bond due in 50 years is worth 100 when interest rates are currently 2 per cent, it is worth but little more than half as much if the interest rates double.

The government can stop worrying about stocks and devote every concern to averting the financial disaster, which may come as a result of its past misdeeds. That some holders of government bonds now perceive the danger is suggested by the formation of a money market committee in New York. Its major purpose is to obtain pledges not to sell from large holders of government bonds. What makes the problem difficult is that the government must find buyers for several billions of new bonds to finance the deficit of the present fiscal year, besides absorbing all the money of the old age security fund. If the banks do not agree to purchase the new issues the value of their portfolios will be undermined. It has been suggested that the only way to avoid a crash is for the government to retire the present low rate issues and to replace them with bonds of a higher rate. That will increase the cost of carrying the debt and make the amount of the deficit to be financed by new borrowings still greater.

POINT OF VIEW.

"Ah, so you are the man who is giving my wife lessons in elocution," said the long suffering husband. "What kind of a pupil is she?" "I find her very apt, to say the least," answered the teacher. "Strange," came the reply. "I always find her very apt to say the most."—Providence Journal.

FIRST CALL FOR LINE BOOK.

Today we begin to assemble and organize the material for the Line Book of 1939. Boy, break out two dozen pots of library paste! This is an exceedingly mucilaginous task.

* * *

It's also a line counting job. So many lines of fragmented matter to a page, and no "turns." It requires the technique of a mosaic setter and the taste of a pearl matcher.

* * *

Representation of as many contributors as possible is an important factor in Line Book editing. Interrelationship of subjects must also be considered, in order to secure fluency of reader interest.

* * *

Then there must be an introduction, a beginning, a middle and an end, for art's sake.

* * *

So if you think that we merely send to the printers a mass of clippings to be turned into type that can be chopped up into chunks representing sixty-four pages, you are entirely in error.

* * *

But please don't try to look over our shoulder when we are engaged in this fascinating pursuit. Now, if ever, come jittery days.

A LAMENT FOR EUROPE.

But yesterday I passed an English hillside
Where sheep stood grazing on its bosom green,
Near an old abbey, open to the heavens,
With crumbling walls where mosses grew between.

But yesterday, a nonchalant French city
Filled its cafés with laughter and with jest,
Displayed with pride its ancient, valued treasures,
Betraying not a whisper of unrest.

But yesterday I saw Italia's vineyards
Glistening like waves on any placid sea,
And roses prodigal with fragrant beauty
Climbing the peaceful walls of old Capri.

Today, alas (how swift the scene is changing),
I hear the call to battle and to arms,
And pray for little homes on verdant hillsides,

A Letter from Richard Henry Little.

Dear Charlie: Thank you and the good old Line and the contribs [bless their kind and loving hearts] for making my seventieth birthday such a beautiful event in my life. I can't tell you how wonderful it was for me to get all those beautiful letters from my friends of the good old Line days. Every letter was a thrill, and every well remembered name carried one back through the years to the happiest days I have ever known. I can only thank you all again and again and again.

War Declarers Die in Bed.

We wonder what percentage of the men who have a hand in declaring modern wars die in battle or as a direct result of war conditions. A small fraction of 1 per cent, we have no doubt. We will include every one in sight—dictators, kings, democratic rulers, prime ministers, cabinet officers, members of parliaments, diplomats, politicians, and all the minor stirrer-uppers—and the figure, we believe, will still be close to zero.

The New Deal forever!
Hurrah, boys, hurrah!
For we'll rally round in fool's caps and send our sons abroad,

We will sell 'em to the welshers who pay not even thanks

Super Train Gazing in Wisconsin.

Watchers of super trains [Aug. 26] should go to Lake Okauchee on highway 19, about six miles east of Oconomowoc, Wis. From a knoll back of our cottage there we had a wonderful view of a long stretch of straight track, and we would all make a dash for this place when we heard the deep, fog horn whistle of the Hiawatha. We would stand there filled with awe and excitement until the last coach of that modern wonder disappeared at approximately 100 miles an hour.

DEVIL'S GRIP BRIEF BUT PAINFUL.

Every now and then we encounter epidemics with peculiar manifestations and we regard as strange and unusual those things to which we are unaccustomed. I well recall—long before medical science had identified rabbit fever [tularemia]—hearing one of our older physicians describe a peculiar form of nerve inflammation which followed an injury to a finger sustained while preparing a bunny for the table. In the light of our present knowledge, the case was clearly an infection from the carcass.

Pleurodynia, or devil's grip, is one of these curious maladies. First reported in this country by W. C. Dabney of Virginia in 1888, it was looked upon as similar to dengue, or breakbone fever. The birthplace of the condition apparently was Iceland where it was recognized in 1856. Later outbreaks occurred in Norway, the British Isles, and Denmark.

Some attacks may be so mild as to escape the notice of patients as well as physicians. A few years ago an epidemic in Cincinnati attained its height about the middle of August, but did not disappear entirely until October. In one week eighty-seven instances were recorded in that city. Evidently we are dealing with a communicable disease because its spread has been observed in schools, hospitals, and homes.

Incidence is more common during the summer months and the ailment seems to have a predilection for healthy children and young people. Not infrequently, however, every member of the family will become afflicted. Within twenty-four to thirty-six hours most of the symptoms will have departed and the victim will recover—none the worse for the experience.

The onset is sudden and is characterized by extreme soreness in the chest or stomach area, which is aggravated by deep breathing or the slightest movement. It may be ushered in with a chill succeeded by fever, perhaps as high as 105 degrees Fahrenheit. There is marked tenderness of the tissues near the site of the maximum distress.

The course of the distemper has not varied substantially in recent case histories. Most of the patients complained of extreme fatigue covering a week or more prior to the seizure. Occasionally cramps were associated with vomiting and diarrhea. The dominant indications were an intense griping in the region of the stomach or a boring sensation along the margin of the ribs. The individual hesitates to take a breath, as every effort to inspire is a signal for increased torture.

While the illness is not difficult to diagnose in the presence of a number of cases in the community, great care must be taken to avoid surgery on the ground that there is trouble within the abdomen—for example, the appendix.

A typical case is detailed as follows: Evidently well on arising, a 6 year old girl ate a fair breakfast and was out in the yard playing. Later she rushed into the house exclaiming, "I can't breathe. It hurts so."

A doctor visited her within thirty minutes and, because of the obvious agony, was obliged to use morphine for control. Although the temperature was 102 degrees, the skin displayed no pertinent signs. Fearful that he might be facing an atypical appendicitis, the medico in charge summoned a surgical colleague. In the meantime the blood count was found to be at a proper level which argued against an abdominal infection and the decision to await developments proved a wise one. During the evening the fever rose an additional degree and the discomfort appeared localized in the lower portion of the chest. The victim was watched critically during the night and by 9 o'clock the next morning the temperature had dropped, the pain had vanished, and there was no rigidity, as would be expected had the appendix been involved. Within two days the child was normal.

Age seems to make no difference in the amount of suffering. Treatment consists in alleviating the symptoms and giving plenty of fluids. If vomiting is present the injection of normal saline solution under the skin may be required. Strapping the thorax to prevent motion is sometimes helpful.

BATHS AND BURNS.

Mrs. A. W. writes:

1. Would you advise those who are susceptible to colds not to take a bath when exhausted and wet with perspiration? Would this make them more susceptible?

2. In case of burns is it true that "heat will draw out heat"?

3. Is it best not to bandage burns?

REPLY.

1. No. A warm bath is desirable.

2. This is an old adage, but that is all.

3. As a rule small burned areas should be protected against possible infection. In certain types of treatment [tannic acid, etc.] no dressing is needed.

USUALLY NOT.

M. G. L. writes: Are cystoscopic treatments necessary in a pyelitis infection?

REPLY.

Ordinarily not. Should the infection fail to respond to the usual treatment it may be necessary to resort to irrigation of the bladder or drainage of the collecting spaces within the kidneys by means of this instrument.

SKIPPED HEART BEAT.

T. R. writes: What causes the heart to throb and skip beats when relaxing? My blood pressure is normal and I was told not to worry.

REPLY.

These skipped beats are known as extrasystoles. Their most common causes are fatigue, overwork, tobacco, coffee, etc.

BARBER'S ITCH.

M. O. writes: I have been fighting a case of barber's itch with ammoniated mercury for two months and cannot rid myself of it completely. A friend told me he had to resort to X-rays for cure.

REPLY.

This form of ringworm is resistant to treatment. X-ray in skilled hands may be beneficial.

HOARSENESS.

S. J. writes: If a person remains hoarse after recovering from pneumonia, is this a danger sign?

REPLY.

Persistent hoarseness demands investigation. In your case it is probably due to a chronic infection.

GOOD OLD PALS.

Chicago, Aug. 30.—Does history repeat? Czar Nicholas, Emperor Wilhelm, Count Muravieff, and Count von Bulow dined together on Nov. 8, 1899, and were: ". . . joyfully welcomed by all classes of the population as a new pledge of the valuable relations of friendship existing between the German and Russian empires. . . . We perceive. . . . the exalted champion of the loftiest human endeavor, and at once the trusty bearer of the oft-proved amity between Russia and Germany which has been handed down from age to age. It is owing to the harmony which subsists between Russia and Germany, guaranteed by a cordial intercourse between the two rulers, and equally beneficial to both countries, that the German and Russian powers are enabled to work peacefully side by side in Europe, and to devote themselves with confidence to more extended missions beyond the limit of that continent."

This was the report of the Norddeutsche Allgemeine Zeitung, Berlin. England at that meeting was thrown to the discard.

CYCLISTS AND GOOD ROADS.

Chicago, Aug. 30.—"F. H." states in your paper: "If it wasn't for the autoist the bicycle rider wouldn't have the good roads to ride on today. It was the autoist who built them with high license fees."

Too bad "F. H." is either too young to know, or has had loss of memory, that as early as the middle nineties the League of American Wheelmen and hundreds of cycle clubs started the "good roads" movement and through their untiring efforts succeeded in securing the first surfaced roads.

The famous White Horse pike, from Camden to Atlantic City; River drive and Fairmount Park cycle paths, Philadelphia; Riverside drive and Central Park, New York, and Chicago's celebrated boulevards were just a few of these cycle sponsored projects.

CORRECTS THE CARTOONIST.

Chicago, Aug. 30.—Your front page cartoon in Tuesday's issue was impressive but did not correspond with historical facts.

The Teschen district was incorporated into Czecho-Slovakia in 1919 when Czecho-Slovakia was formed. However, war between Poland and Russia did not break out until 1920 which is 15 months after Teschen became part of Czecho-Slovakia. Soon after 1920 the Teschen district was divided by mutual agreement between these two countries. Poland received the section with Polish majority [mostly miners who had immigrated] and Czecho-Slovakia received the section with Czech majority. Last year when Hitler was annexing Sudetenland, Poland seized the Teschen district which really belonged to Czecho-Slovakia.

TWENTY YEARS A MAYOR.

Milwaukee, Wis., Aug. 30.—You write that the demand for a third term in the White House has brought long tenure in office into disrepute for other elective offices, such as governor and mayor; that two terms are enough for either.

I don't know whether this is your own wrong statement or whether you are hired to print it.

Do not forget that the mayor in Milwaukee is more than 20 years a mayor. Though he is a Socialist, he never gets elected by his party. I say that if you have a good horse, why change him for a new one. S. F.

AUTOMOBILES AND CRIME.

Aurora, Ill., Aug. 30.—The automobile is the criminal's greatest asset. It is a simple matter for a criminal to hold up a bank, jump in an automobile, drive down an alley, change the number plates, and then continue on his way, the automobile itself making this quick getaway possible.

Our present system of license plates is certainly wrong in that they can be quickly changed, thereby making identification difficult. If there was some means of permanently fixing the number to the car, thereby furnishing positive and immediate identification, the automobile would cease to be the criminal's asset, and instead would be a hindrance to crime.

There are several ways to do this. One would be by the use of a number plate holder whereby when the number once inserted could not be removed without first destroying the plate.

The body number of the car could be put in raised numbers on the car itself, large enough to be easily read.

Or the state could supply transfers with the license number printed thereon, said transfer to be pasted on the front and rear windows of the automobile. If the number plates were changed, the discrepancy would show up.

TOO MUCH BASEBALL?

Chicago, Aug. 30.—Recently by actual count six local radio stations—including W-G-N—were dialed broadcasting the identical baseball game. So far as the convenience of the public is concerned any one of these radio stations would be sufficient to serve all listeners so far as the ball game was of interest. However, it deprived those who cared for other types of radio entertainment of at least five other kinds of program. Pure selfishness and cupidity on the part of advertising "sponsors" is undoubtedly the answer. If those who prefer other types of radio program realize this, the cure is in their hands providing they care enough about it to assert themselves.

INSTRUCTOR IS MISSED.

Chicago, Aug. 30.—We would like to know why the lady recreation instructor at Franklin park, after four years of faithful service to our children and the community, was laid off. Since she has gone the children are allowed to run crazy through the playground; no discipline and absolutely no playground supervision. How can we get this WPA worker back?

A DISSATISFIED MOTHER.

APPROVES CITY'S SCHOOLS.

Chicago, Aug. 31.—It did my heart good to see in today's "Inquiring Reporter" that in spite of all the propaganda disseminated from perpetually dissatisfied quarters the average Chicagoan still thinks his school system is excellent.

A recent graduate of the Hyde Park High school, where as editor of the school paper I had a splendid chance to observe conditions in a typical high school, I find myself heartily approving the trends in education set by the present educational administration here.

The student today feels he is being more adequately prepared for entrance into the business world as the result of an improved curriculum and revitalized and improved extracurricular activities.

Why is it that as soon as any one makes a few steps forward he is bound to be opposed on all sides by people who cannot keep abreast of the changing times?

"When we cease to progress we are not standing still, we are dying."

DEBT OWED ESTATE.

Chicago, Aug. 24 [Legal Friend of the People].—A will was left in which seven heirs were to share equally. One of the heirs has rented from her mother for fifteen years. From 1924 to the present time she has had the use of the property, but in 1933 and part of 1934, due to financial conditions, was unable to pay rent. There was no lease and no rent receipts issued in all those years. The other heirs say she should pay to them the rent owed her mother. Her mother died this year.

1. Do you think she should pay her brothers and sisters what she owed her mother?

2. When, where, and by whom should the will be opened? L. C.

1. Yes, in the sense that her debt to her mother's estate should be deducted from any share that she may claim from her mother's estate.

2. It should be delivered to the clerk of the Probate court, after which it can be examined there.

many, and suggested no successor.

4. Sent appeals to the five principal nations concerned in the war to refrain from bombing civilians and unfortified cities. Received responses that all would follow this rule if none broke it.

5. Received the German reply to his plea of Aug. 25 and 26 for a pacific solution of the Polish-German dispute which stated that Hitler had left nothing untried for a friendly settlement.

Asked at his press conference this morning if he cared to comment on the question whether the United States could stay out of the war, Mr. Roosevelt, authorizing direct quotes, said:

"Only this—that I not only sincerely hope so but I believe we can and that every effort will be made by the administration to do so."

The German reply was delivered to the state department by Dr. Hans Thomsen, chargé d'affaires of the German embassy. It stated that the President's messages had been "greatly appreciated."

Blames It on Poland.

"The German Fuehrer and Reichschancellor has also, on his side, left nothing untried for the purpose of settling the dispute between Germany and Poland in a friendly manner. Even at the last hour he accepted an offer from the government of Great Britain to mediate in this dispute," the note said.

"Owing to the attitude of the Polish government, however, all these endeavors have remained without result."

There was a tense atmosphere in both the White House and the state department as hourly developments indicated the spread of the European conflict. Telephones continually jangled, aids sped to and fro with messages, and ambassadors and envoys arrived for hasty conferences. President Roosevelt, the center of all this activity, maintained a cheerful composure at his press conference.

President Is Grave.

The President was grave, however, when he got down to discussing the foreign situation. At this critical time in the world's history, he began, he did not suppose there was anything to be said except to ask for the full coöperation of the press throughout the country in sticking as closely as possible to the facts. That would be the best thing for the nation and for civilization, he remarked.

The President was asked about the visit of Ambassador Wilson, who had seen him a few minutes previously. He announced that Wilson, who was recalled from Berlin last year for "report and consultation," had resigned. Wilson has been assigned to the state department for cided upon. The President declined to say when he would name a new envoy to Germany.
special duty, he said, but the nature of these duties had not yet been decided upon.

Bombing Message Answered.

President Roosevelt's appeal at 4:30 o'clock this morning against bombing of civilians was quickly answered by Great Britain and France. The replies were identical in nature with Chancellor Hitler's remarks on the subject delivered in his speech to the reichstag—that civilians and unfortified cities would not be bombed if this rule was followed by all sides involved. Poland's reply was received tonight. Italy's answer was a direct quotation from a decision taken today by the Fascist council of ministers, which stated that Italy will not take any initiative in military operations.

The President conferred for an hour with the highest ranking officials of the army and navy in what was characterized as a general discussion of national defense plans. Participating in the conference were Secretary of War Harry H. Woodring, Assistant Secretary Louis Johnson, Acting Secretary of the Navy Charles Edison, Gen. George C. Marshall, chief of staff of the army, and Admiral Harold R. Stark, chief of naval operations.

News Awakens President.

White House attachés said that the President was up most of the night. He retired at 1 a. m., but was awakened at 2 a. m. by a telephone call from Ambassador Bullitt in Paris. Bullitt reported the opening of hostilities on the Polish border which he had learned from Ambassador Anthony J. Drexel Biddle in Warsaw.

The President telephoned this information to war, navy, and state department heads and from then until 5:30 a. m. was receiving calls concerning developments abroad. He listened on the radio to Hitler's speech to the reichstag and retired at 5:30 a. m., arising again at 8 o'clock.

"Germany has entered Poland," Acting Secretary of the Navy Edison radioed all American warships. "Fighting and bombing in progress. You will govern yourself accordingly."

These instructions, officials said, meant that United States ships are to be governed by international law.

Few Congressmen in Capital.

The outbreak of the European war found few congressmen and senators in Washington. Chairman Sol Bloom, New York Democratic chairman of the house foreign affairs committee and author of a neutrality bill which would permit cash and carry sales of war materials to belligerent nations, hurried to the White House. He later visited the state department.

Bloom said he had conducted a telegraph poll of members of the house which has convinced him that he has the votes for repeal of the present embargo on the sale of arms to warring powers.

Senator Millard F. Tydings [D., Md.] said that the events of the next few days would determine whether a special session would be necessary for a restudy of the neutrality laws.

2 SWEETHEARTS KILLED BY AUTO WHILE STROLLING

Woman's Body Flung 132 Feet by Impact.

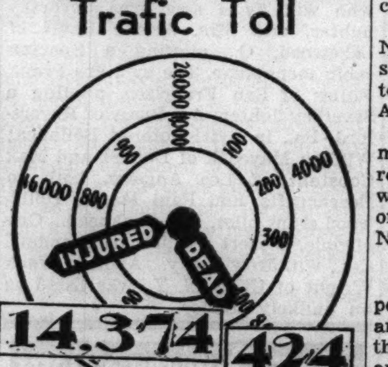
A young man and a young woman were killed late last night when they were struck by an automobile at Grand avenue and 77th court in Elmwood Park. The victims were Lucian Richards, 24 years old, 2501 79th avenue, Elmwood Park, and Miss Margaret Burcar, 22, employed as a domestic at 3658 Douglas boulevard. She was from Nokomis, Ill.

Richards and Miss Burcar, who were sweethearts, were struck as they were attempting to walk across Grand avenue. A westbound automobile crashed into both of them. The driver, Bruno Ciezadlo, 25, of 2458 North Lockwood avenue, a machinist, told police he was traveling between 22 and 25 miles an hour. Witnesses asserted his speed was nearer 60 miles an hour. Police said Richards' body was dragged 58 feet and his companion's 132 feet, indicating a high speed.

A man identified as Swen Johnson, 5608 Keystone avenue, was killed and an unidentified companion was injured yesterday in a head-on collision between their automobile and a truck on state route 34, near Leland, in La Salle county. W. Plana, 8050 Stewart avenue, the driver of the truck, was not injured.

Robert Olszewski, 3, died last night in the St. Elizabeth hospital of injuries suffered earlier in the day when he was struck by an automobile in front of his home at 1826 North Honore street. The driver was Leo LoCoco, 21, of 1615 North Honore street.

THE MASSACRE
Chicago's 1939
Trafic Toll



More than 98% of the city's automobile fatalities are of a nature physically impossible on an elevated highway.

Frank Buchino, 26, of 2626 Wallace street, was injured fatally last night when he was struck by the automobile of Albert Eul, 29, of 3712 Lake Park avenue, at 24th place and Canal street. Buchino died in the Peoples hospital.

Samuel Lieberman, 61 years old, 2501 North Spaulding avenue, died in Mount Sinai hospital from injuries suffered Thursday night when a car in which he was riding overturned. Lieberman was riding with the Rev. Aaron Richman, 4858 North Central Park avenue, who was not injured.

Up to 4 p. m. yesterday 548 persons had been killed by automobiles in Cook county since Jan. 1. Of these, 424 were killed in Chicago, where 14,374 were injured in the same period.

N. U. BANDSMEN TRYING TO PRAY WAY FROM PARIS

PARIS, Sept. 1.—Five students of Northwestern university at Evanston, Ill., who played as an orchestra for their passage to Hamburg, Germany, arrived here today and are trying to go back home. They left their instruments at Hamburg.

The German liner Deutschland, on which they had booked return passage, was not sailing and so the young musicians, in the words of their leader, Robert Savage of Chicago, were now "praying instead of playing."

Others in the orchestra are Jack Smothers and Edward Doucet of Evanston and George Grill and James Winkler of Cleveland.

SHIP SO CROWDED WAR FUGITIVES SLEEP ON FLOOR

Arnold Bernstein Is Home from Nazi Prison.

New York, Sept. 1 [Special].—Carrying 1,286 passengers, most of whom were fleeing from war clouds and many of whom had to sleep on cabin floors or in the ship's hospital, the Holland-America liner Nieuw Amsterdam docked at Hoboken today after an uneventful voyage from Europe.

The passenger list was the largest the vessel ever carried. Among the passengers was Arnold Bernstein, former head of the Red Star and Arnold Bernstein steamship lines, who served nineteen months in a Nazi civil prison and lost his fortune after being accused of violating the German shipping and foreign exchange laws.

He Doesn't Complain.

Though he had lost nineteen pounds in prison, he did not complain of the treatment he had received.

Sixteen women passengers slept in the ship's hospital, twenty-six in the playroom, and six in the officers' mess. Many others slept on cabin floors and were allowed to store their baggage in cabins belonging to more fortunate passengers.

The most surprised person aboard was Mrs. Douglas Fairbanks, the former Lady Ashley, when she found her husband at the dock to meet her. He had put her aboard in London to get her out of danger. Then he decided to come to the United States and flew over on the American Clipper, landing in Port Washington, Long Island, N. Y., yesterday.

Despite chaotic conditions of ocean travel, due to fears of general war, the state department at Washington announced that the government's program of evacuating Americans from Europe was progressing with great success.

9,300 Arrive in a Week.

Some 9,300 passengers arrived from Europe in the past week. In addition, 1,200 arrived at Canadian ports.

At Cobh, Ireland, today about 200 Americans boarded the liner Manhattan for home. They included Postmaster General Farley and his two daughters and several Catholic clergymen. Norma Shearer, the actress, boarded the Manhattan at Southampton. The liner carried 1,600 passengers, more than capacity.

At Havana, the German liner Columbus, which left New York Aug. 18 for a South American cruise, disembarked 775 American excursionists tonight and prepared to sail, presumably for Germany. The passengers were landed as speedily as possible. They will sail aboard the steamship Florida for Miami, then go to New York by train. All expenses for the return trip will be covered by the company.

Rickenbackers on Way.

The Gdynia-American line [Polish] said its motorship Batory would arrive in New York Monday with passengers from Gdynia, Copenhagen, and Cherbourg, among them Mrs. Eddie Rickenbacker and the war ace's two sons.

The United States liner Washington will leave for Europe tomorrow with cots to increase her normal capacity by 1,100. She will evacuate Americans abroad.

Only one vessel left the port of New York today for Europe with passengers, and she carried only fourteen. She was the United States liner American Farmer.

Meanwhile, the German government had virtually completed its roundup of German vessel in foreign waters. No German ships, passenger or freighter, remained in the port of New York today.

Bremen Racing Home.

German liners are racing to home ports in the hope of avoiding capture, and the heavy cruiser Berwick of the British West Indies squadron and another unidentified British cruiser are believed to be lying in wait off the Atlantic coast.

The $20,000,000 Bremen, largest of all German liners, sailed Wednesday night without cargo or passengers, and with lights blacked out and radio silent. Her course was a mystery, but if the general war breaks out soon she must run to some neutral port or risk capture. The two British cruisers may be following her.

More than 30 sailors from the Bremen, who jumped ship rather than return and fight for Germany, were found in water front saloons. Most of them insisted that the Bremen was merely shamming a return to Germany; that she would swing south 200 miles out and possibly turn up in Rio de Janeiro or Buenos Aires.

Also racing to Germany were the 16,000 ton motorship St. Louis and the 23,337 ton New York of the Hamburg-American line, carrying only crews and ballast.

Normandie Here to Stay.

At Guayaquil, Ecuador, three small German merchantmen were tied up on orders from home. They are the Quito and Bogota of the North German Lloyd line and the Cerigo of the Hamburg-American line.

Only two large ships of the potentially belligerent countries of Europe remained in the port of New York today. They were the French liner Normandie, whose sailing has been canceled, and the Italian liner Roma. Both are expected to remain for the duration of the war.

Two British passenger liners, the Georgic and the Franconian, were in port, and the Queen Mary is expected in with a full passenger list on Monday.

When the world war began there were twenty-seven German ships here and sixty-four others in other American harbors. They all remained here and were seized by the United States when it entered the conflict.

YANKEE CLIPPER OFF FOR EUROPE WITH 13 ABOARD

Port Washington, N. Y., Sept. 1 [Special].—Despite the war in Europe the Pan-American Airways' Yankee Clipper took off this afternoon with thirteen passengers and 442 pounds of mail for Horta and Marseilles. Large American flags were painted on each side of the bow so she could be recognized easily by military aircraft. Before going aboard each passenger was warned individually by a line official that the flight might end at Lisbon instead of Marseilles.

Passengers were told on the pier that they could cancel their reservations and receive refunds but none accepted. Only one passenger was a German, Joachim Gertslet, who had been on a business trip to Mexico.

After a seventy hour delay in Lisbon and a trans-Atlantic trip that included, for the first time, a stop at Bermuda, Pan American Airways' Dixie Clipper arrived here today with fourteen passengers. Among them were Tyrone Power and his bride, Annabella, movie actors, and Jane Alden, Chicago stylist.

OPPOSING LEGAL VIEWS CITED ON SUBWAY CLAIMS

Court Fight on Damages to Involve Millions.

Opposing views continued to be expressed yesterday on the city's liability for damages to buildings resulting from subway construction. Attorneys now are mapping a court fight to decide the issue.

Engineers estimate that the cost of safeguarding building foundations along the route of the State and Dearborn street subway sections in the loop will amount to millions of dollars. The city contends these costs should be paid by the private owners. The owners contend the city is liable.

Cite State Constitution.

Attorneys representing a number of large loop building owners said yesterday that their claims appear to be clearly supported by a provision in the state constitution which reads:

"Private property shall not be taken or damaged for public use without just compensation."

They asserted that the city is damaging private buildings in constructing a subway for public use and hence is liable for damages under the constitution.

One of the key cases that will be cited by counsel for building owners in the courts is the La Salle street tunnel case of 1915, attorneys said. In this case the state Supreme court held the city of Chicago liable for damages to buildings on La Salle street as a result of construction of the tunnel under the Chicago river.

City's View of Issue.

The city's stand on subway damages was explained yesterday by William H. Sexton, special traction attorney for the city.

"Our position is that the subway is a public improvement and that the benefits to property owners will exceed the damages to the properties," Sexton said.

Sexton explained that the subway is expected to increase property values because it will make the buildings along the route of the tunnel more accessible. It is the practice of the courts to offset benefits against damages in damage suits, he added.

Private attorneys directed attention to the fact that New York City, in building its subways, pays the entire cost of safeguarding foundations along the subway route. This liability in practice is passed on to contractors, who include cost estimates for supporting foundations in submitting their bids.

Difference in Law.

Sexton said, however, that New York law varies from Illinois law on subway damages. The New York courts have held that a subway is not strictly a "street use" and that therefore when the city uses the ground underneath the street for a subway, it is liable for damages, he explained. In Illinois the Supreme court had held that a subway is a street use, and this may relieve the city of damage liability, Sexton added.

3,000 PUT OFF JOB BY C. I. O. STRIKE AT BENDIX PLANT

South Bend, Ind., Sept. 1 [Special].—A strike called by the C. I. O. today threw out of work 3,000 employés of the Bendix Products corporation here. Suspension of work closed the Bendix Aviation corporation, a unit of the parent concern, which manufactures airplane equipment.

Picket lines were established at the five gates of the big plant. There was no disorder, however, and no effort was made to continue operations.

The strike, called by the local union of the United Automobile Workers of America, a C. I. O. affiliate, culminates several years of differences between the union and the company. The strikers seek wage adjustments such as methods of computing pay, a satisfactory seniority policy, vacations with pay, and all their demands incorporated in a contract, which they previously have not had.

DREAMS OF CANDY LAND COME TRUE FOR 75 CHILDREN

Dreams of candy land came true last night for seventy-five Chicago children. They took part in contests, as a feature of the Chicago Candy Club show, to see who could [1] eat candy the fastest and [2] eat the most of it.

In the speed test each of the 75 was given a candy sucker. The first dissolver won. In the mass consumption contest the winner was the one who could cram his mouth with the largest number of marshmallows without swallowing.

FEDERAL AGENTS MOBILIZE IN N. Y. TO COMBAT SPIES

New York, Sept. 1 [Special].—A quiet mobilization of special agents of the federal bureau of investigation in the New York area has been in progress, it was learned today, since the beginning of the current war crisis. More than 100 agents, or one-eighth of the FBI personnel now is assigned to this area, which includes the great airplane factories of Long Island. The FBI, charged with the enforcement of espionage and sabotage laws and with the investigation of violations of the present neutrality act, is also keeping a strict watch on shipping and on amateur radio stations.

The Inquiring Reporter

The Question.

Do you think President Roosevelt should state now whether he intends to run for a third term?

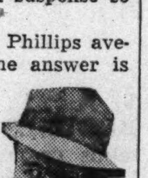
Where Answered.

At Randolph street and Michigan avenue.

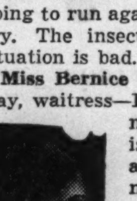
The Answers.

Morton Sinow, 6805 Sheridan road, advertising manager—Yes, I do. He should state it in order to ease the public mind with respect to his future policies. Personally I'm inclined to believe he should run for a third term, things being as tough as they are and his policies as they are. I think he definitly belongs in the White House.

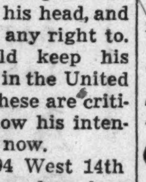
Mrs. Mary Cole, 5516 Kenmore avenue, housewife—Yes, I do, because I think so many people want him to run. I think it would relieve a lot of our minds. I am certainly for him. I think it's time we should know. After all, it isn't very long until the election. It doesn't seem fair to keep us in suspense so long.



Gordon De Witt, 7444 Phillips avenue, drug salesman—The answer is yes. I think it would relieve business. I think it would give some one else an opportunity to talk and reassure the business men, or not reassure them, and let them know whether he is going to run again and ruin the country. The insecurity of the present situation is bad.



Miss Bernice Childers, 3434 Broadway, waitress—I think he should announce now that he isn't going to run again. He's taking so much of Europe's business into his head, and he hasn't any right to. He should keep his nose here in the United States. These are critical times; we should know his intentions as to a third term now.



C. P. Berolzheimer, 394 West 14th street, Chicago Heights, shoe lace manufacturer—I'm not in favor of his running at any time, but I don't think he should state anything now. I don't think he should state it until the convention if he expects to get the nomination. I don't think it would be good politics to announce it now. I'm not in favor of anything he does, either.

C. I. O. UNIONISTS RENEW PACKING STRIKE THREATS

New threats of a nation-wide strike against Armour & Co. and the industry's three other large packing companies were made yesterday by heads of the Packinghouse Workers' Organizing committee, following the breakdown Thursday of contract negotiations with the Armour plant here.

The national executive committee of the P. W. O. C., an affiliate of the Congress of Industrial Organizations, sent telegrams to Secretary of Labor Perkins and to the mayors of fourteen cities where there are Armour plants, threatening the strike. They asked Secretary Perkins to call a conference of P. W. O. C. and Armour officials. The wires were signed by Van A. Bittner, national P. W. O. C. chairman; Nicholas Fontecchio, vice chairman; Don Harris, director, and Henry Johnson, assistant director.

W. S. Renfro, superintendent of the Chicago Armour plant, said there was a conflict between the C. I. O. and the American Federation of Labor over bargaining rights and that the plant would not enter exclusive bargaining arrangements until the courts had settled the question.

WORLD HOSPITAL MEET CANCELED BECAUSE OF WAR

Dr. Malcolm T. MacEachern of Chicago, president of the International Hospital association, announced last night that the sixth biennial International Hospital congress, scheduled for Toronto, Ont., the week of Sept. 19, has been canceled.

"It is necessary to postpone the congress indefinitly because of war conditions in Europe. Many of the delegates from forty-four countries who planned to attend must now remain at their hospital posts. Also there would be difficulty in obtaining transportation for them."

Boy, 14, Falls Off Launch, Drowns in Belmont Harbor

John Grizzanfi, 14 years old, a Sea Scout, drowned yesterday when he fell off the Leyora, a power launch, in Belmont harbor. Grizzanfi was cleaning the boat deck. In falling he apparently struck his head. Jack Saracino, employed in the harbor master's office, recovered the body after diving for 10 minutes. Grizzanfi lived at 2815 North Leavitt street.

BRIDGES DEFENSE SEEKS TO SHAKE HIS RED ACCUSER

San Francisco, Cal., Sept. 1 [Special].—Harry Bridges' attorneys today made efforts to impeach the testimony of Miles W. Humphreys, former communist and ousted C. I. O. union business agent, at the west coast C. I. O. director's deportation hearing before Examiner James M. Landis.

Humphreys, a surprise rebuttal witness called by the government, testified yesterday he had attended 20 or 30 communist party meetings with Bridges and flatly contradicted the Australian born labor leader's testimony that he was not a communist and had never attended communist meetings.

In cross-examination today the defense sought to show Humphreys was ousted as business agent of C. I. O. local industrial union, No. 96 in Oakland and Alameda because he advocated use of firearms and terrorism in a speech before the United Auto Workers' union in January, 1938.

STATE HOSPITAL TYPHOID FEVER TOLL REACHES 9

Manteno, Ill., Sept. 1 [Special].—A ninth death from typhoid fever was reported today at the state hospital for the insane near here, where an epidemic has been raging for two weeks.

The latest victim was Moritz Tallston, 5936 South Francisco avenue, Chicago, a patient. The eight previous deaths also occurred this week, five of them being reported yesterday.

The list of approximately 200 patients and employés now ill was increased slightly today but Dr. Ralph T. Hinton, managing officer of the hospital, said the situation is improving.

State bacteriologists have traced the fever to a polluted water supply on the grounds of the 1,220 acre institution. The water is obtained from four drilled wells, all of which were chlorinated on Aug. 19, after the epidemic was discovered.

TWO MOTORISTS GET JAIL TERMS FOR WILD DRIVING

For driving while intoxicated Walter Seibel, 41 years old, of Des Plaines, was sentenced to ten days in the county jail by Judge Francis Borrelli in the Safety court yesterday. He was arrested Thursday after an accident at St. Louis and Elston avenues.

Joseph Bogacz, 25, of 1437 Cleaver street, was sentenced to five days in jail for reckless driving. Both men were required to surrender their drivers' licenses for one year. Charles Kotaska, 34, of 4835 25th street, surrendered his license pending trial on a charge of reckless driving on Sept. 6.

Judge John Gutknecht, in the Safety court, yesterday issued warrants for eight motorists who failed to appear in court on minor trafic charges. "Ninety-nine per cent of the persons arrested appear," he said, "and we will bring in the remaining 1 per cent by issuing arrest warants."

2 SWIM 5 MILES FOR A TUG WHEN CRUISER STALLS

Five men set out in a 30 foot cruiser, Blonde Lady, yesterday for a trip in Lake Michigan off Indiana Harbor. About five miles out the motor stalled. For several hours, the cruiser and its passengers waited for a passing boat to pick them up, but none came. Finally two of the men, Robert Shank, 27 years old, and Tony Diestler, 26, swam the five miles to shore and came back with a tug, which towed their companions to shore. The others were Joe Macko, owner of the boat; John Turner, and Woodrow Gump. All live in Indiana Harbor.

GRAND CENTRAL STATION SITE IS SOLD FOR $650,000

The board of education yesterday voted to accept $650,000 cash from the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad company for the tract of land occupied by the Grand Central station. The board has held a mortgage on the property since 1888. The mortgage became due in 1938 and the railroad company proposed paying the full amount.

The tract of land comprises about six and one-half acres and is bounded by Polk, Wells, and Harrison streets and the south branch of the Chicago river. James B. McCahey, board president, said the $650,000 will be used to acquire land for school use.

Dodge Widow Reports Loss of $42,000 Pearl Necklace

New York, Sept. 1 [Special].—Mrs. Elsie Fordyce Dodge, widow of Murray Witherbee Dodge, former vice president of the Chase Securities corporation, has reported to police and an insurance company the loss on Wednesday of a pearl necklace valued at $42,000, it was disclosed today. The necklace, which has a diamond clasp, was lost from a pocket of her jacket while she was strolling in Central park, Mrs. Dodge said.

Babson was read by Edward E. Blake, national chairman of the party. Babson is being boomed as the party's candidate for President next year.

"Democracy will never be saved by the Republican or Democratic machines," Babson wrote. "The only hope lies either with a coalition party or else some new party. TURNER LEADS QUALIFIERS FOR FLYING CLASSIC

Seven Poised for Bendix Trophy Dash.

BULLETIN.

BURBANK, Cal., Sept. 2 [Saturday] (AP).—The Bendix Trophy race started early today with the take-off of William Maycock, accompanied by Charles C. Gilbert of Detroit, owner of the ship, as co-pilot. They were flagged away at 12:40 a. m. [3:40 a. m. Chicago time].

BY WAYNE THOMIS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Cleveland, O., Sept. 1.—Only seven pilots were qualified to take part in the closed course events at the national air races during the next three days here when the deadline was passed at 6 o'clock tonight. The seven airmen, their home cities, and their qualifying speeds are:

COL. ROSCOE TURNER, Chicago, 297.8 miles an hour.
TONY LEVIER, Montebello, Cal., 277 miles an hour.

The first six men are entered in Monday's Thompson trophy race, the premier closed course race of the world. All had to exceed qualifying minimum of 240 miles an hour.

The Greve Trophy Race.

Williams has entered the Greve trophy race, to be held on Sunday, along with Levier and Chester. The qualifying minimum for this event was 220 miles an hour. The Thompson race is for racers with unlimited horse power while the Greve is limited to planes with engines capable of developing about 375 horse power.

Harry Crosby of Los Angeles and George Byars of Van Nuys, Cal., are at the field tonight. If the air race pilots' association sees fit to amend the race conditions—fixed months ago—these two may be allowed to qualify early tomorrow morning.

With the European war centering attention on military aviation, Army and Navy fighters and bombers staked out on Cleveland airport stole the interest of all comers. Squadrons from both services will take part in the races.

At the north end of the airport nineteen silver and yellow Navy Grumman biplanes are settled snugly, their stubby snouts housing 1,000 horse power cyclone engines pointed toward the air race course. One mile south there is another line of nineteen army planes, all Seversky P-35 fighters with 975 horse power twin Wasp motors.

Two Women Ready.

From Los Angeles came word tonight that two women and five men were scheduled to take off between 12:30 a. m. and 5 a. m. [Chicago time] tomorrow in the Bendix trophy race, the 2,000 mile speed dash to Cleveland which is the feature of tomorrow's meeting.

The women are Jacqueline Cochran, who will fly a new type Seversky fighter, and Mrs. Arlene Davis of Lakewood, O., piloting a Spartan cabin monoplane. The men are Frank Fuller of San Francisco, piloting a Seversky fighter; Art Bussy of Royersford, Pa., in a tri-motored Bellanca; William Maycock of Detroit and Max Constant of Los Angeles, both in Beechcrafts, and Paul Mantz, Hollywood stunt pilot, in a Lockheed. One eligible, Robert Perlick of Glendale, Cal., withdrew today. Another, Jack Wright of Utica, N. Y., was listed as an unlikely starter.

Another Variation.

A young man stood at the counter in a men's wear store looking at shirts, according to R. R. Pederson. Picking one up, he said to the clerk, "Are you sure this material will hold up all right?"

"Confidentially," said the clerk, "it shrinks."

THE DACHSHUND.

There was a dachshund, one so long
He hadn't any notion
How long it took to notify
His tail of his emotion!
And so it happened, while his eyes
Were filled with woe and sadness,
His little tail went wagging on
Because of previous gladness.

Noontime Mirage.

It was noon and the sun, which hung high in the heavens, beat down unmercifully on my brow. I could hear the blasting of automobile horns and sense the heat rising from a sun baked pavement, causing my feet to throb and swell. Maddening, hurrying throngs of noonday lunchers jostled me while I mopped my brow with a wilted kerchief and fanned my moistened face with a crushed and dusty hat. From out of this turmoil rose a scene of greatest tranquility. . . . Spread before me were palm trees bowed low to the ground in surrender to an unseen hand. A blue river, calm and undisturbed, lapped a clean and sandy shore. Green reeds swayed gracefully as they stood in the sweet dampness of clean earth. For a minute I lost this sight, but once again it loomed before me with its sky speckled by bits of snowy clouds. All this green, the cool of the blue . . . no, this was not a mirage, for I could reach out my hand and touch it! A noonday luncher wore a dress of this print. Eileen.

Minor Repercussion.

Outbreak of war abroad put an idea into the heads of seven young men who want to rent an apartment without signing a year's lease. Five of the seven are in the officers' reserve, they told the rental agent, and might have to go to war inside of a year. The real estate agency didn't weaken.

Chicagoans in Europe Seeking Passage Home

BY INDIA MOFFETT.

A cause for immediate anxiety to many Chicagoans is the whereabouts of their relatives or friends who are traveling in Europe. Some have been cabling not to worry, others have indicated that they wanted to leave the troubled countries as soon as possible. Some are on the way home, but others are still waiting to get passage.

More worried than any one, probably, are the families of girls who have married Europeans. The former Edith Fairbanks' husband, Count Visconti di Modrone, sailed just a few weeks ago to rejoin his regiment in Italy. The Viscontis' little son is with his maternal grandmother, Mrs. Warren C. Fairbanks, at Wianno, Mass.

Another Italian officer, Capt. Ambrogio Cassinerio of the air force, is in Lake Forest. He came here several weeks ago to take home his wife, the former Edna Doering, and their infant daughter, born in Lake Forest on July 7. The ship on which they were to return next week will not sail and he is waiting for the Italian embassy in Washington to notify him of its plans for his return to Italy. The Edmund J. Doerings have another European son-in-law, Harold Hartog, the husband of Nancy Doering. They live in Paris.

The former Martha Morse, now the Baroness Beck von Peccoz of Munich, has heard that her parents, the Charles H. Morses, have gone to Switzerland from Poland, but she is not certain where her sister, Mrs. William S. Covington, and Mr. Covington and their children are. They may have sailed for this country. Baron Beck is with his regiment in Germany.

The Charles S. Deweys' family here have heard thankfully that Mr. and Mrs. Dewey and Peter are at their home in Normandie and not in Poland, as they had planned to be. Count and Countess Antony Potocki have gone from Poland to Copenhagen to sail for home on Tuesday, according to a cable received by her mother, Mrs. Moisant Griffiths. Count Potocki is an American citizen.

◆

Frank M. Gordon, Chicago banker, was relieved to learn that his wife and their daughters, Miss Marion and Miss Evelyn, did not go as far as London. They went to Bristol after a tour of the continent, and then were advised to return to Paris, where they now are. They expect to board the Statendam on Tuesday. Miss Helen Gurley and Miss Margaret Conover are due to land in New York on Monday.

Miss Cornelia Conger and Mrs. Edward F. Carry are just back from abroad, both having landed in New York on Thursday, the former by boat and the latter by the Clipper ship. Mrs. Benjamin C. Allen is on the Queen Mary now, but her daughters, Mrs. Oliver Bryson and Mrs. Hugh Groves, did not accompany her. Their husbands are in the British army.

The William B. Hales and Miss Mary Hale are in New York, having cut short their travels abroad. Mrs. Peter Dudley left Chicago and sailed for her home in Paris as soon as there was threatening war news. Her daughter, Mrs. Ellen Dudley Root, is due to sail from France for this country on Oct. 3. Nonagenarian Frederick B. Tuttle and Charles S. Peterson were both traveling in Sweden when last heard from by Chicago friends.

Mrs. Alice H. Patterson and her daughter, Mrs. J. Fred Reeve, were in Paris when their Chicago relatives heard from them on Wednesday. They had expected to return to this country in mid-September.

Mr. and Mrs. C. Frederick Childs were relieved to hear from their son, Newell Childs, that he and his wife would land in Montreal today from England, where they have been living since their marriage last winter.

Miss Louisa Burrows and her nephew, George S. Burrows, are on the Champlain en route home. So is Mrs. Jacob Baur.

The honeymooning Richard Baums are on the ocean, also, and are expected to arrive in Lake Forest about a week after they land. They will visit her parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. Mitchell Wallace, of Waterbury and Mason's Island, Conn., before coming west. Young Mr. Baum's cousin, Gustavus F. Swift Jr., and his bride sailed from New York but left the boat at Boston. He had expected to study archaeology in Athens for a year.

◆

Mr. and Mrs. James Simpson are on the ocean, having sailed in a slow boat last Saturday. They are expected to reach Chicago next Tuesday. C. Durand Allen Jr. cabled his parents Thursday that he was sailing in an American boat from England yesterday. The latest word that Mrs. Robert H. Gardner has had from her mother, Mrs. Samuel D. Flood, was that she intended staying in London.

Mrs. Ernest Hamill II. has news from her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Sterling Morton, and Mrs. Morton's mother, Mrs. Heaton Owsley, that they are in Switzerland, waiting for passage home.

Mrs. Gilbert Preston and her daughter, Mrs. David Albright, cut short their motor trip in central Europe and arrived at their home in Wayne last week after a four month instead of a six month absence.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles G. Little and Miss Olivia Little of Evanston; Col. and Mrs. Robert H. Morse and their son, John; Mrs. LeRay Berdeau, the former Mrs. Charles H. Chadwick, who has a home on the French Riviera; Miss Priscilla Curtis, daughter of Mrs. Edwin Welch and granddaughter of Mrs. Alfred Landon Baker, whom she has been visiting in Paris, and Arthur Meeker Jr., who has a chalet in Switzerland, are among the other Chicagoans in Europe.

THROUGH THE LOOKING GLASS

Whether you're going off to college or staying right at home with the cares of the mature, there's a new manicure kit that you'll want for your very own. It is compact, complete, uncluttered, and handsome.

For a long long time cases for manicure implements followed one pattern. Departures from this pattern usually were too gadgety for our tastes. This new one is unlike any you've ever seen before, but if it isn't a success we'll drink the nail polish in it!

◆

It's in what the manufacturer describes as "pixtex" grain leather, oval in shape and zipper fastened, a bit less than six inches long and not quite four inches high. The lining is peach, and standing in the base securely anchored so they won't topple, are bottles of nail enamel, oily remover, and an almost transparent liquid that can be used both as a base and an outer coat. All three of these preparations are famous, and the favorites of women. They're among the very best made.

In a little detachable packet of the lining fabric your implements are kept handy and in order. There's a good tweezer, a file, a pusher, an orangewood stick, emery boards, and even a pad of sterilized cotton. Whoever designed the removable packet was inspired.

◆

This is an ideal case for the woman who gives daily nail grooming the attention it deserves. It was designed primarily for the college girls, but there's no reason in the world why it should be confined to that audience. It makes a marvelous gift for others, but an even better one for yourself. And it's astonishingly inexpensive.

Hold Informal Hunt on Labor Day at Millburn

BY JUDITH CASS.

BECAUSE so many of its members will want to attend the last performances on Monday of the Fort Sheridan horse show, the Mill Creek hunt has not planned a luncheon party following its hunt at 9:30 o'clock that morning. Instead, the first formal hunt of the season will be held on Sunday the 10th. The M. F. H., S. Prentice Porter, and the two members of the house committee of the little clubhouse in Millburn, Mrs. Charles H. Morse Jr. and Mrs. John Andrews King, will be hosts at a luncheon following.

The luncheon will be quite a large party, for in addition to all of the hunt members the host and hostesses have invited about fifty other guests. There are a large number of young people riding with the Mill Creek this season, among them Miss Betty Mead, Mrs. Garfield King, Priscilla Armstrong, Robert Cudahy, Andy King Jr., John L. Behr, Anthony Ryerson, Helen Niblack, and Blissy King. The youngest who have been going out lately are Ginevra Mitchell and John F. Jelke Jr.

Helen Niblack's father, Austin Niblack, who resigned as joint master last winter, will be the subject of a portrait his fellow hunt members are commissioning as a gift for him. Randall Davey of New York and Santa Fe is to be the artist. Letters asking for subscriptions to the portrait will go out soon to a large list, one that will include not only the members of the Mill Creek but also many of an older generation who used to hunt with the late Arthur T. Aldis.

Fort Sheridan Horse Show Opens Today.

The Fort Sheridan horse show is a three day affair this year, opening this afternoon and continuing through Monday. There has been a heavy demand for boxes for the afternoon and evening performances, of which there will be two, tonight and tomorrow night.

Col. Charles B. Hazeltine, acting commander of the post in the absence of Maj. Gen. Karl Truesdell, will give a buffet supper tonight at the Officers' club for judges, officials, and boxholders. Lieut. Gen. Stanley Ford is entertaining at a luncheon tomorrow, and there will be a horse show ball Monday night. Proceeds from the show will go as usual to the Associated Charities of Fort Sheridan.

The night performances will combine several horse show classes with a concert by the 3d Field Artillery band, rough riding and mounted shooting by Troop A of the 14th cavalry; a musical drill by Troop B of the 14th, and an anti-aircraft searchlight demonstration by the 61st Coast Guard artillery.

Judging the various classes in the show will be Maj. Isaac L. Kitts, now stationed at the Culver Military academy, whose high school horse, American Lady, will appear at all the performances; Maj. Henry Leonard of Colorado Springs, and Harry McNair of Chicago.

Hold Polo Pony Auction Tonight.

The stables at the Oak Brook Polo club near Hinsdale will be the center of attraction for polo enthusiasts throughout the middle west tonight, for the Pegasus club of Rockleigh, N. J., is to auction off the string of polo ponies it brought west to use in the 12 goal and intercircuit championships.

The auction is the first to have been held in the middle west and is patterned after the auctions held in the east by the Argentine and British polo teams after playing international matches.

The Pegasus players will use their mounts in the finals of the 12 goal championships tomorrow afternoon, however, when they will meet the Texas Huisaches. The latter team this week won the intercircuit championship for the third year in a row. On the team are Robert D. Farish, the captain; his nephew, William S. Farish Jr.; Harry Evinger, and William Dritt.

Playing for the Pegasus club will be a British army officer, Capt. Hugo E. Anson; Delmar Carroll, Buddy Combs, and Cyril L. Harrison.

Twin Daughters Born to Nathaniel Owingses.

The marriage of Miss Nancy Otis and Frank B. Johnston Jr. in Harbor Springs, Mich., on Monday will not be the only cause for the toasts that will be drunk that afternoon. Thursday night at the Passavant hospital Miss Otis' young aunt, Mrs. Nathaniel Owings, became the mother of twin daughters. The babies, who have not been named, are the first children of the former Miss Emily Otis and Mr. Owings.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph E. Otis, at whose Harbor Springs home Monday's wedding is to take place, are the grandparents of the twins and of their cousin, Monday's bride, who are a generation apart.

Miss Florence Little Will Become Bride.

Of great interest in the Fox river valley is the announcement being made this morning by Mrs. William Douglas Little of Geneva of the engagement of her daughter, Florence, to William Burton Bechtel, son of Mr. and Mrs. Oman O. Bechtel of Bridgeport, Conn.

The Little family was a pioneer one in Geneva and also in Littleton, N. H., where Miss Little and Mr. Bechtel will be married next Saturday at the summer home of her grandmother, Mrs. Bonnie Alfred Little, also of Geneva.

The bride-to-be, her mother, and her aunt, Mrs. Arthur M. Simm, will motor east for the ceremony. Mr. and Mrs. Bechtel will live in Bridgeport.

Close Another Joyful Season at Algonquin

BY IRENE STEYSKAL.

Camp Algonquin on the Fox river bade goodby yesterday to its last party of summer guests. Through countryside where evidence of autumn already appears in columns of smoky asters, brown cornshocks and flame in the sumac bushes, they were taken home, 120 mothers and children, on the Chicago and North Western railroad. The railroad provides free transportation for the campers each year.

In contrast to the company of pale, undernourished children who boarded the train two weeks ago, the transformed youngsters who scrambled out yesterday were happy, noisy and sun-tanned.

Each clutched some memento of Algonquin—the girls, bunches of goldenrod, bright bits of weaving and beadwork made in craft classes; the boys, bird houses, hand-whittled whistles, bamboo fishing poles, and, most carefully handled of all, dampish cardboard boxes with holes punched in the lids. Treasure chests, eh? What's the plunder? Huh? Oh! Why, TURTLES! Lookee, wanta see, missus? Them holes is so the little fellas kin breathe.

Since the summer vacation period opened on June 26, Algonquin's health giving air and nourishing food have fortified 1,520 mothers and children from congested districts against the rigors of winter. For most, two weeks worked the miracle of health and resurrected morale. But especially privileged were eighty small lads from the stockyards area whose privations had seriously jeopardized their health. They, the Hallowarden campers, enjoyed camp benefits for eight full weeks. Some gained as much as twelve pounds.

◆

TRIBUNE readers help support Camp Algonquin by contributions. It is operated by the United Charities. Mrs. Astrid Save has been its greatly beloved director for almost a score of years.

By Mae Tinée.

Good Morning!

Did you see Gloria Jean yesterday? I did.

She was over at the Roosevelt, you know, being introduced to the folks who went to see the midwest première of her debut film. And we—Gloria, her mother and I—watched the last reel of "The Under-Pup"—which I'd seen previously in a projection room—and the first reel of a "funny." While Gloria was making her bow—between the "Pup" and the comic—her mother and I chatted. [O, VERY softly! Nobody about us seemed to mind.]

◆

Gloria is a dear little 11 year old, unassuming and unafraid. She wore the tricky uniform she wins in the movie after waging wars of various sorts—blue and white it is—with a smart militaryish cap perched on her rich bronze curls. . . .

I asked her how it seemed to be a celebrity—and she said "Wonderful! Marvelous! . . ." quite after the manner of a seasoned star—but with a kid's honest enthusiasm.

How did she like Hollywood? "Wonderful! . . . You know," she said, "I thought there'd be palm trees growing all over it, but they're only in Beverly Hills. That was my greatest surprise about Hollywood."

Was she nervous making the picture? Not at all—there were ninety people on the set with her, so how could she be scared? . . . "Excuse me, please. . . ." The time had come for her to go on the stage.

Here, quietly, she answered questions put to her by the master of ceremonies, and graciously greeted her admirers [who before I left were hanging over the back of her seat begging for autographs], showing not the slightest sign of stage fright.

"She has great poise," I said to her quiet, pretty mother. "That's not surprising," Mrs. Schoonover replied. "Gloria has taken part in little local shows since she was 3 years old. And has sung since she was a little thing. Her uncle, a Welsh singer, taught her all he knew. . . . Then we took her to New York where she studied under a singer with the Metropolitan Opera company. . . . That's where she came in contact with Mr. Pasternak . . ." [her "discoverer"].

Like Gloria, Mrs. Schoonover thinks highly of the fame and glory that have come to her child. Like Shirley Temple's mother, she realizes that her big job is to keep her starlet unspoiled. . . . "She has three sisters, and the girls have always been treated just the same," Gloria's mother said, smiling. "That's why she's the nice little girl she is today."

Then Gloria was back, the comic was on, and in a few minutes I was out. . . .

◆

If her work in "The Under-Pup" is a criterion, Gloria is slated to be a career girl of note. For her vehicle I didn't care so much. . . . The story is too obviously built for her. . . . But the film has some clever writing and a lot of good acting. Its strained and soppy situations are balanced by moments of real interest.

Gloria Jean is, of course, "The Under-Pup." A misnomer, sezzi. . . . There's nothing under-puppish about this Pip-Emma Binns, daughter of a poor but happy home, who's given an outing at a summer camp maintained by a secret society composed of small and snobbish daughters of the so-called crème de la crème. . . .

These try to hand her plenty in the way of rudeness, neglect, and petty cruelties, but Pip-Emma takes nothing lying down, and by the time the picture ends has regenerated all sinners, softened the heart of the crusty camp mother, made a great financier see the light, brought together the about-to-be-divorced parents of the only little girl who's been kind to her, and become the darling of the camp.

Maybe it's life, but I call it Pollyanna.

Gloria Jean sings often and exquisitely. Her voice has sweetness, power, and range. No doubt about it, the small coloratura soprano is GOOD and gives evidence of great acting talent. She has a Mickey Rooney assurance that will lead her up or down—according to the manner in which it's guided. . . .

I loved her. May Hollywood have pity upon her!

Looking at Hollywood

By Ed Sullivan

Annie Doesn't Live Here Any More.

Hollywood, Cal., Sept. 1.—One of the Clan Sheridan made history by remarking that war was hell. . . . Ann Sheridan, a remote descendant of the general, says that "oomph" should be substituted for "war" so that the quotation could be brought up to date.

The redheaded Miss Sheridan, since "oomph" entered her life, has discovered that the sort of fame which ballyhoo brings into a person's life is not all beer and skittles. . . . Before "oomph," the only paper ever served upon her was a diploma from Denton High school, in Dallas, Tex.

Since "oomph," she has had two papers served on her, both of them legal documents filled with "whereas" and "wherefore" and giving the location of the courts in which she was ordered to appear.

Her identity has changed with her publicity and today it can be stated truthfully that "Annie Doesn't Live Here Any More."

Of course there are compensations that are not to be sneezed at, even if Miss Sheridan was addicted to hay fever. . . . In the first place, there is the matter of that new seven year contract which she signed four months back. . . . It called for an immediate raise in salary, and it is filled with escalator clauses which will make her one of the top wages of the industry in 1946 if her "oomph" holds out.

She has a new car, instead of the broken-down jallopy in which she used to ride to work. . . . She has a home in the Ventura valley, instead of the apartment she occupied. . . . Studios which once told her they had no jobs to offer now send her tickets to their biggest premières.

Film magazine photographers who once asked her to lean back or step out of the way so that she wouldn't mar a flashlight of a celeb, now snap her picture happily. . . . Hollywood hostesses who once didn't give her a tumble now adopt their most velvety tones over the telephone to couch their invitations.

Perhaps the greatest satisfaction in a parade of compensations came when Paramount sued her, on the grounds that a Paramount actress was the original "oomph" girl. . . . Ann got a kick out of that suit because Paramount kicked her out of the studio gates in 1936 as a result of "Car 99."

So when her old bosses sued her, to cash in on her publicity, THE Sheridan really felt like giggling at them. . . . Charles Laughton, blowing a raspberry at his boss in "If I Had a Million," expressed her emotions exactly.

Once upon a time Ann Sheridan was very happy when a boy invited her out to dinner because the "treat" meant that she could make her money go a longer way. . . . Today, she only has to decide which dinner invitation to accept because the unmarried glamor boys know that she's a short cut to publicity.

Once she swam at the Santa Monica public beaches. . . . Today she has her choice of Hollywood swimming pools. . . . Manufacturers of cars, gasolines, candy, beer, mattresses offer her fat fees to indorse their products. . . . The International air races invited her to open the races by firing a gun, or perhaps air races are opened like baseball games, with the Sheridan throwing out the first aviator.

The redheaded kid who not so long ago was ignored completely now is a "hotshot." . . . "Annie," as I have mentioned, "doesn't live here any more."

As recently as last March, Ann was 34th on the list at Warners' in fan mail. . . . This month she is third on the list. . . . Publicity did it because she has yet to give a great movie performance. . . . In one month, her attractive features appeared on the covers of ten national magazines.

So her fan mail has grown to tremendous proportions, and this fan mail has presented a new studio problem. . . . Glamor girls always are the targets for obscene fan mail from crackpots and degenerates. . . . Two men now cull through all of the fan mail sent to her.

◆

The metamorphosis of Ann Sheridan originated last March at the Town house, local hostelry on Wilshire boulevard, a stone's throw from the turrets of Los Angeles. . . . Actuated by the Warner publicity department, a group of Hollywood men-about-town, impaneled as a jury, returned the verdict that she was the "oomph" girl of pictures.

Warner's Bob Taplinger, who has a remarkably honest face to mask his guile as a publicity man, swears that the contest was on the up-and-up, and that the ballot box was not stuffed or otherwise tampered with.

Mister Taplinger is one of my very close friends but, frankly, I never have believed him. . . . I've always been convinced that some terrible fate would have befallen the twenty-five jurors had they eaten Mr. Taplinger's dinner and consumed his choice vintage wines and then elected a non-Warner actress.

Even the fact that he had the jury wear white ties and tails is proof of my suspicion. . . . They didn't know it, but he had them all prepared for a wholesale wake, in case they double-crossed him.

◆

The earl of Warwick, one of the jurors, refuted the legend that all Britishers lack a sense of humor before the evening had ended. . . . Some one asked that inasmuch as they voted Ann into the "oomph" title, it would be illuminating if some one decided what it was. . . . The earl hastened into the breach and closed it wittily: "Oomph," said he, "is a feminine desirability which can be observed with pleasure but cannot be discussed with respectability."

SYNOPSIS.

Lee Reynolds, promoter of children's acts in the days before motion pictures, is attracted to the tenement flat of the Lichts by the singing of their little daughter, Josefa. Next day he calls with his wife and persuades the Lichts to let him take Josefa into his home and train her for the stage. Two older children, Lena and Eddie, live with the Reynolds. During a stage show Eddie's voice breaks and Josefa goes to his rescue, saves the act, and becomes famous overnight. Josefa is billed as Sheila Doone. Lena hides her envy and hatred of Sheila by pretending friendship. Backed by Producer Leica, Lena becomes a motion picture actress in the infant industry. With Lena's brief day waning Leica signs up Sheila. Lena loses a coveted rôle to Sheila. Lena forces Harry Larch, a leading man who falls in love with Sheila, to marry her and she retires from the screen. Her husband is accidentally drowned. Sheila helps Lena financially and depends on Lena for business advice. Lena finds a new attraction in Austin Birch, an actor. And Sheila becomes secretly engaged to Ronny Low, her new leading man. Austin Birch falls in love with Sheila and proposes to her. She tells him of her engagement to Ronny. Lena's hopes of marrying Austin are thwarted. Sheila and Ronny are married and buy a ranch, leaving most of the arrangements to Lena. The night Sheila's son is born Ronny loans Lena $2,500. Then Ronny is notified that his contract will not be renewed. And Sheila loses the favor of her public. But when sound comes in they stage a triumphant comeback. Ronny dies of a ruptured appendix. Sheila suffers a breakdown and leaves with her son for Albuquerque to rest. The bank where Sheila, on Lena's urging, had placed all her savings, fails. Leaving little Ronny in Albuquerque Sheila returns to Hollywood. Leica, hoping to sign her up cheaply later on, spreads rumors she has lung trouble, so no one else will hire her. Lena becomes secretary and mistress to Isaacs, Leica's assistant.

INSTALMENT XXIV.

HUMBLE PIE.

Sheila had innumerable friends who wished her well, trusted her and believed in her, but there was no one who could give her a job. She did not begin to borrow a few dollars here and a few there until she had pawned for ridiculous sums her mink coat, her black fox, her jewels, the sapphire pendant that Birch had given her and last her engagement ring.

She went out a great deal. Some people still had money and still liked to spend it. And it was Sheila's best policy to be in the public eye as much as possible. It was important to live down the rumors of her continued ill health and she almost made herself sick in trying to prove to the world how strong and hearty she really was.

But at last there came a little break in the long story of her bad luck. It necessitated the eating of a little slice of humble pie.

"That you, Sheila?"

The sound of her agent's voice over the telephone still gave her little flutters of hope. The bell had surprised her in her bath, and because the telephone was now the most important thing in her life she flew to answer it wet and naked.

"What do you think?"

"All right, have it your own way. Listen. I'm ashamed to tell you. It's tough explaining over the phone. I wish I could see you for a moment."

"You're too young and innocent. What's on your mind? Spill it."

"Of course, I said you wouldn't think of such a thing, but they said there was no harm in asking."

"A quickie?"

"I'm afraid so."

"What's the job worth?"

"Three hundred dollars."

"Ouch."

"I knew you wouldn't take it."

"Hey, hold on there, don't hang up. Who said I wouldn't take it? I have to take it. I have to take anything I can get. Is it a good part?

"That's what they say."

A quickie is a full length feature picture made in five or six days at the cost of a shoestring of money. Some of the big companies began with quickies and grew up to more expensive and better things.

The fact that the famous Sheila Doone was going to work in a quickie did not get about until she had already worked in it. Lena was the first to telephone and congratulate her on landing a job.

"I think it's splendid of you," Lena said, "not to sit around on a high horse and starve to death. The public will see you again and they'll write in and say why isn't Sheila Doone back in big pictures? And the first thing you know you will be."

Lena was still the devoted friend, always telephoning and dropping in unexpectedly, full of sympathy and advice and indignation for the heads of studios who were shy of giving Sheila work. Lena was also careful to be insistent about her own financial difficulties and worries.

Everything, she said, had gone in the crash and more besides. She had a good salary but the court only allowed her enough of it for the bare necessities. The rest went to her debtors.

The truth about Lena was this. She was sitting pretty. She had three or four times the salary of average secretaries, and Isaacs was generous with jewelry and money on the side. Her grandiose land schemes had come to nothing, but she had no creditors and was once more on the high road to independence.

Sheila read of Austin Birch's marriage to Dolly Vernon ["America's wealthiest orphan"] with a tinge of dismay. It made her realize how swiftly time was flying. And she was sorry that she had telegraphed him for help, and wondered a little why he had not answered her telegram.

The matter was easily explained. The accumulated mail on his return from India was too much for him. His bride-to-be helped him go through it. Sheila's telegram asking for a small loan and signed "Sheila" was opened by America's wealthiest orphan, and as the telegram asked for money and was signed by a woman it was this one's privilege to decide that it was neither personal nor important. So she stuffed Sheila's poor little begging message into a pile which was to be destroyed and forgave Austin for once having known a hussy named Sheila, and felt that she had done her duty to herself.

Time really was flying.

The prohibition amendment had been repealed, and even in southern California it was discovered that the bill of rights was still alive, and that if a man wanted to see a horse race and bet on the result it was his privilege to do so. The Los Angeles district tried to do everything in a big way. Everything has to be the "most" or the "biggest."

From its first running the Santa Anita handicap cut into the prestige of the world's oldest and most famous races, and from all the world the millionaires with stables and their trainers, jockeys, friends, and hangers-on flocked to Hollywood.

Among the first of the picture magnates to go haywire over the racing game and buy himself a stable of horses was Isaacs. He entertained lavishly, and in the course of time Lena got to know most of the worthwhile millionaires by their first names.

One of these was Ambrose. Ambrose Fleming in spite of what the politicians had done to his fortune and were still doing was worth at least fifty million dollars. He was slim, dark, shy and, when you got to know him, wise, affectionate and merry. He was an orphan and unmarried

Lena was just another beautiful woman, but when young Fleming had danced her two or three times around the Cocoanut Grove he discovered that she was easier to talk to than the others. He knew nothing about her. He made inquiries. She was a widow, she had a child, she was possibly a few years older than she looked, she was Isaac's secretary, she was popular, she went everywhere, she had a lot of sense. Nobody said anything mean about her.

Young Fleming was curious to know how pictures are made. He had been too shy to tell others of this shameful secret craving. But he told Lena. She arranged things so that he could come and go on the Leica lot almost as if he had a job there.

He flew east. On parting with Lena he screwed up his courage to the sticking point, turned a nice embarrassed pink and said, "I'll miss you." "I'll miss you," said Lena in that abrupt convincing way she had of saying things. They shook hands and at the end of it each gave the other's hand a little extra friendly squeeze.

Ambrose Fleming hated New York, hated Palm Beach, was too much rained on in Aiken and flew west. The only person to be notified of his impending arrival except by the newspapers was Lena.

The telegram made her heart jump. The young man really did like her. She began at once to dream dreams. Upon an impulse she carried her telegram into Isaac's office, spread it on the table in front of him and threw herself on his mercy.

The 'Don't Cry' Plea Should Be Tempered with Human Kindness

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

[Copyright: 1939: News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

The little boy ran and fell in one of those long grinding falls on the rough concrete that gouge the knees and palms.

He picked himself up and I saw the young face distorted with the effort not to cry or show his shock and pain.

"That's my brave boy—don't cry," said his father.

It made me angry as I looked at the too grim little face and the raw flesh with the dirt ground in.

Well, it's all right to be a Spartan mother or father. But there is such a thing as carrying it too far.

I don't believe in making children "soft." I don't believe in teaching them to place too much importance on physical discomfort. I believe they should learn to buck up and develop a certain amount of stamina and self-control as far as pain is concerned. But carrying it too far is apt to develop too many inhibitions.

Sometimes we are apt to forget that children are human, too. We are so afraid they will be weaklings if we don't hammer away at "Don't cry." But I can assure you their control in the face of pain will develop normally with the years without your constant [and often inhuman] cheerful stoicism.

Thank you, Mrs. E. H., for your 20 year old TRIBUNE clipping of the recipe for poached pears. Thanks, too, to Mrs. M. C. for a typewritten copy of the recipe. Here it is, just as it appeared in this column two decades ago.

POACHED PEARS.

To poach pears, prepare a sirup with 1 cup of cold water and 1 cup of granulated sugar, stirring the two together until the sugar is dissolved. Then cook to sirup stage. In the meantime, peel and quarter four pears and, when the sirup is ready, put the pieces of pear in it and cook them for 15 minutes. Skim them out of the sirup, arrange them in a crown in a small compotier, and add a teaspoon of vanilla to the sirup, or a vanilla pod may be cooked in it from the start. Then pour sirup over the fruit.

Variations of the recipe which appear in the clipping will be sent on to Mrs. A. S., who made the request, and will be sent to any other readers who care to send for it. [Enclose a self-addressed, stamped envelope, please!]

That all-American favorite, the "hot dog," has come in for a new tenderizing treatment. The "franks" are subjected to a bath or spray of fruit juice solution before they receive their regular curing, smoking, and cooking. The method, which is the development of quite a bit of research on the part of the packer, insures a non-tough casing without in any way affecting that famous flavor. So here's to hot dogs that won't spurt with every fork prick.

Can tomatoes now. And can them with a minimum loss of vitamin "C" by following the cold pack method for tomatoes given in "Homemaker's Guide to Canning." The booklet costs only five cents if picked up at the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street and Tribune Tower. It will be mailed for 7 cents in stamps.

According to CULBERTSON

[Copyright: 1939: By Ely Culbertson.]

Finesses are an irresistible lure to many players, particularly when they figure that, even if the finesse goes wrong, a discarding opportunity will have been created. The measure of this philosophy, however, is whether or not such discarding opportunity will be valuable. Declarer thought it would in the following hand, but found that he was wrong!

South, dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.

NORTH
♥ K 4 3 2
♦ J 5 3

WEST
♠ Q J 7 2

SOUTH

♥ A Q 10 9 8
♦ Q 7 2
♣ A J

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 heart	Pass	3 hearts	Pass
4 hearts	Pass	Pass	Pass

West opened the spade queen, which dummy won. Now, to guard against the possibility of either defender holding four trumps to the jack, declarer properly led low to the double honor in his own hand. When both opponents followed, declarer no longer had to worry about a 4-0 break. Having won with the ace, he next laid down the heart queen in order to preserve dummy's entry, then picked up East's jack by leading to the king. Now, with his mind fixed on his spade loser, declarer blithely took a club finesse to his jack, apparently figuring that, even if this finesse went wrong, he later would be able to discard his losing spade on the club king. As a matter of fact, his reasoning was quite unsound: when the jack lost to the queen, all West would have had to do was return a spade and declarer would have found himself blocked with the singleton club ace in his own hand and no way of reaching dummy to cash in the club king.

But to prove that declarer's plan had no value, West did not even have to make the spade return, with its consequent blocking action, to defeat the contract. Actually, he returned a club. Now it was easy for declarer to get his own club ace out of the way, then to cross to dummy's spade king and discard his spade loser on the club king. But this did him absolutely no good! Now he had to "break" the diamond suit for himself, and there was no way by which he could avoid the loss of three diamond tricks.

A far simpler and absolutely safe plan was available. After drawing three rounds of trumps, declarer should have cashed the ace and king of clubs, then should have ruffed dummy's third club. Next, he should have cashed dummy's remaining spade trick, then should have thrown either opponent on lead with the third spade. Now it would be up to the opponents to break the diamond suit and they, of course, would be unable to win three diamond tricks. If they refused to break diamonds, preferring to lead another spade or club, the result would be equally satisfactory from declarer's point of view, since he then could discard a diamond from one hand while ruffing in the other.

The ironical part of the club finesse was that, even if it had succeeded, declarer would have been no better off than by playing for the suggested strip and end play. With the club finesse holding, he could discard his third spade on dummy's club king but, in that case also, he would have to break the diamond suit for himself and lose three tricks.

Young Violinist Wins Audience at Grant Park

BY EDWARD BARRY.

As if dismayed at the shortness of the time that remains, the management of the free Grant park concerts is packing these final days with interest. Last night David Moll, an extraordinary violinist, played with the George Dasch orchestra.

In the final movement of the Bruch G-minor concerto young Mr. Moll quite carried his audience away, so passionate and vigorous did his performance become. The gypsyish tune fairly crackled under his fingers; the superb sustained theme which follows it managed to combine dignity and urgency in a tremendously moving manner.

The slow movement, glorified by countless subtle color variations, achieved a direct, human, singing quality. The violin almost became part of the violinist, obediently externalizing each nuance of feeling as it came.

Mr. Dasch and his men gave the Beethoven Second symphony a performance marked by a tranquil line and by a splendid sense of continuity. There were cunningly prepared entrances and luminously beautiful tonal effects.

The vocal soloist was Anna May Diefenderfer, a Reading, Pa., soprano whose pitch sense and feeling for rhythm are good, but whose work is marred by a deficiency of actual voice quality and by failure to project her songs effectively.

Cloete Unfolds Another Cycle in South Africa

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

"Watch for the Dawn," by Stuart Cloete. [Houghton-Mifflin, $2.50.] Published Tuesday.

Twenty years before the dramatic period which gave Stuart Cloete the background for "The Turning Wheels," his popular epic of the Boer trek in South Africa, there was trouble between the English and the settlers, between the settlers and the Kaffirs, bitter trouble drenched in blood.

The hero of "Watch for the Dawn" had "come to the north" because he had thought that in the wilds he would find freedom. "Instead," says the author, "he had found carnage. Devoid even of its trappings, injustice and cruelty reigned here also." Carnage, injustice, and cruelty are, in Mr. Cloete's hand, molded with the beauty of the veldt and of the bush into a drama of a day long past.

"Watch for the Dawn" may be one plaque of a vast historic saga of South Africa of which "The Turning Wheels" is another, with the whole panorama still to be unrolled by Mr. Cloete.

There was an impact that tumbled readers over in "The Turning Wheels." So many strange and unusual sights and sounds had rarely been met with in modern fiction. Perhaps because "The Turning Wheels" describes so vividly the strange African scene that we could not forget it, the background of "Watch for the Dawn" seems a scene already known. Or perhaps the author is here interested more in what happens than in where it happened, and in his previous book one felt that nowhere else in the world [as was indeed the truth] could that particular cycle of adventure have taken place, so inextricably was the background a part of and cause of its events.

In "Watch for the Dawn," families a day's ride from one another, surrounded by hostile Kaffirs and served by captured Hottentots sometimes with black blood mingled with their Dutch blue, live pioneer lives of vast and patriarchal proportions, each patriarch his own sovereign in his own eyes. It is the killing of one powerful old man which looses the hatred of the settlers, turns their smouldering dislike into an active guerilla warfare lost before it is begun, but "in fifty, in a hundred" years, to be won, not within the lives but within the hopes of its characters.

"Watch for the Dawn" is a historical thriller so well done that its readers may forget its thrills to remember its history.

A Fantastic Thriller

"Rogue Male," by Geoffrey Household. [Little Brown, $2.]

A thriller out and out, one that grabs you on page one and releases you with a push into the future on page 280, is this story of an Englishman who went gunning for the biggest game a huntsman ever bagged—a dictator! Some famous British wit is said to have declared recently about the present international crisis, "While there's death there's hope."

"Rogue Male," breathlessly related in the first person, opens with the urge of one Englishman to shoot a dictator in a country "across the border from Poland." He relates the ease with which he sighted his quarry and then plunges into a wild and hair raising record of how, caught before he shot, he was left for dead, clinging to a cliff by his finger nails; how, a mass of jellied wounds on the rocks below, he escaped with superhuman effort and was hunted like a wild animal through England by the dictator's secret service.

There is tensity on every page, in every line of this tale. It is almost a psychological as well as physical map of a man's hairbreadth evasion of death, a fantastic thriller.

Secrets of Heredity

"You and Heredity," by Amram Scheinfeld. [Stokes, $3.] Published yesterday. Joint selection of the Book of the Month Club for September.

"Here at least we have the first glimmers of true light as to why we are what we are and what we can do to make the world better. Genetics and the related sciences have proved beyond question that we can guide, if not control, the destinies of those who follow us by selecting the units of biologic and social inheritance which we pass on to them. . . . If we are called on to decide what first to include in our legacy to succeeding generations, our wisest choice might well be whatever genes there are, biologic and social, that make for better human understanding."

Thus ends this extremely interesting book about "the sources of the good and bad in us," a simple, popular book on the hitherto rather esoteric science of genetics [not to be confused with eugenics].

Just what we have inherited or can pass on to our children and what we have not inherited because instead it has been the result of environment, is the structure of Mr. Scheinfeld's very careful volume. Why you were a man, and you a woman child; why your hair is black and yours yellow; why my eyes aren't blue but yours are; why insanity is a heritage and why syphilis cannot be actually inherited; why most disease is environmental and economic rather than hereditary; how parentage is scientifically determined; how genius [especially musical, of which Mr. Scheinfeld made an exhaustive study] is "hereditary"; a serious scientific analysis of the old "chicken or egg first" question of evolution from the two varying viewpoints of Darwin and modern science, and a final chapter on the fallacy of "race" fill over 400 highly illuminating pages, written so simply that no reader need shy from them.

P. G. Wodehouse Tidbit

"Loopy to the tonsils" is the way one beautiful girl describes Uncle Fred. That is a descriptive enough phrase for "Uncle Fred in the Springtime." "Wacky," our more local argot, also might do. And who of us these days doesn't need a dash of happy madness.

Wodehouse fans need only be told that this is P. G. doing his best didos. Those who have not as yet met Mr. Wodehouse need only know that he convincingly portrays every one from Uncle Fred, who doesn't react to psychiatry, up and down through a roster of those who all seem psychiatric, including that supertemperamental prize porker, "The Empress of Blandings." After that they can take it or leave it—though it is only fair to say that once taken, Mr. Wodehouse has rarely been known to be left.

An Early Follower of Hitler's Party Analyzes the Doctrines of Naziism

"The Revolution of Nihilism," by Hermann Rauschning. [Alliance, $3.] Published Monday.

Hermann Rauschning.

Dr. Rauschning subtitles his book "warning to the west." It is an incisive, dramatic, and sometimes breathtaking analysis of National Socialism in Germany. The author joined Hitler's party in its early days, he says, because he believed at the time it offered the best constructive program for a new order that would restore the Germany of old. Dr. Rauschning sadly admits that his allegiance was mostly wishful thinking. His disillusionment came when, as president of the Danzig senate, he was called upon to oppress the Jews and arrest Catholic priests. When his personal appeal to Hitler was referred to his own political opponent, Dr. Rauschning says, he knew that he and National Socialism had reached the fork in the road.

The new order in Germany that has kept Europe in turmoil these recent years, the author says, is essentially destructive and so inconsistent in its motivations that its very inconsistencies paradoxically create a well defined pattern. Manned by men whose sole allegiance is to themselves, National Socialism, asserts Dr. Rauschning, is a permanent revolution, having as its only goal the complete annihilation of the old order and the maintenance of its own "élite" group in power. This permanent revolution must continue in order to live, he says, and a world domination is inherent in its concept.

Dr. Rauschning makes clear why Hitler, who rose to power on an anticomintern platform, could so easily come to terms with soviet Russia. He says Hitler humbled himself before his own party in the early days in order to attain a tactical advantage, and will do it again. Being entirely nihilistic by nature, says the author, National Socialism can look upon treaties and promises as useful gadgets, to be tossed aside when no longer useful. W. D.

A Study of Judas

"Judas," by Eric Linklater. [Farrar & Rinehart, $2.]

Using every clew afforded in the Bible and calling frequently on his own powerful imagination, Eric Linklater has written the story of Judas in the week before he betrayed the one he both loved and feared. The story is told with sincerity and dignity, but in words of the twentieth century.

Judas loved common people—in the abstract—and was attracted to Jesus' teachings of love and peace, believing they would abolish war, hatred, and waste. But Judas detested any intimate contact with Christ's followers, and came to fear that Jesus' disregard of the money changers and all worldly possessions would lead to revolution and a destruction of property, principally his own.

So, this man who had taste and intelligence, but was weak, cowardly, impulsive, and overly sensitive, permitted himself to be drawn away from the Master and into the machinations of the property conscious Sanhedrin. Mr. Linklater's conception of Judas is largely a fictional creation, as all interpretations must be. But from it Judas emerges as a vivid, living figure. J. H. T.

Good Summer Reading

"Strange Victory," by Franken Meloney. [Farrar & Rinehart, $2.]

This novel falls into the class of summer reading. It is light, entertaining, and wholesome. The heroine, Paige Griswold, is a clever young woman, down on her luck. In desperate straits, she decides to take up service as a governess, and through a ruse is hired by a wealthy bachelor, Michael Herron, to care for the orphaned child of the woman he had loved and who had died tragically as the result of an automobile accident.

In love with the memory of Erica's mother, it takes Michael most of the book to realize that Erica's governess is a charming, witty, lovable person. There are, of course, obstacles in the path of romance, but in the end all is bright and serene. Among the most entertaining passages are those describing Buster [short for window buster], a gigantic Irish wolfhound. E. W.

Vivid Chronicle from a Page in Roman History

BY MARCIA WINN.

"The Gladiators," by Arthur Koestler. [Macmillan, $2.50.]

In the year 73 B. C., when Julius Caesar was a young man of 29, not yet in power, the name of Spartacus, a gladiator, began to ring through the Roman countryside. To many it inspired terror; to the slaves it inspired hope, for had conditions been propitious and the character of men less rude, Spartacus would have been an Abraham Lincoln. He, too, sought to free the slaves, by forming a Utopian, communal Sun state, but he led them, instead, to death in the tragic Servile war.

Arthur Koestler has taken this figure, a slave who became known as the Thracian prince, and built a thrilling novel around him, based on firm, historical facts. It is a story that teems with the ferocity, greed, and frustrated ideals of the Roman republic and the futility of attempting to combat them.

It begins when Spartacus and 70 fellow gladiators flee from the stable of Lentulus of Capua rather than kill each other in the arena. It ends two years later, after Spartacus and the horde of 100,000 who gathered around him have had all southern Italy in their power and have lost it because the horde thought freedom meant freedom from work and an open sesame to looting.

Then the Roman legions came, and after countless encounters, many of them victorious, Spartacus fell, and with him most of his followers. The remaining 4,000, impaled upon wooden crosses, formed a guard of terror for the triumphant entry to Rome of Cassius, who with Pompey accomplished their final defeat.

Roman society learned from this, history says, how startlingly near it was to revolution. Mr. Koestler has made it into a vivid chronicle that should stand easily beside "Ben Hur" or "Quo Vadis?"

A Tale of Old Concord

"Listen for the Voices," by Anne Colver. [Farrar & Rinehart, $2.50.]

This is a tale of old Concord in the days when Thoreau, the Alcotts, and Emerson were young and lived there together. The time is 1848-'51, and the philosophy of these "radicals," as they were called, was just beginning to permeate New England.

Somehow Miss Colver, using actual quotations, has managed to weave them all together in a story. She also brings in Nathaniel Hawthorne, James Russell Lowell, Harriet Beecher Stowe, Herman Melville, Ellery Channing, and a host of lesser luminaries.

As a story it is thin, but as a picture of an era and a people it is good. The principal characters are fictitious, but the most clear-cut characters, strangely enough, are the Alcotts, and the most entrancing, Henry Thoreau.

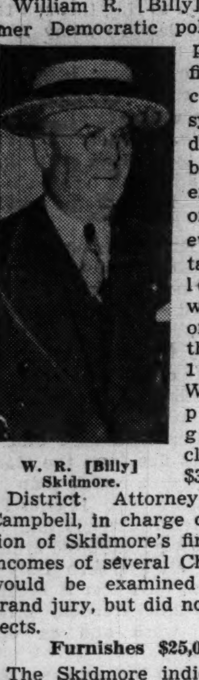
INDICT SKIDMORE ON $210,118 TAX EVASION CHARGE

Probe on Other Gambling Figures Planned.



W. R. [Billy] Skidmore.

William R. [Billy] Skidmore, former Democratic politician and reputed collector or fixer for the Chicago gambling syndicate, was indicted yesterday by a special federal grand jury on charges of evading income taxes. He is alleged to have withheld a total of $210,118 for the years 1933 to 1937, inclusive. With interest and penalties, the government claims he owes $361,272.

District Attorney William J. Campbell, in charge of the investigation of Skidmore's finances, said the incomes of several Chicago gamblers would be examined by a federal grand jury, but did not name the suspects.

Furnishes $25,000 Bond.

The Skidmore indictment was returned before Judge James H. Wilkerson. Soon afterward Skidmore appeared in the United States courthouse and furnished bond of $25,000. The bond was furnished by Joseph Johnson of 4224 Hazel avenue, a broker. An effort by Skidmore's attorney, William Goldstein, to prevent his being fingerprinted was unsuccessful.

During the years under investigation Skidmore paid only $6,506 in income taxes. It is the government's contention that he had a "currency" income of $532,343 for the period and that a part of this came from gambling activities.

In his tax returns for 1934 to 1937, Skidmore listed losses on his seven large farms in McHenry county at $98,656. He claimed this loss was sustained in operation of the properties. Most of the evidence against him was presented by E. Riley Campbell of the treasury department's income tax division and Assistant District Attorney Austin Hall.

Special Jury Dismissed.

The special grand jury that returned the indictments—one for each of the five years—was dismissed by the court. It had also investigated the income of Moses L. Annenberg, wealthy Philadelphia publisher and New Deal critic, and returned indictments charging evasion against him.

1937....	2,492.91	104,093.93	34,976.24

Balance due, $210,117.53.

Reputedly a Millionaire.

By his own statement Skidmore, who lives at 3500 Lake Shore drive, is 62 years old. Some of his acquaintances believe he is some years older, although his appearance belies this. He is quiet and retiring and is reputedly a millionaire. It has been reported that he has not been farther from Chicago than the McHenry county farms in twenty-five years.

Skidmore began life as a poor boy. He sold programs at the old Harlem and Washington Park race tracks. At 19 he made a fortunate bet and used the stake he won to buy a cigar store with a handbook as a sideline. Later he went into the saloon business, and his place at Lake and Robey [now Damen avenue] streets, was a hangout of politicians and gamblers.

About 1907 he began to dabble in politics as a follower of Carter H. Harrison. Later he was allied with the Roger Sullivan organization of Democrats. He served as purchasing agent for the Democratic national committee and was sergeant at arms of the national convention in 1912.

Indicted for Graft in 1917.

This gave him prestige, some of which was lost when a Republican mayor was elected. He was soon on good terms with the administration, however, and in 1917 was indicted as a participant in a graft ring. Charles C. Healy, then chief of police, and the late Sergt. Stephen K. Barry were codefendants.

State's Attorney Maclay Hoyne prosecuted the case. Some of Skidmore's old associates became state witnesses. After a four month trial before Judge Joseph Sabath the defendants were acquitted.

Later Skidmore established himself in a shabby junkyard office at 28th street and California avenue, where he still conducts his affairs. He is supposed to have been associated in gambling enterprises with William Johnson and Julius [Lovinputty] Annixter.

M'GARRY LEAVES FELONY COURT TO TUNE OF THREATS

Offers to Cite State's Attorney's Aid.

Yesterday was Judge Eugene L. McGarry's last day in Felony court. It was also the occasion for another clash with the state's attorney's office. McGarry threatened a prosecutor with ten days in jail for contempt.

The judge's threat was made after the prosecutor, Joseph O'Connor, objected to McGarry's action in quashing complaints against two men who, according to police, confessed to being accessories in an extortion case.

The Chicago Crime commission announced later in the day that its observer in the Felony court would make a full report on the incident. Two other cases in which the commission alleges the judge acted arbitrarily and with partiality have been referred to the judiciary committee of the Chicago Bar association.

The defendants freed yesterday are Fred Sommerbeck, 34 years old, and Damon Murphy, 21. The accessory charges against them were signed by Charles Lippott, 57 years old, of 16 West Ontario street, an ex-mail carrier.

Two men, posing as policemen, told Lippott that he had been accused of improper advances toward Murphy. They said they could square the case if he put up money for bond. Lippott gave them $683, his life's savings. A few days later the men gave Murphy and Sommerbeck $30 each for having informed them that Lippott had the money.

Murphy and Sommerbeck confessed their part, O'Connor said, and Murphy made a statement clearing Lippott of any wrongdoing. The men who posed as police are being sought.

Moves to Quash Complaints.

When the case was called before Judge McGarry yesterday, Attorney Henry M. Tufo, representing Murphy and Sommerbeck, moved to quash the complaints on the ground that there could be no accessory charges until the principals were under arrest.

Then occurred this colloquy between McGarry and O'Connor.

McGarry—I will quash the complaint.

O'Connor—Will your honor continue the case to the end of the call?

O'Connor—We would like to have it continued.

McGarry—You heard the ruling.

O'Connor—But these men will be gone.

As Tufo and his clients started out, Judge McGarry told O'Connor:

"Thank you," said O'Connor.

Judge McGarry jumped up.

"That remark is unnecessary," he said sharply, "and a repetition of it will mean 10 days in the County jail for contempt."

O'Connor left the court and conferred with First Assistant State's Attorney Wilbert F. Crowley.

Deplores Judge's Actions.

"It is regrettable," Crowley said later, "that Judge McGarry saw fit to take such arbitrary action without giving the state an opportunity to investigate and be heard in reply to the motion to quash. The case will be discussed with the complaining witness and the police and we will determine what course to follow."

Later Defense Attorney Tufo asserted that quashing the complaint was far from arbitrary. "This was the third time the case had come up," he said. "The state had ample time. The complaint was so faulty that no judge could have sustained it."

Judge McGarry has been transferred to a civil branch of the Municipal court. On Thursday he appeared before the judiciary committee of the bar association which is considering allegations against him.

Two Seized for Rifling South Side Mail Boxes

SISTER'S SUITOR ADMITS HAMMER SLAYING OF GIRL

Leads Police to Victim's Body in Culvert.

A suitor who resented the interference of his sweetheart's sister in his romance today confessed killing a missing Chicago stenographer and led state's attorney's police to her body.

The victim was Miss Anna Riermaier, 25 years old, of 3911 North Marshfield avenue, who disappeared Aug. 11 while on her way to work. Her body, slugged and gagged, was found early today in a culvert beneath U. S. highway No. 12 in Lake county, one mile north of Volo.

Yorke Bodden, 23, a painting contractor, 5619 North Kenton avenue, led police to the body. He was seized early last night and confessed several hours later.

Tells of Slaying Sister.

Bodden told authorities, according to Lieut. Tom Kelly of the state's attorney's police, that Florence Riermaier, 23 years old, his sweetheart and sister of the dead girl, had told him that Anna "didn't like him."

At about 7:15 o'clock on the morning of Aug. 11, he told police, he met Anna at California and Belmont avenues as she was on her way to work. He told her he would drive her to the Sears, Roebuck & Co. store at Homan avenue and Arthington street, where she was employed. She got into the car.

Instead of driving off, Bodden told police that he slugged the girl over the head with a hammer at the spot where he had met her. He then stuffed the girl's body into the trunk of his car and drove around with it all day.

Visits Dead Girl's Mother.

During the course of his travels with the girl's body he said he had visited her home and talked with her mother. Later that evening, police said he told them, Bodden drove to the point near Volo where he stuffed the body beneath the culvert.

Attention was directed to Bodden because of his own disappearance at the time Miss Riermaier vanished. He returned to Chicago on Aug. 14, saying he had been on a trip to near by cities. Police who shadowed him after the girl's family reported he had taken her to work several times learned that when he returned from his trip his car had been freshly washed and that there were some unexplained scratches on it. They arrested him last night as he was driving at Petersen road and Cicero avenue. Although arresting officers said he "shook like a leaf" when he was apprehended, he denied at first knowing anything about the girl's disappearance. Later he confessed.

Officers quoted Bodden as saying that he "wasn't sorry he did it." The man, they said, is an Englishman of a cold, stolid type who boasts he never took a drink in his life.

Capt. Daniel A. Gilbert of the state's attorney's police led the party that went with Bodden to find the body.

One Legged Bandit Robs Clerk and Seizes Drug

A one legged man who walked with crutches held up Raymond Dovin, a clerk, in the drug store at 3932 Fullerton avenue, last night. He forced Dovin to turn over a quantity of morphine and then took $15 from the till. The bandit held his hand in his coat pocket as though he had a gun. He escaped in a car.

CUBS SPLIT WITH DODGERS; FACE REDS TODAY

YANKS BATTER DOWN FELLER, INDIANS, 11 TO 8

DiMaggio Crashes 2 Triples.

Cleveland, O., Sept. 1 (AP).—When Bobby Feller's fireball cooled off today the Cleveland Indians undertook to outslug the New York Yankees—and like so many others, failed. The score was 11 to 8.

Joe DiMaggio had another of his big days, hitting two triples and a single to bat in six runs, and with some important assistance from the rest of the Yankee sluggers, the end was inevitable even though Cleveland succeeded in catching the champions in the seventh.

For two innings the game was a scoreless struggle between Monte Pearson and Feller, seeking his twentieth victory.

Feller Is Knocked Out.

Then in the third the Yankees touched off a four run barrage climaxed by DiMaggio's first triple with two on. They disposed of Feller with three more runs in the fourth on two doubles, an error, and DiMaggio's two run single.

In the meantime the Indians kept menacing Pearson—picking up a run in the third and another in the fourth. Jeff Heath's homer, and the combination of two hits, a walk, an error, and a sacrifice fly, added three more in the sixth to set the way for a similar rally which chased Pearson in the seventh.

But in the eighth DiMaggio again tripled with two on to lead the Yankees' winning four run rally.

Shadows on My Wall.

Shadowy cobwebs spun across the gloom—
Sleep seems to have passed by my darkened room,

While down the street a car whirs silently,
And past my garden gate there comes to me

The silence of the night then seems to weave
A peaceful pattern with its witchery;
The dreams come out en masse to capture me,

And so the moon-made lace upon my wall
At long last has ensnared me in its thrall.

WASHINGTON PK. HANDICAP HEADS GETAWAY TODAY

Track Ends Best Season in Five Years.

BY HOWARD BARRY.

This is getaway day at Washington Park—the end of the track's most successful meeting since the present management, headed by Walter Gregory and Ben Lindheimer, took things over five years ago. A good stake program, a $30,000 patrons' handicapping contest, a match race, and other features brought attendance and betting far above previous seasons. Going into the final day the mutuel handle is approximately $900,000 above that of last year.

The $5,000 Washington Park handicap, which has drawn the entries of thirteen route runners, heads today's card. This gallop of a mile and an eighth will bring out four of the meeting's previous stake winners—the Valdina farm's Viscounty, Ramsey and Coppage's Mucho Gusto, Morris Vehon's Smart Trick, and Mrs. Emil Denemark's Some Count.

Increase Some Count's Weight.

Some Count, which won last Saturday's Great Western handicap under an impost of 106 pounds, will be asked to carry 112 today. Viscounty, a 3 year old which found his burden of 118 pounds too much to tote successfully against older horses in last Saturday's stake, will have another hefty package today—117 pounds. Smart Trick, which beat Flying Lill a week ago Saturday with the aid of a sixteen pound advantage, has been allotted 108 today. Mucho Gusto, whose aged legs carried him home in front in the Lakeside handicap at a mile on Aug. 12, will try to keep running through the extra furlong today with three more pounds than he carried in his stake victory. He will have 117 up.

Those which will attempt to upset the previous stake winners include Robert L., Conde Rico, Kenyon C., Bob's Boy, Show Up, Gray Jack, Dusty Dawn, Star Boarder and Chance Ray. The two last named horses raced unimpressively in a tuneup Wednesday, finishing third and fourth behind Imperial Scout in a mile race.

Horses already have begun moving to Hawthorne, which will open its meeting Monday with a program headed by the $3,500 Labor Day handicap.

Ryan Earns New Contract.

Paul Ryan, who rode Unerring to victory over Flying Lill in their match race Thursday, earned himself a two year contract with Herbert M. Woolf, owner of the winner, according to an announcement made yesterday.

The racing commission yesterday announced that the suspensions of two jockeys—Ken McCombs and Jack Mayer—had been fixed at ten days each. Both had been set down recently by the Washington Park stewards with the recommendation that the penalties be extended beyond the duration of the meeting. McCombs will be eligible to ride Sept. 8 and Mayer Sept. 13.

Sumatra III. scored handily in yesterday's Stony Island purse. Taking the lead in this six furlong dash immediately after the break, she was never headed. Jockey Bob Taylor brought her home four lengths ahead of Double B, with Opera Star third. Without having a whip put on her, Sumatra III. ran the six furlongs in 1:11, the fastest time of the meeting. In the mutuels she paid $12, $6 and $4.60.

BERWYN EVENS LEGION SERIES; TRIUMPHS, 9 TO 6

Omaha, Neb., Sept. 1 (AP).—A scrappy Berwyn, Ill., team took the second game of the American Legion baseball little world series today from the Omaha McDevitts, 9 to 6, evening the series.

The McDevitts, trailing as they went into the ninth inning, tried the last minute comeback that had won twenty-five straight games previously, but this time it was too late. Two men reached base, but Berwyn retired the side before the Omahans could score. Berwyn was outhit, 11 to 9, but the McDevitts committed six errors.

They Meet Today in Tennis' World Series

Bromwich and Riggs to Open Davis Cup Play

Haverford, Pa., Sept. 1 (AP).—Bobby Riggs of America and John Bromwich of Australia, champions of their respective nations, clash tomorrow afternoon at the Merion Cricket club in the opening match of the Davis cup challenge round, in which the invaders have been established slight favorites.

Following this match America's No. 2 star, Frankie Parker, faces Adrian Quist of Australia in another singles engagement to complete the first day's play. Although doubles pairings will not be announced until tomorrow night, Capt. Walter Pate of the American team indicated he would stand by his youthful pair of Joe Hunt and Jack Kramer against Quist and Bromwich in Sunday's tandem duel.

Pate Is Confident.

"I believe Hunt and Kramer are the strongest combination we could put together," said Pate. "I doubt they will be able to win the doubles, but even so I think we have an even chance of keeping the cup. I think we can win three of the singles."

The Australians, who last won the big mug in 1919, were confident. Capt. Harry Hopman said he would be surprised if his two man team dropped more than a single decision of the five. Riggs and Quist were drawn to play the first of Monday's singles matches, with Parker and Bromwich winding up the series.

Sir Norman Brookes, president of the Australian Tennis association, said that so far as he knew now the team would play through the national championships at Forest Hills starting Thursday. "We will unless we receive word to come home," he said.

One Flag Missing.

While far from perfect, the courts at Merion are better than the stubble on which the same teams played the challenge round last year at Germantown. Stands have been built to seat about 8,500 spectators. Flags of every nation that competed for the cup this year, except one, float from the rim of the arena. The swastika of Germany is missing. Club officials offered no explanation.

Because of the unsettled condition in Europe, insurance against financial loss in the event the tournament is interrupted, was taken out today by the Merion Cricket club. Any losses will be covered by a special policy.

All's Well with Sox; Rigney Faces Tigers

BY EDWARD BURNS.

John D. Rigney, who yesterday enjoyed a day of repose along with the other White Sox, this afternoon will go after his tenth straight victory and his thirteenth of the season, when he faces the Detroit Tigers in the first game of a two day, three game series in Comiskey park. Buck Newsom will oppose him.

There is great need for a Sox victory, the battle for third place being what it is. The Tigers can cause grave complications by sweeping today's single contest and tomorrow's double-header, but at the end of such goings on the Cleveland Indians will be in the thick of things. And Monday, while the Sox and Indians engage in an afternoon-night double-header the Tigers will have performed the less arduous task of playing the St. Louis Browns in an afternoon double bill.

The River Forest lad has achieved his string of twelve victories while losing six.

John D. has pitched in twenty-eight games and in several of the ten in which he was not the pitcher of record, he pitched seven or eight fine innings, only to see a reliever draw the eventual verdict.

Rigney has pitched 171 innings and has allowed an average of exactly a hit an inning, despite several three, four, and five hit performances.

FRENCH SCORES 6 TO 2 VICTORY; LEE LOSES, 3 TO 1

Passeau Chosen to Oppose Walters.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Brooklyn, N. Y., Sept. 1.—The spirited Dodgers, who have ambitions of their own, put a crimp in the more elaborate hopes of the third place Cubs this afternoon. The Chicagoans, with one eye on the percentage column and the other on the ball, blasted themselves to a victory, 6 to 2, in the front half of a double-header, but the pennant thoughts aroused by their triumph were soon crushed. The Dodgers waylaid them in the second game, 3 to 1, to keep them seven and one-half laps behind the leading Reds.

The Cubs dashed to the depot after today's games to catch a train for Cincinnati, where they will open a two game series tomorrow afternoon. Claude Passeau, seeking his thirteenth victory of the season, will pitch the opener against the leaders. He will be opposed by Bucky Walters, ace of the Cincinnati staff.

French Scores Again.

The Cubs' winning portion of today's program was the result of perfection both at bat and on defense. The big defender was Larry French, recently escaped from his boss' so-called doghouse. His associates provided him with three runs in the first inning, an edge which was immediately reduced by two-thirds. After the wabbly start, Larry never wavered and his lead expanded a little at a time partly as the result of homers by Gus Mancuso and Hank Leiber. It was Larry's eleventh victory and his fourth in a row.

The Dodgers' success was a triumph over Bill Lee for members of the American League Alumni association. Manager Leo Durocher, onetime Yankee, tore off a double with two of his men on bases in the second inning. One of them was Babe Phelps, a Cub graduate. That was enough to provide the Dodgers with a winning margin, but for good measure Dixie Walker, who has worn Yankee, White Sox, and Tiger uniforms, exploded his first National league homer, which helped to drive Lee to cover in the eighth. And the man the Cubs could score only one run against was Vito [Lefty] Tamulis, also a onetime Yankee.

Gabby Breaks Record.

Among those in action in the second game was Gabby Hartnett, the Cub boss whose appearance behind the plate marked his 1722d National league game, thus eclipsing by one Ray Schalk's American league mark, but leaving him four behind Schalk's interleague endurance record. Gabby celebrated this record feat in two ways. With his twelfth homer of the year he made himself responsible for the only run off Tamulis. But Gabby also contributed two to a total of eight strikeouts compiled by the ex-Yankee.

FIRST GAME

Nicholson was mainly responsible for the production of three Cub runs in the first inning of the opening game, but there were preliminaries. Hack singled and Herman doubled to right. They got no help from Galan who fouled out to Lavagetto. Leiber was purposely passed, and this was where the Dodgers made a mistake. Nicholson slapped the first pitch over short for two bases, Hack and Herman counting. Leiber hiked home on G. Russell's sacrifice fly.

The Dodgers' first inning got under way in such boisterous fashion that they sent three men to base before an out was recorded. Coscarart led off with a single through short and proceeded to the plate on Lavagetto's double to right center. Koy singled to the same spot and by the time the Cubs finished throwing the ball around Lavagetto had scored

Saratoga Springs, N. Y., Sept. 1 (AP).—For the first time this year most of the nation's best 2 year olds are getting together in the same race—tomorrow's $40,000 Hopeful—with the winner likely to have a good claim on the divisional championship.

Closing day feature of Saratoga's thirty day diamond jubilee meeting, the biggest and richest juvenile stake to date, has drawn a field of ten youngsters. If all of them go to the post in the six and a half furlong sprint the race will have a gross value of $40,450.

Entry at 4 to 5.

Overnight favorite is the Col. E. R. Bradley-Mrs. Charles Shelden entry of Boy Angler and the unbeaten Bimelech. Held at 4 to 5 by the bookmakers who made future book tonight, the pair undoubtedly will find their toughest opposition in Mrs. Parker Corning's Straight Lead and the Millsdale stable's Andy K.

Andy K., winner of the rich Arlington Futurity, finished first in Saratoga's United States Hotel stakes, but was disqualified for running out, a trait his trainer claims he has overcome. Straight Lead earlier this week won within a fifth second of the Spa course record of 1:04 3-5 for five and a half furlongs.

Only Two Missing.

The only 2 year olds of championship caliber not in the race are C. V. Whitney's Carrier Pigeon and Marshall Field's Barnet, which injured a hoof this week.

As a co-feature, the fifty-ninth running of the mile and three-quarters $8,475 Saratoga Cup has developed into a match race between Townsend B. Martin's Cravat and William Woodward's Isolater. The Martin colt was held at 1 to 3 in overnight betting, with Isolater a 5 to 2 choice.

MUSTO LOSES ON SPLIT DECISION TO EDDIE SIMMS

Verdict Surprises Crowd After Slugging Match.

Eddie Simms, Cleveland, O., heavyweight, won a split decision over Tony Musto of Blue Island in a ten round bout in White City last night. Referee Tony Gilmore voted 53-47 and Judge James Lynch scored 51-49 for Simms, but Dr. E. Allen Frankel, the other judge, cast his ballot for Musto, 51-49. The decision came as a surprise, the majority believing Musto had won.

Musto appeared to have an edge in four of the rounds and Simms in three. The others were even. It was a slugging match most of the way.

In a ten round secondary feature, Tiger Jack Fox, New York heavyweight, defeated Clarence Brown of the south side. The setback snapped Brown's string of five victories.

Eddie Long, matchmaker for Bill Rand, Coliseum promoter, has started negotiations for a ten round bout between Sammy Angott, No. 2 lightweight contender, and Davey Day, No. 3 challenger. No date was mentioned. Day, who is doing preliminary training in Hot Springs, Ark., has not boxed since May 23, when he scored an eight round technical knockout over Pedro Montanez in Madison Square Garden.

Angott obtained revenge for two previous defeats at the hands of Billy Marquart by pounding out a decision in ten rounds over the Winnipeg, Man., fighter in Pittsburgh on Monday. However, Sammy suffered a cut eye, which may keep him idle until next month. Marquart also was injured in the contest, said to have been one of the most furious battles seen in Pittsburgh in several years, Billy receiving cuts over both eyes. It was Angott's twelfth consecutive victory.

Inability to obtain suitable opposition for Milt Aron, Eddie Lander, and Alex Kettles in three contests proposed in Marigold Gardens Sept. 11 has forced the trio off the card, Matchmaker Jack Begun said last night. He now is striving to sign Billy Gillespie of Stone Lake, Wis., to meet Lem Franklin, Cleveland heavyweight, in a ten round headliner Sept. 11, which is the next date in the Marigold arena. Monday's scheduled show was called off because of the Labor day holiday.

White City promoters are seeking a ten round bout between Jimmy Christy, Catholic Youth organization lightweight, and Leo Rodak. Rodak has returned from New Orleans, where he lost a disputed encounter to Nick Camarata last Monday. . . . Mrs. Barney Ross, wife of the former lightweight and welterweight champion, has recovered from a recent illness in New York. —F. M.

MARINES' PERFECT SCORE, 800, WINS AT CAMP PERRY

Camp Perry, O., Sept. 1 (AP).—A team of eight United States marines bore down today on the 30 caliber 1,000 yard range and fired a perfect score of 800 to win the National Rifle association's Myron T. Herrick trophy. They banged 160 bullets through the bull's-eye at more than a half mile, setting a world record to win by four points over the 66th Infantry team of Fort Benning, Ga., and seven ahead of the third place 9th Cavalry of Fort Riley, Kas.

Vere Hamer, 40 year old farmer of Woodstock, Minn., replaced William Boone Woodring of Alton, Ill., as new national small bore champion. In eight matches of all descriptions he scored 3,192 of 3,200. Woodring was second with 3,188.

Members of the sharp shooting marine team were: Lieut. Edwin L. Hamilton of Quantico, Va.; Lieut. Noel O. Castle of Quantico; Sergt. Maj. William F. Pulver of Burlington, Wash.; Sergt. Maj. V. J. Kravitz of Stockfield, Tex.; Sergt. Maj. Nolan Tillman, Washington, D. C.; Gunnery Sergt. Claud N. Harris of Lancaster, N. C.; Sergt. Bennie M. Bunn, Charles City, Kas., and Sergt. Kenneth E. Harker, Quantico.

Walter R. Walsh of the federal bureau of investigation won the all-around shooting championship of the country with 1,058 of 1,100 in all types of competition.

GIANTS PURCHASE INFIELDER WITEK FROM NEWARK

New York, Sept. 1 [Special].—Manager Bill Terry today made the opening move in a revision of the Giants when he announced the purchase of Mickey Witek, 24 year old infielder from Newark's International league club, a New York Yankee farm. Obtained for an estimated $25,000 and two players, Witek will report Sept. 12, provided Newark fails to reach the playoffs. The purchase clears the way for a winter trade shifting Burgess Whitehead, Giant second baseman.

Rated successor to Tony Lazzeri in the Yank infield before Joe Gordon was uncovered, Witek is one of the best infielders in the minor leagues and has developed into a fine hitter. Latest records give him a .326 average and he is third in runs batted in with 86. Constant shifting between short and second retarded his development at Newark.

Yacillo Pitches No Hit Game; Salernos Win, 3-0

Leway Yacillo, pitcher for the Salerno softball team, pitched a no hit, no run game against the Witt Hanley in St. Philip stadium last night. The score was 3 to 0. The victory gave the Salernos third place in the Windy City league.

In the game for first place the Petrones defeated the Touhy Demos, 7 to 6, evening the series at two victories each. The fifth and final game will be played Tuesday night.

Wittinghill, Potter Win on Amateur Ring Program

and Koy was roosting on second. French crushed the next three batters, thus retaining a 3 to 2 lead.

Mancuso Hits Homer.

Pressnell's quick recovery from his shaky start kept the Cubs under his pitching thumb until the start of the fifth when Mancuso produced his second homer of the season. Three hits were used up on the next run scored by the Chicagoans. With one gone in the sixth, Nicholson beat out a hit to Coscarart and G. Russell scraped a single off Pressnell's glove. Bartell drove Nicholson across.

The Cubs' other run was Leiber's homer at the start of the eighth. It was his fifteenth of the season.

SECOND GAME

The Cubs took the lead in the second inning of the second game on Hartnett's homer, but it was quickly erased. Phelps opened the home second with a single to right and Koy walked. Manager Durocher doubled to right, Phelps and Koy scoring and Leo going to third on the throw to the plate. Durocher died on the far corner, but only because Galan closed the incident with a swell running catch of a low liner off Lavagetto's bat.

After the two run bruising in the second, Lee yielded a single in the third and another in the seventh, but despite his excellent performance, was rightfully yanked in the eighth. With one gone, Walker belted his drive against the right field screen and the ball, instead of coming down on the field in answer to the pleas of Outfielder Reynolds, hung on a ledge for a homer. Then Parks singled, so Lee departed. Whitehill fanned Camilli, walked Phelps, and ended the inning with Koy's tap to Hack.

Ninth Inning Threat Fails.

After Hartnett's homer in the second inning the Cubs' chances were few until the ninth. After two were gone, Galan was plunked on the left leg by one of Tamulis' wide tosses. Augie enjoyed another ride on a wild pitch which carried him to second. Leiber walked and then Reynolds, who had singled once, fanned for the third time.

ALICE MARBLE, VALERIE SCOTT GAIN ESSEX FINAL

Manchester, Mass., Sept. 1 (AP).—The war influence entered the Essex County club's fifteenth annual women's tennis tournament today as Defending Champion Alice Marble of Beverly Hills, Cal., and Valerie Scott of England became the tournament finalists.

Miss Marble turned back Freda James Hammersley of England, 6-4, 6-1, and Miss Scott won over Mme. Mathieu of France by the same score, but there was a noticeable lack of interest in play among the foreigners.

"Who could concentrate on tennis," said Mrs. Hammersley in summarizing the attitude of the visitors, "when our homes may be under bomb fire this very moment?"

The foreigners dominated the play, however, because of their sheer numbers, and completion of the doubles semifinals found each berth filled by an all-foreign team.

The top British Wightman Cup pairing of Mrs. Hammersley and Kay Stammers eliminated Pauline Betz and Virginia Wolfenden, both of Los Angeles, 1-6, 6-1, 6-3, while Miss Scott and Mme. Mathieu defeated Betty Nuthall and Nina Brown, 6-3, 6-1.

Misses Bernhard, Canning in Girls' Tennis Finals

Philadelphia, Pa., Sept. 1 (AP).—Helen Bernhard of New York and Pat Canning of Alamada, Cal., advanced today to the finals of the girls' national tennis tournament. Miss Bernhard defeated Louise Brough of Los Angeles, 8-6, 6-3, Miss Canning conquered Doris Hart, Miami, Fla., 6-3, 5-7, 6-3. They play for the title tomorrow.

Ed Kuehn, unattached, won the three mile amateur bicycle race in Humboldt park bowl last night. Earl Kelly, C. Y. O., was second, and Harry Kraus third. The time was 8:20. Tony Neberz and Mike Abt of the C. Y. O. won the one hour team race with 35 points. Marvin Thompson and Ed Kuehn finished second with 27 points. John Fitzpatrick and Ed Carsagnini were third.

Lefty Forces Nicholson Out of Cub Lineup

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Brooklyn, N. Y., Sept. 1.—Bill Nicholson's removal from the second game starting lineup today was his first experience of the kind since he joined the Cubs Aug. 2. He was yanked because Vito Tamulis, left hander, was pitching for Brooklyn, and the rookie has long since revealed a weakness against southpaw opposition.

Many of the Cubs weren't at all pleased when they learned the Reds had taken Al Simmons from the Bees at the waiver price. The Cubs fear the old gentleman, always a good money player, might be of considerable help to the leaders.

PATTY BERG WILL PLAY TOMORROW AT INDIAN HILL

Patty Berg, the Minneapolis redhead who last September climaxed her most brilliant competitive season by winning the national women's golf championship at Westmoreland, will return to the Chicago district tomorrow for an exhibition match at the Indian Hill club. The match will begin at 2 p. m. The club is located on Ridge road, one block south of Winnetka avenue in Winnetka.

Patty's partner in the match will be Tommy Armour of Medinah. They will play Shirley Ann Johnson of Sunset Ridge and Harry Adams of Medinah. The contest will be for the benefit of the Hadley Correspondence School for the Blind, which also is located in Winnetka.

CEDAR RAPIDS WINS THREE EYE LEAGUE PENNANT

Cedar Rapids, Ia., Sept. 1 (AP).—Cedar Rapids clinched first place in the Three Eye league tonight with a 7 to 6 victory over Evansville, second place team. Tonight's triumph gave Cedar Rapids a three-game lead over Evansville with two games to play, the season ending Sunday.

The first four teams, which now are Cedar Rapids, Evansville, Decatur and Springfield, begin their annual post-season Shaughnessy playoff next Tuesday.

Savage Pins Soldat for 8th Straight Mat Victory

Steve Savage scored his eighth straight wrestling victory when he pinned Victor Soldat in 34 minutes and 12 seconds last night in a scheduled sixty minute match in the Ringside arena in Cicero. He scored the fall with a body slam. In other matches Jack Ross pinned Pat Murphy in 20:38 and Phil Grueber won over George Mack on a disqualification.

Huisaches and Pegasus Meet for Polo Title

The fields of the Oak Brook Polo club will be deserted today as members of the Huisaches of Houston, Tex., and the Pegasus club of Rockleigh, N. J., rest up for their title game tomorrow afternoon in the national 12-goal polo tournament.

Pre-game activity will shift tonight to the Oak Brook stables on 29th street a half-mile west of York road, scene of a public sale of the Pegasus club's string of twenty-two tournament ponies and of Slieve Donard, a big, English thoroughbred stallion which sold for $36,000 before being imported to the United States three years ago, according to Douglas G. Hertz, president of the Pegasus club.

Tonight's sale will be the first of its kind in the Chicago area. It will be conducted by Harry McNair, Chicago horse dealer, with the stipulation that the ponies be allowed to play tomorrow in the title game.

Notification of the auction has been sent to polo clubs throughout the central circuit, including those at Detroit, Cleveland, St. Louis, Milwaukee, Minneapolis, Kansas City, Des Moines, and other cities. A number of these clubs will have representatives here to join with Chicago polo players in the bidding.

The All-Star polo team defeated the Rising Sun Ranch, 14 to 11, in an exhibition game at Oak Brook field yesterday. Billy Dritt, All-Star No. 2 player, scored seven goals.

THREE PROS TIE FOR LEAD WITH 141 IN HERSHEY OPEN

Hines Catches Up with Nelson and Serafin.

Hershey, Pa., Sept. 1 (AP).—Three professionals were deadlocked tonight for the lead at the half way mark in the $5,000 Hershey open golf tournament.

Bracketed at 141 after a day of shelling in which some of the nation's best found par 73 an elusive target, were Open Champion Byron Nelson of Reading, Pa.; Felix Serafin of Scranton, Pa., and Jimmy Hines, Great Neck, N. Y. Nelson and Serafin tied yesterday at 68 and equaled par today. Hines tacked a 70 to his previous 71.

Hot on the heels of the leaders were Ed Dudley, Johnny Revolta, and Ralph Guldahl at 142. At 143 were Sam Byrd, Ben Hogan, and Johnny Moyer of Shamokin, Pa. Guldahl's 69 was the best round of the day.

At 144 were Ray Mangrum of Pittsburgh, who finished with three birdies in a row for 70, and Vic Ghezzi, who equaled that score. Bracketed at 145 were a half dozen others, including Sammy Snead and Johnny Farrell. The rest of the field was strung out behind.

BUTTER RISES; TRADE HEAVIEST IN NINE MONTHS

Egg Futures Prices Soar; Buying Active.

The war influence reached into the Chicago Mercantile exchange yesterday and lifted the price of butter for delivery in November 0.70 cent a pound. Trading was heaviest in nine months on turnover of 2,323,000 pounds. Cash butter advanced ¼ cent a pound.

Sales to the Dairy Products Marketing association dropped to only 21,231 pounds. The federal agency's purchases recently have been near the million pound mark each day.

Egg Futures Prices Climb.

Egg futures soared 0.75 cent a dozen with sales totaling more than 5,000,000 dozen for the session. The Federal Surplus Commodities corporation was forced to raise its price ¼ cent to get 27,570 dozen fresh graded firsts in the cash egg market.

Governors of the exchange, taking into account the heavy demand stimulated by war news, voted to open the market for business today, which was to have been the last of the regularly scheduled Saturday summer holidays.

Month's Trade Large.

Lloyd S. Tenny, business manager of the exchange, announced that egg futures trading in August, totaling 62,856,000 dozens, was the largest for any month this year and the largest for any August in 14 years.

In August, 1938, only 30,408,000 dozens were traded. Butter futures trade, on the other hand, slumped to 13,334,000 pounds, which was the smallest for any August since 1920.

BENTON HARBOR FRUIT PRICES.

DAY by DAY on the FARM

By BOB BECKER

Blooms in All Shades.

September 1, 1939.

NOW that the parade of early autumn flowers has started, a hike through the Du Page county farm is a test in identifying shades of many unusual wild flower colors. Brilliant red cardinal flowers are blooming in the bed of the farm creek, blue lobelias are brightening the side of the road at one entrance to the farm, purple ironweed and yellow goldenrod are common, the yellow flowers of the interesting compass plant may be seen in several places, wood sunflowers add a touch of bright yellow to the roadsides, and the prairie thistle and tall woodland thistle provide gay splotches of purple.

The two thistles in flower on the farm come from a family that has an unenviable reputation among farmers and landowners, but these two members of the clan have good records. They don't spread so readily and become pests like the Canada thistle and bull thistle, and seldom cause trouble in fields. They should be considered more as native wild flowers than as weeds because of their attractive flowers and great height. When walking through the farm fields the other day we found prairie thistles 6½ feet tall and woodland thistles growing to a height of 9 feet.

Fight for an Apple.

One of the most amusing episodes we have witnessed for some time took place in the barnyard the other day. It was a free-for-all scramble among the turkeys for an apple. The turkeys get all they need to eat every day, but from the way they scrapped for the apple one would think they hadn't been fed for a week. When an apple fell from one of the trees in the barnyard the whole gang of turkeys made a rush for it. The first bird there picked up the fruit and the fun began. The winner in the race for the apple had to lead another running parade in order to eat the fruit in peace because the whole flock of apple hungry turkeys chased her around the yard and tried to snatch it.

The snow white egrets, which have been increasing their numbers in northern marshes, continue to cause considerable excitement among residents who catch sight of one of these birds for the first time. People who haven't seen these beautiful birds in former years feeding along creeks, rivers, and in sloughs are writing this department to report seeing them. Judging from the letters received from different localities the egrets are extending their range, although the dry weather late in the summer naturally restricts them to the wettest marshes and river courses where they may find frogs and other food of that type.

One Seen Near Hoopeston.

H. J. B. writes us about a "white heron" which undoubtedly is an egret. He says:

"I have heard about a white heron in the vicinity of Hoopeston, Ill., for two years. Yesterday I had an opportunity to get a fair view of this bird. If you should care to investigate further would gladly assist in any way possible."

There isn't any doubt but what this "white heron" is an egret. Most of the birds that we see in northern Illinois at this season of the year nested a little south of us. After their young have been raised the egrets become travelers. Many of them fly north to feed until cold weather sends them south. So at this season of the year one is likely to see them along most any stream. One day last week there were seven of these birds in one of the ponds of the Du Page farm. We have seen scores of them in the Fox River valley, especially below Yorkville.

CALM MARKETS, NORMAL TRADE FEDERAL AIMS

Treasury Financing Is Abandoned.

BY JOHN FISHER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 1.—With the outbreak of war abroad federal officials charged with regulation of the nation's financial and commodity markets today followed a policy of close observance and there was no indication of alarm. They were counting upon plans already made to cope with any erratic movements in the markets. In this connection the general aim is to keep the markets and business operating as usual.

Securities and Exchange officials said they were gratified at the manner in which the stock market withstood the first shock of war. They had been in constant touch with the markets, by telephone, throughout the day. A high official had expressed the opinion that the market would recover soon after the primary shock. It was asserted that there was little selling by foreigners today.

Borrowing Plan Dropped.

Increased weakness in the government bond market, however, caused the treasury to abandon plans for borrowing new money in September. Acting Secretary of the Treasury John W. Hanes said late this afternoon:

"We will not borrow any new money at this time. Secretary Morgenthau's policy of maintaining substantial cash balances at all times makes unnecessary any cash financing now. The question of refunding in advance the 1⅜ per cent notes maturing Dec. 15 will not be considered finally until next Tuesday or Wednesday."

Hanes issued this statement after he and other treasury officials had conferred this morning with the executive committee of the federal reserve board's open market committee relative to the September financing program.

Ready to Lend on Bonds.

In an effort to stabilize the bond market, the federal reserve board announced that "in view of current developments in the international situation, the federal reserve banks are prepared at this time to make advances to member and nonmember banks on government obligations at par at the rates prevailing for member banks."

The intent of the announcement, it was explained, was to reassure banks, and particularly nonmember banks, that the federal reserve system is ready to make loans on government obligations rather than have the banks unload them on the market.

This would provide a stopgap in a declining bond market. The chances of needing cash for loan needs are remote at present. Excess reserves of the member banks total nearly 5 billion dollars. The move, therefore, was interpreted here as primarily to encourage banks to keep their government obligations.

Seek Identity of Sellers.

Reserve authorities took an unusual step in asking dealers in government bonds to disclose the identity of sellers for whom they were acting and the reason for the sale.

Treasury officials have expressed satisfaction with the position banks have taken on government loans during the current weak spell, and George L. Harrison, president of the New York Federal Reserve bank, reiterated this sentiment today.

"I've never seen the New York financial community work together any better," Harrison said on his way to the financing meeting. "They're not only not selling government bonds, but are buying bonds on the way down and advising correspondent banks to do the same."

A serious problem for treasury experts, which they would not admit, may be the relationship between the dollar, French francs, and pound sterling if both France and Great Britain become embroiled in war with Germany and are forced to relinquish support of their currencies in the foreign exchange markets.

Would Need Gold for War.

Great Britain has already withdrawn official support from the pound, supposedly for a temporary period. France can be expected to follow if she enters the conflict, as both countries would need the gold funds now used for exchange stabilization to help finance the war. Further devaluation of the American dollar would have to be considered to protect foreign trade.

Concerning the securities markets, Securities and Exchange commission officials expressed the opinion that if the present trend of the market continues there probably would be no need to close the exchanges and expressed a distinct preference to avoid such a course.

Could Close Exchanges.

The SEC has the power to close stock exchanges for a period up to ninety days with presidential approval. The Commodity Exchange administration has no special war powers, but officials said they saw no excuse for any great swing in commodity prices as a result of European hostilities. J. M. Mehl, acting administrator, said that the markets are being watched closely and that a plan of action has been worked out to keep prices stable.

Preston Delano, controler of the currency, said that there was no need for his agency to take action because of the European situation. "The national banks are in the strongest condition in their history and are able to withstand any conceivable shocks," he said.

War Nations' Moneys Fall in Dollar Value

Values of currencies of European nations likely to be involved in war declined sharply in terms of the American dollar in New York and European money centers yesterday upon the outbreak of hostilities. Continental trading was either officially suspended or placed on a restricted basis during the day. British currency tumbled in terms of the dollar at New York and London. Currencies of Belgium, Switzerland, and the Netherlands—neutral nations—rose in dealings at New York.

Sterling recovered slightly toward the close at New York, but finished at $4.26 for a net loss of 7 cents. The French franc finished 0.05 cent lower at 2.43 cents. The Canadian dollar ended 2¼ cents off at 95.62½ cents. Trading was small. The Italian lira was unchanged at 5.26 cents.

Capital Seeks Neutral Nations.

Bankers attributed the advance of Belgian, Swiss, and Netherlands units to movements of capital from trouble zones to neutral nations. The Belgian belga rose 0.05 cent at 17.15 cents. The Swiss franc advanced 0.14 cent at 22.80 cents. Dutch currency added 0.10 cent at 53.50 cents.

The London money market was at a complete standstill. All quotations were nominal. Trading in foreign exchange in Paris was officially halted.

Gold was quoted in the London open market at 160 shillings, against 159 shillings on Thursday. The market was virtually idle. A total of £192,000, equivalent to $806,400 on the basis of $4.20 for the pound, was taken for unknown destinations.

Meanwhile, the New York Federal Reserve bank announced the engagement of $5,287,000 gold in England for shipment to this country. The consignment was arranged as of some previous date. The bank's daily gold statement showed imports of $24,799,000 from England. None was exported.

European Markets Are Dull.

The treasury department announced at the same time the United States monetary gold stock reached a new record high. The nation's gold stock stood at $16,638,205,856 on Aug. 30. This was $3,269,847 above the level of the preceding day.

Domestic bullion dealers held the price for foreign mined silver unchanged at 35½ cents an ounce. The treasury department's price was also maintained at the recent level, 35 cents an ounce. In London, however, silver rose. The price, based on sterling at $4.19, was equivalent to 37.24 cents an ounce.

American Gold at Peak.

European securities markets operated without official restrictions but trading was negligible. The London stock market was closed, following its official shutdown order due to the evacuation of children from the city. The Paris and Amsterdam bourses were open. The curb market at Paris was officially suspended at midday. The Copenhagen market was officially closed. Short selling was forbidden at Montreal and Toronto.

While the Paris bourse remained open for business, dealings below prices at midday were prohibited and the market was practically deserted. Many dealers were reported to have been affected by the general mobilization.

The Johannesburg stock market was closed until further notice. Brazil suspended all general exchange transactions for yesterday and today.

SPRING COMPANY BOOSTS CHICAGO PLANT ACTIVITIES

The L. A. Young Spring and Wire corporation of Detroit, which moved part of its manufacturing business into the Chicago area in 1929, will transfer additional activities to the Clearing industrial district next month.

Construction is under way on a new one story addition to its plant at the southwest corner of Oak Park avenue and West 66th street at Clearing. This unit will be used for the manufacture of parts of automobile seat cushion springs previously fabricated in Detroit and shipped here for assembling.

Since coming to Chicago in 1929 the company has expanded from an original 15,000 square feet of floor space to 165,000 square feet. The unit being built will contain 33,000 square feet.

PORT OF POLAND SETS RECORD FOR TRAFIC IN JULY

Washington, D. C., Sept. 1 [Special.—The Polish port of Gdynia set a record for freight trafic in July, the commerce department reported today. A total of 969,358 metric tons was handled, with overseas trafic representing all except 10,848 tons. [A metric ton is 2,200 pounds.]

Imports from overseas into Gdynia reached a new monthly record of 238,138 tons, an increase of 38.9 per cent over May, and 75 per cent above July, 1938. During the first seven months of this year, imports totaled 1,030,856 tons, a gain of 13 per cent over the corresponding months of 1938.

The upward trend in trafic at Danzig, which started a few months ago, continued with marked increase in July. Railway statistics, not covering the total trafic of the port, showed 699,173 metric tons were handled, an increase of 13.5 per cent over July, 1938.

Auto Production Rises; Further Gains Expected

Output of automobile plants this week was estimated yesterday by Ward's Automobile Reports, Inc., at 25,240 units, compared with 17,465 last week and 22,165 units in the corresponding 1938 week. Output next week is expected to be approximately the same as that of this week, due to the Labor day holiday. After that a steady rise through September is expected.

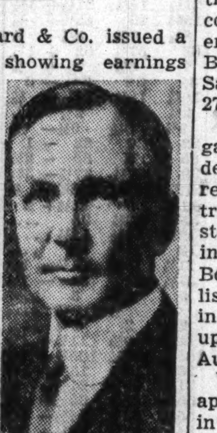
Ward Profit for 6 Months Is Twice '38

Montgomery Ward & Co. issued a report yesterday showing earnings during the six months ended July 31 were more than double those of the corresponding 1938 period. Net profit rose to $10,315,808, equal to $1.84 a share. This compared with $5,139,526, or 85 cents a share, for the six months ended July 31, 1938.



Sewell L. Avery.

Earnings of the company, Chicago mail order house and operator of a retail store chain, also topped those of the comparable period of 1937. During the six months ended July 31 that year net profit totaled $9,049,644, or $1.60 a share.

Sewell L. Avery, chairman of the board, told stockholders in an interim report that sales in the six months ended July 31 climbed 14 per cent over sales in the comparable period of 1938 and 6.5 per cent over those for the like months of 1937.

Sales Rise Sharply.

Dollar volume of sales for the six months ended July 31 totaled $208,556,790. This compared with $182,534,888 in the corresponding months last year and $195,746,755 in the six months ended July 31, 1937. Provision for federal and state income taxes in the latest six month period amounted to $2,900,000, against $1,125,000 in like 1938 months.

Pettibone Mulliken corporation, one of the leading manufacturers of railroad track equipment, reported net income of $13,811 during the three months ended June 30. Earnings were equal to 12 cents a share. This compared with net loss of $87,725 in the corresponding period last year. Sales totaled $609,780, against $343,862. The corporation's plant and headquarters are in Chicago.

Unfilled orders on June 30 were about four times the amount on the corresponding date last year, E. J. Seifert, vice president and treasurer, wrote stockholders.

Wall Paper Firm Has Loss.

United Wall Paper Factories, Inc., reported net loss of $216,198 during the fiscal year ended June 30, compared with net income of $137,885 in the preceding period. Net sales of $5,297,132, contrasted with $4,929,747 for the year ended June 30, 1938. The corporation's general offices are in Chicago.

Albert J. Browning, president, told stockholders that unprofitable operations were due chiefly to nonrecurring expenses and the liquidation of interest in an English wall paper company. The English company has shown losses exceeding $70,000 since its inception five years ago, he said, and because of its unsatisfactory operation and the unsettled state of affairs in Europe, the management decided to liquidate with a resultant loss of $91,258.

Revenue passenger miles flown during August increased about 51 per cent against the total for the corresponding month last year, while revenue plane miles flown in August gained 38 per cent.

MIDWEST DEPARTMENT STORES' SALES WIDEN GAIN OVER LAST YEAR

Department store sales in the seventh federal reserve [Chicago] district climbed 9.6 per cent over the corresponding 1938 figure in the week ended Aug. 27, the Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago reported yesterday. Sales for the four weeks ended Aug. 27 were up 7.8 per cent.

The nation's department store sales gained 3 per cent in the latest week despite decreases of 4 to 9 per cent reported by four of the reserve districts. Atlanta was out in front, with stores in that district showing a sales increase of 22 per cent over 1938. Boston was at the other end of the list with a decline of 9 per cent. Sales in all 12 federal reserve districts were up 6 per cent in the four weeks ended Aug. 27.

Within the Chicago district, Indianapolis led with a gain of 14.7 per cent in the latest week. Sales in Chicago proper advanced 12.3 per cent. Milwaukee and Detroit sales each increased 5.9 per cent, and other cities reported a drop of 3.3 per cent.

AUGUST BUILDING TOTAL IN CHICAGO ABOVE YEAR AGO

Building construction of all types in Chicago was more than a million dollars larger during August than in the same month last year. According to Building Commissioner Richard Schmidt 265 permits were issued last month for buildings valued at $2,563,880. In August of last year there were 196 permits for structures costing $1,390,600. Last month's buildings were valued at half a million dollars less than the July total which was $3,153,885.

Residential building showed a substantial increase over a year ago, and a slight gain over July. Permits for 201 single family homes were issued last month, compared with 139 in August, 1938, and 194 in July of this year.

SHIP INSURANCE RATES BOOSTED AS MUCH AS 300 PCT.

New York, Sept. 1 [Special].—Underwriters in New York again increased war risk insurance rates today on general marine policies. The increases, in some instances, were 300 per cent.

The underwriters made this announcement: "The rates in the western hemisphere remain unchanged. The rates on shipment of goods on American flag vessels not touching European ports and not sailing via the Mediterranean also remain unchanged. All other rates, however, were tripled from those in effect since Monday."

Independent Oil Men Ask Regulation in Illinois

Centralia, Ill., Sept. 1 (AP).—The Independent Oil Producers' Association of Illinois tonight sent a message to Gov. Henry Horner asking a special session of the state legislature to consider "fair and reasonable" oil conservation legislation. In a second message to Lieut. Gov. John Stelle, the association told of its request to Gov. Horner and asked Stelle's cooperation and assistance.

Bonds Break; Trade Heavy; All Groups Hit

New York, Sept. 1 [Special].—The bond market today suffered one of the most severe breaks in recent years. Prices of a wide variety of domestic and foreign obligations crumbled from 3 to 10 points in the busiest trading session since last December.

United States government obligations were well cushioned against the shock of war selling in the early part of trading on the announcement that federal authorities were prepared to take holdings of dealers a little under previous prices, and on support by the federal reserve banks.

Lose ¼ to 1½ Points.

As liquidation became more pronounced, however, the declines in treasury issues became larger. Final prices on the stock exchange showed losses of 8/32ds of a point to 1 19/32ds points. Off the exchange, dealers reported, prices went somewhat lower after the close of listed trading.

Traders described the market as orderly. They said the market was left vulnerable to offerings by the decision of many banks and insurance companies to discontinue buying temporarily. The war news caught the high grade bond market not far from the record heights of the long advance from the 1932 lows.

Bond Situation Significant.

The speed with which the federal reserve board came to the support of the government bond market emphasized the significant position which the market holds in the present situation. Bond prices have been and are abnormally high. The extremely low interest rates which have been created by the government's easy money policy have put government issues and other high grade bonds at big price premiums.

The opinion has been expressed in some quarters that the advent of war would mark a reversal in the trend in interest rates and send bond prices down. To allay such fears the reserve board stepped into the market and took all the government bonds offered by dealers at ⅛ point below the final prices quoted on Thursday. The biggest holders of government bonds are banks and insurance companies.

Sales Over 15 Million.

Bond transactions on the stock exchange aggregated $15,338,200 face value, with treasury issues accounting for more than half the amount.

Among the foreign government issues, Canada 3s of 1967 were down 11¼; Norway 4s, 10; Belgium 7s, 4⅝; Denmark 6s, 6⅝; Australia 4½s, 8½, and Polish 8s, 8½ points.

Losses among domestic obligations extended from 3 to 7 points in American and Foreign Power 5s, American Telephone and Telegraph 3¼s, Bethlehem Steel 3¾s, Western Union 5s, Commonwealth Edison convertible 3½s, and International Hydro Electric 6s. International Telephone 5s dropped 8 points to 50.

August trafic of the Chicago Motor Coach company declined 1.90 per cent to 4,775,842 this year, from 4,868,450 last year. Trafic was 0.74 per cent higher for the first eight months of the year, however.

TRADE IN GRAIN WILDEST SINCE WORLD WAR ERA

Prices Soar 3c to 8c Per Bushel.

CHICAGO GRAIN PRICES

	Yesterday.	Thurs.	Yr. ago.
Wheat	$0.75⅝	$0.67⅞	$0.62½
Corn	.49⅞	.43¾	.50⅝
Oats	.34⅜	.29⅝	.23⅝
Rye	.47	.39	.40⅝
Soy beans	.74	.70	.77⅝

Grain prices soared 3 to 8 cents a bushel yesterday in the wildest markets since early in the world war. The Chicago Board of Trade and other grain exchanges were deluged with buying orders and prices soon after the opening of trading reached the limits permissible under exchange and governmental regulations.

The frenzied pace of trading quieted down after the first flood of orders had been filled, but brokers milled about the trading pits throughout the day attempting to fill orders from all parts of the world.

Many orders remained unfilled when the closing gong signaled the end of the day's trading. Brokers were unable to complete the transactions because of the limitations placed upon a day's price fluctuations, and because of grain owners' refusal to sell below the peak prices.

Late Sales Are Small.

Observers said that only a few actual transactions were made after the sharp price upswing early in the day, and that the total of business was not unusually large despite the wild scenes of activity witnessed by crowded galleries.

Wheat and rye for delivery in September led the advance in the Chicago market, each soaring the limit of 8 cents a bushel. Corn closed 4 to 6⅛ cents higher, and oats gained 3 to 4⅝ cents. All wheat futures rose 5 cents on the Kansas City and Winnipeg exchanges.

Limits on the current deliveries of wheat are established at 8 cents a bushel for a single day's trading, and are set at 5 cents for December and May contracts. September corn and oats were the only deliveries which failed to reach the limits in Chicago.

Highest Since Early June.

The advance carried prices to the highest levels since early in June, and statisticians estimated the advance added about 300 million dollars to the value of wheat, corn, and other grains now held by farmers. Prices at times dipped fractionally, but when this occurred sellers immediately withdrew their wheat and the market snapped back to the high levels.

Wheat at Winnipeg advanced the 5 cent limit and trading came virtually to a standstill due to the fact the market could go no higher. September wheat at Minneapolis soared 8 cents, the limit at that market.

International trading in cash grain was at a standstill. Liverpool wheat futures showed an advance equal to ⅝ to ¾ of a cent a bushel in American currency.

Board Boosts Margins.

Margin requirements for trading in grain futures were boosted 1 to 2 cents a bushel by the Board of Trade. The margin committee of the Clearing House association announced that effective today minimum basic margins of 6 cents a bushel would have to be put up by members of the clearing house on trades in wheat, rye, and soy beans. The initial margin on corn was set at 5 cents and oats 3 cents. Previous initial margins on wheat, rye and soy beans were 4 cents a bushel; corn, 3 cents and oats 2 cents. Customers of commission houses are required to put up minimum margins of 1½ times the clearing house rate.

The margin requirements on 50,000 pounds of lard were advanced $100 to $250 and requirements on dry salted bellies [pork] were advanced to $150 per lot of 30,000 pounds, from $90 previously. Margin requirements on cotton were boosted to $250 per 50 bales, an advance of $25.

The United States treasury yesterday announced the $100,000,000 of 91-day bills dated Sept. 6 were sold on a discount basis at an average price of 99.973, equivalent to an interest rate of 0.108 per cent.

Staples Soar on Prospect of War Needs

American commodity prices soared yesterday for the most spectacular gains in years as buying orders flooded markets, stimulated by prospects of vast demand for war staples from belligerent nations in Europe. Advances in many commodities were halted only when prices reached limits established by government or exchange regulations.

Copper, a prime war commodity, lagged behind other staples at first, but surged upward later in the day. New York futures soared 0.70 to 0.73 cent a pound, and refiners were unwilling to sell spot copper at the quoted 10½ cent a pound level. Later the price was lifted to 10¾ cents by all producers.

Report Poland Buys.

Poland was said to have acquired part of the 2,000 tons sought on Thursday, and Japan bought about 500 tons of copper rods. Export copper, quoted at 10.67½ cents, was up 0.07½ cent.

Sales of copper by foreign cartel interests totaled 3,000 tons at 10.[illegible]3 to 10.55 cents a pound, the fluctuation resulting from the movement of the pound sterling. French sales again were not reported in the cartel total.

All sugar futures climbed ¼ cent a pound, the permissible limit, shortly after the opening of trading and stayed there throughout the day. All offerings at the top prices were eagerly taken, and many traders found themselves with unfilled buying orders as the session closed.

Sugar Prices Rise Sharply.

Raw sugar jumped 0.33 cent a pound. In the refined market no quotations were available until late in the day, when a single refiner offered to sell sugar yesterday only at 4.75 cents a pound, up 0.35 to 0.40 cent from Thursday.

In rubber, as in copper, a world shortage of supplies has developed as the result of recent armament buying, and the war news pushed New York rubber futures up the full 2 cents a pound limit. September contracts not subject to the limitation climbed 2.34 cents. Spot rubber sold 2.28 cents higher than on Thursday. Many big firms refused to quote prices on rubber to be delivered in the future. The same condition prevailed in spot hides, iron ore, and other vital war staples.

Cocoa Deliveries Higher.

Several deliveries of cocoa were quoted up the full permissible limit of 1 cent a pound, with few holders of contracts willing to sell at the top prices. Closing prices were 0.96 to 1 cent higher.

Hide futures soared 1.54 to 1.60 cents a pound and spot hides sellers dropped out of the market. Tin futures advanced 1.15 cents a pound and no quotation on spot tin was available. Zinc moved up 0.33 to 0.34 cent a pound and lead gained 0.11 to 0.15 cent.

Cottonseed oil came out of its groove with an advance of 0.83 to 0.87 cent a pound. Wool tops closed 0.33 to 0.37 cent higher, and silk climbed as much as 6 cents a pound. Santos coffee was the only laggard, finishing 0.07 cent lower to 0.15 cent higher.

Pig Iron Orders Increase.

The impact of war news also reached into the steel industry. Chicago steel men said yesterday that customers who have been considering pig iron purchases for some time suddenly rushed in to do business, evidently fearful that war would bring higher iron and steel prices. Inquiry for finished steel products was reported considerably broader in the last two days.

Tin production quotas for the last half of the year were boosted to 60 per cent of standard tonnages by the international tin committee. Quotas for the third quarter had previously been set at 45 per cent.

OIL SHUTDOWN ENDS; OUTPUT QUOTAS REDUCED

The unprecedented shutdown of oil wells in six major producing states came to an end yesterday as pumps resumed operations in Oklahoma, Kansas, and New Mexico. Closing orders had been lifted earlier by Texas, Louisiana, and Arkansas.

Normal operations had been interrupted Aug. 16 as a means to boost the price of crude oil, which had been reduced by the principal purchasers in the midcontinent field. The effort was successful, as most of the purchasers restored their former prices.

STOCKS SWEEP FORWARD AFTER EARLY RETREAT

Stampede of Buying Marks Last Hour.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Sept. 1.—Snapping back with a powerful rally that took a war worried public almost completely by surprise, the stock market swept higher in a wild final hour of trading. Earlier the market had been sharply lower.

A sudden stampede of buying swept through the steel, copper, sugar, leather and shipping groups. The rush to the "war babies," or "brides," as some traders call them, brought a rally in the entire market, although declines outnumbered advances nearly two to one at the close.

Less favored issues still were down $1 to $4 a share at the close. On the other hand, gains ranged from $3 to more than $10 a share in special war issues, some of which had stubbornly resisted selling all day.

Early Decline Is Orderly.

Although never showing any real signs of panic, stocks had backed down $1 to $5 a share during early trading under the weight of fears of world wide consequences of the fighting in Poland. This had been expected by a majority of observers. They were not prepared, however, for what followed.

The first ray of hope filtered into Wall street with Italy's announcement of its neutrality in the conflict, for the time being, at least. This brought a mild rally, which amounted to a little more than definite removal of selling pressure, which already had eased by the end of the first hour of trading.

Selling crept in again, however, until it became known that Britain had asked Germany to suspend hostilities in Poland instead of plunging at once into war.

Demand Develops Suddenly.

This was signal for a steadier market, but the demand for the "war babies" developed with arresting suddenness. The high speed ticker fell behind trading on the floor as 770,000 shares changed hands in the final hour. Turnover amounted to 1,970,000 shares, compared with only 457,890 shares yesterday.

With utilities and rails both closing lower on the average, the late bulge of many leading industrials failed to put the stock market as a whole on the plus side. Of 864 issues traded, 488 declined, while 259 advanced and 117 held even.

An example of the wild swings experienced in many leading industrial shares is shown by the action of Bethlehem steel. This war favorite zoomed back to 65½ after plummeting to 54½, closing up 7¼ points at 65. United States steel reacted similarly, to close up 5⅞. Other steels with gains of 2 to 5 points included Crucible, Republic, and Youngstown.

Sugars Are Strong.

The usually little noticed sugars showed gains ranging to 10¾ points in American sugar preferred, and 14 points in Cuban American preferred. Common stocks gained from 2 to 5 points.

Meat packing shares also took one of their infrequent flings in the market spotlight, with Armour, Swift, Wilson, Cudahy, and Swift International chalking up gains ranging to more than 2 points.

The metals were among the strongest issues. Anaconda, Kennecott, Phelps Dodge, Magna, International Nickel, St. Joseph Lead, Bridgeport Brass and others picked up as much as 4 points or better.

Du Pont closed 3 points higher after being down 5¼ at one time. Hercules Power gained 2 points, Westinghouse gained 2½, and General Electric advanced a major fraction.

soared under the leadership of Douglas, which was up 6⅞ at the close after having been down a point. Sperry, Boeing, United, and Martin were up about 3 points each.

Joining steels and metals as most active stocks were Chrysler and General Motors, but they closed about even. Chrysler at one time was down 6 points.

Rubber Group Higher.

Gains of fractions to more than 2 points, the latter in United States Rubber, were recorded in the tire and rubber group.

Among the most hard hit stocks were International Business Machines, off 7; Underwood, off 4, and United States Gypsum, off 4½. Gypsum preferred lost 6½.

The utility section, generally lower, was sprinkled with numerous losses of more than a point in preferred issues.

CHICAGO FOOD SHARES GAIN.

Chicago stocks met the shock of war yesterday with advances in three leading food and packing issues, and declines in all other sections.

Armour spurted 1⅛ points to 5, and Swift and Libby each advanced a point net, the former moving to 18¼ and the latter to 6. The stocks were bought, brokers said, on the theory that these companies would share in orders for supplies to feed European armies.

Losses among active stocks in other classifications extended to 1¼ points in Commonwealth Edison, which closed at 27⅞, and 1 point in W. B. Jarvis, which finished at 11¾. Substantial fractions were deducted from the selling prices of Zenith, Marshall Field, and other issues.

With Edison again in the lead on a turnover of 8,200 shares, the exchange's trading volume reached 53,000 shares, the largest since the 61,000 share turnover of last July 18.

AMERICAN SHIPS BUILT AT DOUBLE COST IN BRITAIN

Federal Subsidies Make Up Difference.

New York, Sept. 1 [Special].—Shipping men here said today that the merchant vessels being built under the federal government's subsidy program are costing about double the amount needed to construct comparable ships in British shipyards. Bids received from England indicate that a maritime commission ship costing $1,890,000 in America can be built for $950,000 in England.

Higher costs for material and labor are absorbing much of the money being expended by the government in its effort to build up the nation's merchant marine, it was said. The government has earmarked a billion and a quarter dollars to be spent over the next ten years by the maritime commission in modernizing the merchant marine and building it into a wartime auxiliary for the navy.

Shipyards Busiest Since War.

As a result of the expenditures by the commission American shipyards are operating at the highest rate since the war. Under the federal government's wartime building program hundreds of vessels were built. Many of these vessels are now rusting away in Atlantic seaboard ports.

The subsidies being poured into private shipyards by the government are intended to bridge the gap between construction costs here and abroad. The government is thus bearing the cost of maintaining the higher prices for American labor and materials.

Orders have been placed by the commission for a total of eighty-three vessels. Most of the orders have gone to eastern ship builders. Recently, a west coast firm, the Consolidated Steel corporation of Los Angeles, was given orders for four cargo ships and the Tampa Shipbuilding and Graving company of Tampa, Fla., was authorized to build five cargo vessels.

Plan 500 Ships in Ten Years.

The program calls for the construction of fifty ships a year for the next ten years.

The building program has been hampered by a shortage of competent technical men and the threat of a possible scarcity of skilled labor. The United States lags far behind other countries in these respects, it is said, because the shipbuilding industry in this country has been dormant over a long period when other countries have been building continuously. Skilled workers will be developed gradually as the building program is expanded, it is expected.

Plans for the program now being carried out were drawn up by Joseph P. Kennedy in the nine months that he served as chairman of the maritime commission in 1937. Kennedy is now ambassador to England. In his report on the industry Kennedy criticized strongly the activities of the labor unions and certain practices of ship operators as causes of the industry's troubles.

The largest of the maritime commission ships is the new liner America, built by the Newport News Shipbuilding and Dry Dock company at Newport News, Va. The ship, costing $15,750,000, will enter the North Atlantic service next spring as the flagship of the United States Lines. The same company is building three tankers and four cargo boats for various private operators with funds supplied by the commission.

Others Building Ships.

Other companies building maritime commission ships include the Federal Shipbuilding and Dry Dock company, which has three tankers and twelve cargo boats under construction at Kearney, N. J.; the Bethlehem Steel corporation's shipbuilding division, which has three tankers and three passenger and cargo ships under construction at Sparrows Point, Md., and four cargo boats at Quincy, Mass.; the Sun Shipbuilding and Dry Dock company, which is building three tankers, ten cargo boats, and four cargo and passenger vessels at Chester, Pa.; the Tampa Shipbuilding company, four cargo boats at Tampa, Fla.; Moore Dry Dock company, two cargo boats at Oakland, Cal., and the Ingalls Shipbuilding corporation, four cargo vessels at Pascagoula, Miss.

This program is to supplement the building that is now being done for the United States navy at navy yards and in private shipyards. The new naval ships range from $4,800,000 destroyers to $70,000,000 battleships.

America in Second Place.

The United States has returned to second place in the ship building industry. The last available figures showed vessels with a combined tonnage of 391,824 tons were under construction at the end of June. Heading the list was Great Britain and Ireland with a total of 791,456 tons.

Under one phase of the commission's subsidy plan, the commission finances construction and the private ship line operator agrees to purchase the ship from the commission "at a price corresponding to the estimated cost, as determined by the commission, of building the vessel in a foreign shipyard."

25 Per Cent Down Payment.

The ship line operator is required to make a down payment equal to 25 per cent of the construction cost, excluding the cost of national defense features incorporated in the vessel and approved by the secretary of the navy. The operator agrees to pay the balance within twenty years, and to pay interest of 3½ per cent. The commission holds a first mortgage on the vessel.

If the operator prefers to finance construction rather than purchase the ship from the commission, the commission pays the shipbuilder a construction subsidy based upon the difference between domestic and foreign costs. Operating differential subsidies are also paid ship line owners under the commission's program, based on the difference between foreign and domestic costs, on operations considered necessary to maintain this nation's merchant fleet in competition with foreign ship lines.

QUITE REMOTE.

What is the status of the common stock of American and Foreign Power company?—A. W.

Answer: The common shares of American and Foreign Power company, Inc., are far removed from earnings of the company. They are preceded in the capitalization by $7 second preferred stock, $6 first preferred stock, and $7 first preferred stock and $50,000,000 in debentures.

No dividends have been paid on the $7 and $6 first preferred stocks since 1932. These issues are cumulative, and arrears now amount to $52.50 a share on the $7 preferred and $45 a share on the $6 preferred. No dividends have been paid on the $7 second preferred since 1930 and accumulations now amount to $61.50 a share.

All of these accumulated arrears must be paid, or some refinancing to take care of such accumulations must be made, before any dividends may be disbursed on the common. Net income sufficient to pay bond interest and preferred stock dividends and make available some earnings on the common stock has not been reported for many years. No dividends have ever been paid on the common.

American and Foreign Power provides electricity and other public utility services through subsidiaries to thirteen countries, principally in Central and South America. The company also has a fairly large interest in China and a relatively small interest in India.

The common stock is highly speculative.

SECURED BY STOCK.

Please give me some information on Illinois Central "leased line" stock. How is it rated?—I. N.

Answer: $9,989,700 of $100 par Illinois Central "leased line" stock is secured by deposit of a like amount of Chicago, St. Louis and New Orleans railroad stock. Dividends of 4 per cent a year are guaranteed by Illinois Central railroad company. In case of default in dividends for sixty days, holders are entitled to the pledged stock. The "leased line" stock is considered speculative.

WHAT "CLOSED" MEANS.

What is meant by the phrase "closed-end investment company"? How does it differ from "open end investment company"?—G. L.

Answer: A "closed-end investment company" is one in which the number of shares of the company is definitly fixed. An "open-end investment company" is not restricted in issuing stock.

JURY FINDS NO BASE FOR ACTION IN OIL PRICE CASE

Dismissed by Federal Judge Lindley.

Danville, Ill., Sept. 1 (AP).—A federal grand jury which has been investigating allegations of gasoline price fixing by major oil companies in 10 middle western states was discharged tonight by Judge Walter C. Lindley after it reported there was "no cause for action."

The jury began its study on June 6, recessed June 23 without making a report, and resumed its inquiry yesterday.

Attorney General Frank Murphy said last May the grand jury action, the second in the government's anti-trust campaign in the oil industry, was necessitated by indications that practices on which the oil trial at Madison, Wis., in 1936, were based, "have not been wholly abandoned in the oil industry."

Federal Official Silent.

After reading the jury's "no cause for action" report, Judge Lindley asked George Wise of Washington, an assistant attorney general, if the government "had anything more to say." Wise said "No," and the jury was discharged.

The Danville investigation was an off-shoot of the Madison oil conspiracy trial. The Madison cases are now headed for the United States Supreme court. Yesterday, the government appealed to the high court in its effort to convict twelve oil companies and five of their officers or employés of conspiring to raise the price of gasoline in mid-western states in 1936 and 1937 in alleged violation of the anti-trust laws.

Review of Decision Asked.

The petition asked the tribunal to review a decision by the federal Circuit court at Chicago reversing the conviction of the defendants by the federal District court at Madison, and ordering a new trial.

The Socony-Vacuum Oil company and the other defendants also filed a petition seeking a Supreme court review. They contended the Circuit court "erred in failing to direct the trial court to enter judgments of dismissal."

COTTON PRICES SINK, RALLY, END LITTLE CHANGED

Cotton prices swung within a rather wide range yesterday, selling about 0.15 cent a pound lower under heavy liquidation in the early trading. They recovered about 0.25 cent later as buying came from mills and commission houses. The close was 0.07 cent higher to 0.01 cent lower.

At Liverpool prices rose about $1.50 a bale in relation to New York levels as mills increased their purchases. Traders reported Liverpool market operations were restricted by difficulties in obtaining dollar exchange.

Spot cotton closed 0.01 to 0.03 cent higher with New York at 8.92 cents; New Orleans, 8.86 cents; Houston, 8.72 cents, and Galveston 8.68 cents. Prices follow:

CROP EXPERTS RAISE ESTIMATE ON CORN YIELD

A corn crop of 2 billion 510 million bushels is forecast for this year's harvest by Chicago statisticians in reports issued yesterday. Favorable weather conditions in August further improved the outlook for the crop in the big central western producing states. A month ago the department of agriculture estimated the prospective yield at 2 billion 400 million bushels. Last year's harvest was 2 billion 542 million bushels.

No estimates were made this month on the winter wheat and rye crops.

Dodge Dealers Discuss Sales and Service Plans

Sales and service plans for the 1940 models of the Dodge automobile were discussed yesterday at a meeting at the Palmer House of about 1,000 Dodge dealers, salesmen, and factory representatives. The group looked over the new cars, public announcement of which will not be made for several weeks. George W. Malcomson, Chicago regional manager, presided at the meeting. Frank J. Timmens, general sales manager, said that the company's engineers and designers have built into the new cars more beauty, comfort, dependability, and safety.

Cost of Development Put at $585,000.

Financing has been completed and construction will be started within ten days on a business building and remodeling project at the southwest corner of Milwaukee and Cicero avenues, at the intersection of Irving Park road, it was announced yesterday. The improvement will represent a reported value when completed of $585,000. It is expected to have the project finished by Dec. 15.

Phone Company Lease.

Part of the present building on the property will be remodeled and a new one and two story unit erected. It acquired a ninety-nine year leasehold and the present buildings from Carl H. and Robert W. Stroker.
